

Judge McCarthy Appoints Alfred Frisbie To Fill Vacancy On County Board

Serves Unexpired Term Of The Late Mr. Leo Lloyd

Alfred E. Frisbie, of 636 25th Street, South, has been appointed to the Arlington County Board by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, it was announced today.

A resident of Arlington since 1938 and a veteran of World War I, Mr. Frisbie will fill the unexpired term of Leo Lloyd, who died on November 3rd.

The new Board member is associated with Orbis Brothers, a brokerage firm with offices in the Woodward Building, Washington. He is a native of Long Island, N. Y., and received his education in that area. A member of the Mount Vernon Baptist Church and secretary of the Keystone Class there, Mr. Frisbie is also superintendent of the Junior Department of the Sunday School. He belongs to Fort Scott Post 319, American Legion, and is a member of the Jefferson Civic League.

During the war Mr. Frisbie served overseas with the Army Ground Forces in the Pacific Theatre. He has two children, Sue, 17, and Norman, 6. Mr. Frisbie himself is 39 years old.

The late Mr. Lloyd's term had only more than a year to run.

Judge McCarthy had over 20 names proposed to him for the position. The majority of them came by letter or over the phone. Among those considered were T. Oscar Smith, who ran third in the Board race in the General Election; Harry W. Curren, who was defeated in his bid to remain on the Board; Sheriff Homer G. Bauserman; Lincoln Mackey and Lawson Winbush, defeated candidates for the Board; George Watt, past president of the Civic Federation; J. H. White, Jr., and George Cook, bankers; Stanley Collins, Ralph W. Fairbanks, and Norman Lee, local businessmen.

The appointment was the second made by Judge McCarthy this week. On Monday he named John P. Balster, of 2811 North Franklin Street, to the County Finance Board. Mr. Balster, who is secretary-manager of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, will fill the unexpired term of J. Thomas Manning, who died recently. This term runs until December 31, 1949.

Mr. Channing will explain "how Christian Science answers many questions of vital importance to everyone today, and how it heals." The lecture is open to the public.

Station Attendant Found Guilty Of Bribe Attempt

RICHMOND (U.P.)—A Richmond service station attendant, 30-year-old Leslie Earl Martin, has been found guilty of attempting to bribe a juror in the Fredericksburg bank case. The 12-man jury trying Martin deliberated only six minutes last yesterday before returning their verdict. A statement Martin made to the FBI, introduced as evidence over protests of the defense, linked Richmond attorney Robert Hicks and a defendant in the bank case, Hugh N. Rakes.

Emergency Foreign Aid Bill Near Final Senate Balloting

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—President Truman's emergency foreign aid bill is nearing final balloting on the Senate.

Senate President Vandenberg predicts the upper chamber will approve the $600,000,000 measure in its present form.

But the house foreign affairs committee has recommended that the administration request be slashed. And it also provides that China be added to the list of recipient nations. The House version of the bill would cut the appropriation to about $550,000,000. It takes $108,000,000 away from France, Italy, and Austria, and gives $60,000,000 to China.

The Senate has debated the administration plan without modification. Republican Senate whip Kenneth Wherry says today might bring a few restrictive amendments including one to reduce the appropriation. But chairman Eugene Millikin of the Senate Republican conference says he has heard only one vote in his ranks against the measure as originally presented.

The House version is scheduled for presentation to the GOP Steering Committee, probably on Monday. And it is slated for consideration by a House Republican caucus on Tuesday.

Full Support Voted To New County Board

While three members-elect sat on the sidelines, the five outgoing members of the Arlington County School Board last night voted "full support" to the new Board which takes office in January.

Members-elect O. Glenn Stahl, Colin MacPherson and Bernard Joy were told by William Montgomery Smith, present chairman, that "our first concern should be our children. If there's anything we 'old boys' can do, call on us."

He said that the late campaign had "awakened the County to the real need for cooperation in school work."

