FIVE CENTS

Week by Week

We note they're building houses and apartments in Arlington faster than ever. Already the county has issued building permits for values exceeding the total of all last year.

We suggest the organization of an Arlington County Zoo Association, and the immediate inauguration of a fund to build an Arlington Zoo. Why? Because Arlington is "growing" so fast that in a few years a zoo will be necessary to give youngsters a chance to see what cows, horses, sheep, squirrels and rabbits look like in their natural habitat. Woods and fields are disappearing before our very eyes on all sides. We recall with sympathy the lament of an Arlington resident who came in the office last week.

"Here we moved to the 'country' a couple of years ago," he wailed, "and built a hofee where the kids could look at something besides brick walls on all sides. Now they come along and build one of these doggone super-apartment houses right next door to us, and we might just as well be living back in Washington. We thought we were safe for life when we built our house, but it looks like this so-called 'progress' has caught up with us."

We know just how he feels. Three years ago we were invited to a party at the home of some friends in Arlington. We had never been there before and it took us the better part of half an hour to find their house when we left the highway. They lived up a lane, on top of a hill, and when we got there we luxuriated in the sensation of being 20 miles from no place, with hardly a sound on the air except the calls of birds and other voices of nature.

This week we drove that way again. Paved streets cut back and forth through what were fields and woods three years ago, and the house of our friends is surrounded by new dwellings. You could not throw a stone from their front porch without breaking some body's window. Such is progress.

Have your Spring flowers started blooming yet? By the time this appears in print it will probably be blowing up a blizzard, but as it is being written we are about to be convinced the world has changed its orbit and we're heading back into Summer. For the sake of the coal pile or the oil tank, let us give thanks for small blessings received, but we always look askance at such unseasonable temperatures because we know from bitter experience that Nature has a habit of making us pay double for such treats. We are betting on a hard winter. Have we any takers?

Life gets more and more complicated. We are heartily in favor of all holidays being placed like Thanksgiving, on a certain day of the week rather than on a certain date of the month. Here Armistice Day up and comes on Friday, and the postman gets a holiday. Not that we begrudge him that, Lord knows, but a lot of Sun readers depend on the postman to bring them their papers on Friday. Worst of it was we didn't realize the predicament until Tuesday, which doesn't speak very well for our foresight. Anyway, we had to go to work and speed things up so the postman could deliver the papers Thursday afternoon to those subscribers who get them that way. Very complicating.

Frank Lloyd Wright's remarks at Williamsburg recently when he cast words of aspersions on the architecture of our Colonial forefathers struck sparks of irritation from us as well as a lot of other people. We fail to comprehend just how Colonial architecture proves life was "narrow" in those days. The "organic" architecture of Mr. Wright's design may be the functionally perfect thing, but as yet our eyes haven't become accustomed to its straight lines and sharp angles. We'll probably learn better in the course of time, but just don't rush us.

Firemen's Meeting Changed To Nov. 16

The Arlington County Firemen's Association will meet Wednesday evening, November 16, instead of Tuesday evening, November 15, at the Falls Church Fire Engine House, Lee Highway and the Arlington County line. The change was made because of a conflict of dates with the Fire School being conducted in Alexandria.

NOTICE

Due to the Armistice Day legal holiday, with no Friday home delivery of mail in Arlington County, The Sun went to press Thursday noon, six hours early, in order to reach Arlington mail subscribers in the afternoon delivery. Plans for this change were made since our last issue, therefore no previous announcement was given.

Referendum Wins By 61 Votes; Board Will Be 'Staggered'

Slim Margin Given Plan To Revise Method Of Electing Members

With a slim majority of 61, Arlington voters Tuesday decided in favor of electing members of the Arlington County Board to staggered terms of office instead of regular four-year terms. Only four of Arlington's 11 precincts cast a larger vote against the measure, these being Arlington, Clarendon No. 1, Lyon Park and Virginia Highlands. The total vote was 3,019 with 1,540 in favor of the change and 1,479 opposing it. Representative Howard W. Smith, unopposed, received 2,835 votes. These figures are unofficial.

Little interest was taken in the question until a few days preceding the election, when the executive committee of the Arlington County Woman's Democratic Club went on record as bitterly opposed to the change and urging all women to go to the polls to oppose it. The committee believed that a staggered system will make it virtually impossible for a woman to be elected to the board.

There was much confusion at the polling booths when the voters were handed a ballot reading: "Shall the members of the County Board be elected and vacancies on the Board filled as provided in Sec. 2773-F1 of the Code of Virginia?" The reading on the ballot was specified in the bill providing for the new system and enacted at the last General Assembly, having been introduced by Arlington's delegate, William D. Medley. The Commonwealth's Attorney's office had a number of calls for explanation of the measure.

