

Chew, Cannon Are Victors In Close Race For County Board; Count Is Complete

Earlier Results Not Changed By Tabulation In Last 2 Precincts

Thirty hours after the polls were closed to Arlington voters Tuesday, the last ballot was counted and the hotly disputed race for membership on the County Board was finally decided. F. Freeland Chew and Mrs. Florence Cannon were the two successful candidates in the wide-open field of nine aspirants for the two open positions on the Board of Supervisors.

The final tallies also confirmed earlier foregone conclusions in State and County offices and the School Board races.

Unofficial figures included: Charles R. Fenwick, Democrat for State Senate, 7,856; J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm Democrats for House of Delegates, 8,392 and 7,632; Harry K. Green, Democrat for Commissioner of the Revenue, 9,000; J. Elwood Clements, Democrat for Sheriff, 7,602; John Locke Green, Republican for Treasurer, 7,315; and Hugh Reid, Democrat for Trial Justice, 7,801.

The five successful Nominating Convention candidates for Arlington's first elected School Board each enjoyed large majorities. Elizabeth Campbell topped the slate with a total of 7,960. Others were as follows: Barnard Joy, 6,745; Colin C. MacPherson, 7,466; O. Glenn Stahl, 6,332; and Dr. Curtis E. Tuthill, 6,710.

As the results came forth yesterday and early this morning from Arlington and Ballston precincts, the County's largest, and Clarendon Precinct No. 1, which had temporarily suspended tabulating during the day so that exhausted officials might ease their frazzled nerves, it became increasingly evident that the race for County Board seats would be the closest in the entire election.

What has been the most bitterly waged campaign culminated in the tightest of contests, principally between F. Freeland Chew and Harry W. Cuppett and Better Government League-backed Mrs. Florence Cannon and T. Oscar Smith.

Although his lead was never overtaken, Mr. Chew's position, which had with a 600 vote margin, was threatened several times by the only woman candidate for the Board. At one point she trailed by a meagre ten votes.

Final tabulations revealed the following totals: Mr. Chew, 4,920; Mrs. Cannon, 4,807; T. Oscar Smith, 4,513; Mr. Cuppett, 4,473; Lincoln Mackey, 2,876; Lawson Wimberly, 1,063; Robert W. Gibbs, 752; M.P. Divine, 428; and Jacob C. Bechtel, 349.

A Senate reporter and long-time Arlingtonian, Mr. Chew has been a member, and former chairman, of the Board to which he has been successfully re-elected for the past twelve years. He needs no introduction to Arlington voters due to this long tenure of service.

Mrs. Cannon is a native of Danville, Pennsylvania. She has lived in Arlington since 1922, making her home at 4008 8th Street, South. She is employed as an Administrative Analyst in the War Department and belongs to numerous civic organizations.

In 1926, she organized the Arlington Welfare League and assisted in organizing the Arlington Creative Arts Club in 1927.

Mrs. Cannon has campaigned for "more aggressive action in matters of public welfare" and promised more information about official functions and activities. She has urged "more attention to accounting methods to prevent waste of the tax-payers' money."

Chest Drive Workers Go Into Action

Over one thousand citizens of Arlington County who have volunteered to work for the Arlington County Unit of the Community Chest Federation Campaign began their drive this morning to raise and to exceed the Unit's quota of $53,000.00 for necessary welfare services. Edmund D. Campbell, Arlington County Unit Chairman, said that he is confident of success.

"I am certain," Campbell declared, "that every resident of the County, whether a householder or a wage earner, will want to see that our campaign not only meets the quota of $53,000, but feels the true need for 1948 by oversubscribing the quota."

"Let me ask now that everyone give our volunteer solicitors a warm welcome and a generous contribution. These 1,500 red feather campaigners are giving their own contributions first. They are giving generously too, of their time and effort to do the job of supporting all of the 125 agencies in the Chest Federation including the twelve in Arlington."

Campbell has asked that every solicitor get in as many gifts as possible by noon November 11. In order that the county unit may make a good report at the first over-all report meeting of the campaign November 12 at the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. Bldg. in Washington.

Arlington Chest President, J. Harold Stehman, called attention to the year-round work of the agencies which must go on, and which depend on the personal contributions of every Arlington County man and woman. Memorial Rites At Pohick Church

Services Plan Ceremonies For November 11th

One of the most impressive memorial ceremonies to be held in Northern Virginia will take place at the historic national shrine Pohick Church on Sunday, November 9th at 11 a. m. when members of the Military Order of the Purple Heart and the Army and Navy Legion of Valor commemorate the supreme sacrifice of their Comrades-In-Arms with Armistice Day Services.

Former Chief of Chaplains of the Army Rev. Alvin C. Brasted will deliver the sermon while other prominent persons will offer commemorative talks during the occasion.