Contrasting sharply with the recent "hot" campaign, the meeting, which was held in the County Courthouse, evidenced an atmosphere of humor and goodwill.

The present members of the Board were appointed by the judge of the Circuit Court. In a referendum held last spring, Arlington voters voted overwhelmingly to have members of the School Board popularly elected. November's election was the first of its kind in Virginia.

Court Dismisses Perkins Complaint

Judge Walter T. McCarthy overruled a recent decision of the Virginia Real Estate Commission Monday morning in the Arlington Circuit Court when he dismissed the complaint of R. E. Perkins, a salesman in the employ of S. Thurston Weaver, local realty broker.

Claiming that he was entitled to a fee for the sale of certain property in the 3300 block of 23rd Road, north, Perkins took the matter before the State Real Estate Commission. The Commission suspended Weaver's license for 30 days, but before the suspension took effect, the case was appealed to the Arlington Circuit Court by Weaver.

Evidence was introduced showing that Perkins had nothing to do with the sale of the property, and was not entitled to the commission.

In his decision, Judge McCarthy said, "This complaint should never have been brought before the Real Estate Commission."

Virginia Hospital Program Outlined

Survey Report Reviewed At Regional Meet

Administrator Karl York of the Arlington Hospital last night described the recently completed State Hospital Survey, and its recommendations for a $120,000,000 construction and improvements program, as a pattern by which Virginia may develop and provide complete and efficient medical care for all its inhabitants.

Speaking at Carter Hall in Alexandria before a regional meeting sponsored by the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care, Mr. York outlined the outstanding points of the survey and reviewed its qualifications under Public Law 795, the Hill-Burton Act of Congress which provides Federal funds to aid the states in expanding their hospital and medical facilities.

His talk was based on the report of A. G. Howell, administrator of Ralston Memorial Hospital in Franklin, Va., who directed the Division of Hospital Survey and Construction, State Health Department. Mr. Howell's report will be submitted to the General Assembly and if acted upon will then go to the United States Public Health Service for approval to qualify for Federal allotment.

Mr. York said the Federal government has allocated over $33,000,000 to meet Virginia's program on a $1-Federal to $2-State basis.

The Arlington official explained that the survey program establishes six zones within the State and provides an equitable-by-comparison outlay for improvements during the next five years. In citing hospital and medical care needs stressed in Mr. Howell's report, Mr. York pointed to recommendations for the local area of provisions for 350 more beds in Alexandria, 277 in Arlington, and 50 in Fairfax County. He said each of the other zones are in dire need of additional facilities on a comparable basis.

Also appearing on the program was Miss Ellen H. Smith of Richmond, past president of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association who gave a resume of the TBA plans included in the $120,000,000 program.

Senator-elect Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington presided.

Louis Colangelo Rites Are Held

Burial services were held this morning at the Arlington Cemetery for Louis Colangelo, 55, of 1508 North Hancock street, who died at his home on Monday.

A native of Introlacqua, Italy, Mr. Colangelo was an original member of the National Symphony Orchestra and an Arlington music teacher for 20 years. He directed the symphony orchestra at Washington-Lee High, and in 1935 received an achievement medal from the American Legion for his part in the development of juvenile orchestra music in the County.

He served in France during the first World War as a sergeant bugler and assisted in the training of service bands. After the war he founded the music store on Hancock street which bears his name.

Mr. Colangelo was a member of the American Legion, the VFW, and the American Federation of Musicians.

He is survived by a daughter, Jean; a niece, Miss Francis Colangelo; a brother, Antonio of Boston; and a sister, Nadalina, of Italy.

Jackson Not Candidate For County Board Post

John W. Jackson, secretary of the Electoral Board, requested yesterday that his name be withdrawn from further consideration for appointment to the vacant seat on the County Board. Mr. Jackson's name was one of a number suggested to Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy for the position now open as a result of the death of Leo Lloyd early this month.

Jackson recently submitted his resignation as secretary of the Electoral Board to be effective December 1. He declared that the work "seriously interfered" with his profession.