The new method of electing members of the board will go into effect at the 1939 election when the present board members come up for election. The two candidates receiving the highest number of votes will be elected for four years, the third highest for three years, the fourth highest for two years and the fifth highest for one year. Following that each year one member of the board will be subject to election, except that every four years two members will be elected.

Survey Of Town's Schools To Start

Bitterness Stirred By Controversy In Fairfax

In compliance with a request by the Falls Church School Board last August, the State Department of Education next Wednesday will start a school survey of the town on which to base recommendations for the future status of the town as a school district. The survey will be directed by George J. Oliver, supervisor of secondary education.

The request for the survey was made by the board last Summer in the hopes that a definite course of action might be determined in time to file application for a P. W. A. loan if erection of a new high school seemed the proper procedure. It is the high school situation which has brought the matter to a focus, the school population of the town being too small to insure what residents desire in high school equipment and curriculum, and the present building and campus being inadequate, particularly in athletic and auditorium facilities.

In the past week, Falls Church's school situation has been brought to the fore once more by the furore at the Fairfax County School Board meeting last Monday when the question of the proper location of the proposed new elementary school for the district south of the town was discussed in a meeting attended by several hundred patrons.

The section around Merrifield, Dunn Loring and Idylwood has been developing rapidly and the number of children now being transported by bus and street car to Fairfax, Oakton and Vienna appeared to the board sufficient to justify granting the requests of residents for a six-room elementary school in that section. Fifty thousand dollars of the county's present $375,000 building fund was earmarked for this project. After months of survey, a site on the road between Merrifield and the Leesburg Pike at Dunn Loring was finally chosen, apparently suiting no one except the Dunn Loring residents.

Vienna patrons have been emphatic in condemning the board for building another school within two miles when, in their opinion, the money should be spent for adding rooms and improving facilities at the Vienna School. Idylwood feels the school should be built in that section and Merrifield points to the new Lee Boulevard and contends that the school population will soon demand another school in that direction unless the new building be more centrally located. The meeting was unusually bitter.

Falls Church was brought into the discussion when one of the delegations pointed out the possibility that Falls Church schools might eventually become part of the county system, making a school midway between Falls Church and Vienna unwise. Samuel Styles, who is the Town Board's representative to the County, at that time stated that Falls Church would never become a part of the county system but would continue as an independent school district.

When questioned by a representative of The Sun, Horace Brown, chairman of the Town Board, stated that Mr. Styles had expressed only his personal views, and that the board has taken no such official action. Mr. Brown declared that in requesting the State to make its survey he himself was proceeding with an open mind and was in quest of information and advice from school authorities as to what would be to the best interest of the town.

MEETING POSTPONED

The Falls Church Woman's Club has postponed its regular meeting from November 11 to November 18 because of Armistice Day. The meeting next Friday will be in the form of a musicale at the home of Mrs. John Bowen on Great Falls Street.

FOOD SALE TOMORROW

1938 Chest Drive Gets Under Way; Corps of Workers Launch Canvass

$625 Turned In First Day From Falls Church Area

Pledges totaling $625, including $324 cash paid in advance, were sent in by Falls Church District of the Fairfax County Community Chest on the opening day of the Washington drive on Wednesday.

Falls Church District workers started their canvass last week in order that they might combine with their solicitations instruction to residents working in Washington as to the necessity and importance for every suburban resident employed in Washington, and giving through Washington government offices or business firms, to properly designate 50 per cent of his or her donation to the Suburban Community Chest.

This educational work is one of the most important features of the job being handled by the volunteer workers. In Fairfax, Arlington, Alexandria and suburban Maryland counties are to profit by the new and more liberal agreement reached this year between the Suburban Conference and the Washington chest officials, suburban subscribers must observe faithfully the hard and fast rules the Washington auditors require, which are explained in the adjacent column.

Workers find that many potential subscribers do not appreciate the necessity for observing meticulously these regulations in so far as they depart from practice in former years. Naturally only leaders in the suburban conference are concerned to see that the proper red tape is tied which will benefit local charities.

This year all the suburban districts will stand or fall together. Fairfax County will not secure its full budget unless Arlington County or Montgomery County, Md., also goes 100 per cent. But this year, for the first time, the suburban units are given the privilege of making their budgets irrespective of whether or not Washington as a whole is successful.