Others to Attend

Besides Army, Navy and Marine Corps officials expected to attend will be the National Commander of the Legion of Valor Joseph F. Mannion D. S. C. who heads the organization of those who were awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross and the Navy Cross; National Junior Vice Commander David B. Mayne of the Military Order of the Purple Heart who will represent the order in behalf of the National Commander Verne S. White.

Among other civilian groups to attend will be commanders and representatives of chapters of the Purple Heart Order from Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia; detachments of the Marine Corps League; Veterans of Foreign Wars officials; and American Legion representatives from throughout the area.

The United States Marine Corps Base at Quantico is sending a special color guard along with their colors to be arrayed with the flags and standards of the military and veteran organizations.

Honors for Marines

Special observance will be given to the Marines in honor of the celebration of the services' 172nd birthday on November 10th.

The Marines hold the memory of the Pohick Church with special significance because it was there that their first Commandant Brig. Gen. Archibald Henderson (1783-1859) worshipped and his father was an original vestryman. He was born in Fairfax County.

On last June 15th, the United States Marines presented a beautiful plaque to the church to be placed at the Henderson pew honoring this brave American who is known for his daring feats of valor. They also presented a beautiful service chalice to match the paten which formerly belonged to Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain.

The family of General Robert E. Lee presented the exquisite old Communion service often used at such occasions. It is world famous as one of the oldest silver services in the country.

As a national shrine, the Pohick Church also connects its history with famous American military leaders such as General Washington who helped design and build the structure and as the burial place of the first Surgeon General of the nation. He was General William Brown, M. D. former Physician General to the Hospitals of the United States during the Revolutionary period (1775-1783). He died January 11, 1792 and was buried there.

Smoke Control Action Cited At Yards Meet

Twenty-four railroad officials, the largest number to attend one of the 18 consecutive monthly meetings of the Smoke Control Committee at Potomac Yards, yesterday heard Alexandria Smoke Control Engineer John J. Kelley cite ten alleged violations since the last meeting October 1.

Kelley stated that the alleged smoke nuisance was still troublesome and far from being satisfactory, but he thinks that much improvement has come about through the meetings for the last year and a half, and expects still more to be done.

He reports that more drastic action toward violators to overcome the carelessness causing the alleged nuisance would result from the agreement at yesterday's meeting.

W. T. Rice, Yard Superintendent, opined that rigidly enforced operating rules on smoke control will go a long way to eliminate the nuisance, as interest was centered mostly on the employees responsible for unnecessary discharge.

L. L. Rogers, chairman of the Smoke Control Committee at Potomac Yards, according to the smoke control engineer, stated that up to this time the fuel engineer for the company had been unable to secure low volatile coal, as recommended by Kelley, to be used on yard steam engines, new fires being built at the engine house and on steam road engines leaving the premises. Kelley said that the low volatile coal would eliminate the black smoke by about 75 per cent and urged the company to secure it as soon as possible.

Claiming that the largest single factor to correct was the failure due to the human element, Kelley stated that most of the firemen were doing a good job toward eliminating smoke while "some were doing a sloppy job."

Kelley said that he received promises of cooperation on efforts to eliminate any possible smoke nuisances from all 27 officials who attended the meeting. They are scheduled to meet again December 3.

Mr. Jackson stated that the recommendations would be made to the legislature at the soonest possible moment.

The necessity for the move grew apparent yesterday when weary tabulators of the Tuesday vote worked in some cases for more than twenty-four hours. Registrars and judges at the Clarendon Precinct No. 1 were so tired early Wednesday morning that they ceased their counting at 6 a. m., not resuming until late the same afternoon after a well-earned rest.

The final vote from the Ballston and Arlington precincts, Arlington's two biggest, were not determined until late afternoon yesterday.

Raymond V. Long, Director of the State Planning Board, written to city and county officials in the area, inviting them to conference.

20-Year Plan

It is in keeping with Virginia's "Twenty Year Plan" of high development and the solicitation of help and cooperation from governments.

The "Twenty Year Plan," which every county and city in Commonwealth will share proportionately, calls for the modernization of the present highway system by the reconstruction of 8,000 miles of primary roads within twenty years. This would double the present total of 4,000 miles of primary roads in state.

State Board members declare that every mile is paid for that a good many miles are of most modern design and construction, therefore being a good buy as far as it goes, but they say it is also a fact that present Virginia highways are not enough.

Extra Costs Involved

Governor Tuck says that modernizing and reconstructing Virginia's highways, it is estimated that large sums of money being spent needlessly because buildings of various types have been constructed too close to rights-of-way and must be moved back at great public expense in order to accomplish necessary widening and reconstruction.

The Governor adds that "governments have the authority to enact and enforce protective zoning Ordinances that greatly contribute to safety of highways and save many millions of dollars for modernizing miles of road for other purposes."