Those who are working on the campaign in the Falls Church District include Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bradley, Roger Blake, R. J. Poppelman, Mrs. J. O. Belz, Mrs. Beulah Thorne, William Smith, Mrs. Chester Lane, D. Kemper Grille, William Phillips, Miss Betty Ward, Mrs. Charles Kellogg, Mrs. Guy Ervin, Mrs. Persis Montgomery, Mrs. Harry Amsterdam, Mrs. H. B. Weaver, Mrs. J. J. Henry, Mrs. Earl Fowler, Mrs. Fay Patton, Mrs. G. Torreyson Reeves, Miss Betty Styles, Mrs. E. M. Ward, Mrs. L. D. Siegfried, Mrs. Malcolm Smith, Mrs. D. J. Shear, Dr. Joseph McCaskill, Mrs. William de Zerega, Mrs. Francis Wagner, Mrs. C. V. Shreve, Mrs. Donald Jones, Mrs. Millard Rice, Mrs. Howard Middleton, Mrs. Lawrence Proctor, Mrs. M. L. Chandel, H. J. Weiser, Mrs. J. H. Chambliss, James Ferguson, Mrs. J. F. Clem, Mrs. M. T. Boone, Mrs. Alphonse LaValley, Mrs. J. H. Green, Mrs. Karl O. Spless, Mrs. Dorothy Peacock, Mrs. M. O. Woods, Mrs. Milton Hartley, Mrs. Kortright Church, A. K. Waterval, Edward Jones, Miss Mary Ann Redington, Capt. Acors Thompson, Mrs. Albert Ware, Mrs. Thomas Proby, Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, Tage Beck, Wilmer O. Wood and Mrs. E. D. Vosbury.

Dr. Paul W. Bowden Is Named Assistant

County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan and Dr. R. G. Beachley, Health Officer of Arlington, this week announced the appointment of Dr. Paul W. Bowden, assistant health officer, to succeed Dr. E. V. Jones, recently resigned. Dr. Bowden will report for duty November 15.

The newly appointed assistant health officer is from Southwest Virginia. He received his early education in Ohio and holds the degrees of Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Medicine and Doctor of Medicine from the University of Cincinnati. Since his graduation in 1937, he interned and has been engaged in private practice.

The position of assistant health officer is financed partly by the State Department of Health and by the county. Dr. Bowden has been approved by Dr. I. C. Riggan, commissioner of health, and by Dr. L. J. Roper, director of the Bureau of County Health Departments.

Important!

Residents of Arlington, Falls Church and Fairfax who are employed in Washington and who give to the Community Chest through their places of employment in Washington MUST take certain steps if their home communities are to receive a 50 per cent share of their donation:

Pledge cards must be signed twice, once on each side.

Pledge cards must show both office and home addresses.

The amount designated to go to the donor's home community must be stated exactly, and may be any amount up to 50 per cent of the total donation. A person who works in the counties, but gives in Washington, may designate his full donation to the county.

Unless each of these three requirements are met, the full donation will automatically go to the Washington Chest, except for 6.5 per cent, which is the proportion of the total suburban area budget to the entire metropolitan chest.

Any local resident has the right to demand to see his pledge card in Washington and to mark it properly so that his home community will benefit to the fullest extent possible.

Audit Of Welfare Funds Completed

County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan announced this week that the audit for the accounts of the Arlington Board of Public Welfare for the period from April 27, 1932, to August 31, 1938, has been completed.

This audit, Mr. Hanrahan said, covered only transactions dealing with private funds which come from contributions, from individuals and from the Washington Community Chest, and from payments on non-support cases and fines. Expenditures are made primarily for relief. Monies collected on non-support cases and fines are disbursed to specific individuals or agencies.

The total recorded receipts for the period amounted to $97,998.26, or an average of approximately $15,000 yearly.

Mr. Hanrahan's report concluded, "The cash disbursed during the period, plus the balance on hand at August 31, 1938, accounted for all the receipts and balance at the beginning, with a small excess to the credit of the former superintendent, Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs."

It is probable that the board will take final action on these proposed amendments at its meeting November 29.

Care In Making Donations For Counties Urged

Arlington County made returns of $153 Wednesday on the opening day of the Community Chest Drive and before the closing date, November 22, hopes to make its individual quota of $15,899. If the total goal of the Washington Chest and the suburban areas is realized Arlington County will receive $31,675.70.

Residents are strongly urged to use the designation plan when making their contributions. Anyone living in Arlington and making returns in Washington is permitted to make a 50 per cent return to Washington and 50 per cent to the county, while those living in the county and working in the county may designate their entire donation for Arlington. The steps to be followed are explained in the adjacent column.