Western Union May Arbitrate Strike

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—Federal labor mediators are reported ready to suggest arbitration to avert a Christmas season strike of Western Union workers.

Labor Department experts are in New York trying to find a basis for negotiation between the Western Union Telegraph Company and three AF of L unions representing 50,000 workers.

Federal mediator J. R. Mandelbaum has persuaded the unions to re-open negotiations on December 4th. However, labor leaders predict the new talks also will lead nowhere.

In Kenosha, Wisconsin, the Kenosha Evening News has agreed to a 15-per cent wage increase for the composing room employees. After being forced to miss an edition for the first time in 58 years, newspaper officials agreed to the wage boost demanded by the International Typographical Union.

Adventist Church To Participate In Bible Plan

Members of the Arlington Seventh-day Adventist Church will once again, in cooperation with other churches in the county, participate in the American Bible Society's World-wide Holiday Bible Reading Plan, Elder W. H. Jones, pastor of the church, announced today.

A feature of the campaign, through which the Bible Society hopes to establish a new interest in Bible study, will be the distribution of attractive bookmarks at as many homes in the county as possible, he said.

Adventists who participate in this plan of making brief visits to their neighbors will leave, besides the bookmark, a small leaflet containing a Scripture check list providing for reading the Bible through in a year. The leaflet has been provided at the expense of the 2,710 Adventist churches in North America, which are assuming the obligation of visiting one million homes in North America.

The Adventist church has designated Saturday, December 13, as World-wide Bible Sabbath, and many other organizations have been asked to set aside Sunday, December 14, as World-wide Bible Sunday, he said.

"This movement, in which we gladly cooperate, is designed by the Bible Society to combat the forces of lawlessness and unrest which seek to plunge this world into another terrible war," Elder Jones said.

GOP To Launch 1948 Campaign

RICHMOND (U.P.)—A member of the Republican State Central Committee, Robert C. Bayliss, says the GOP will begin immediately a campaign to carry Virginia in the 1948 presidential elections. He says the GOP welcomes financial and personal support from all Virginia Republicans.

No Extra Holiday For Federal Workers

Nearly all Government department buildings will be closed only one day for the holiday. This also applies to most stores and all banks and public libraries.

Schools in Arlington, Alexandria, as well as others in the metropolitan area will be closed Thursday and Friday. The long week end will run until Monday when things swing back to normal.

European Conditions Told To Civitans

ATA Official Urges Individual Aid To Program

"The tragedy of European starvation has made unmistakably clear the connection between the individual Arlingtonian and this Government's foreign affairs," Paul Reiber, legal advisor to the Air Transport Association, last night told the Arlington Civitan Club at its monthly dinner-meeting at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Speaking at the end of a "meatless Tuesday" dinner, Mr. Reiber said, "The chicken dinner we have just enjoyed, from appetizer to ice cream and coffee, would cost today in Paris all of $25. Certain it is that French people of our class, the middle income bracket, cannot afford such a meal. We Americans, who are consuming 17 per cent more food than in pre-war years, can fight this battle against hunger and chaos abroad by following the advice of Secretary of State Marshall, we can 'tighten our belts, clean our plates and push ourselves away from the table.'"

Food conservation for Europe's emergency was also the subject of addresses and audience questions at two other Arlington meetings last night. Colin F. Hamilton, chairman of the Arlington Citizens' Food Conservation Committee, was the speaker at a meeting at St. Charles Catholic Parish House of its council of the National Council of Catholic Women. And the Columbia Pike Citizens Association, meeting in the Patrick Henry School, were addressed on the same subject by Stephen Smith, president of the Catholic Charities of Arlington.

Two other Arlington groups are scheduled to discuss the problem at their regular meetings tonight. Mrs. Charles Planck, public relations chairman of the Arlington League of Women Voters, will address a joint meeting of American Legion Post 139 and its Women's Auxiliary at 8:15 p. m. at the Post home on Washington Blvd. And Allyn A. Walters will address the Fairlington Kiwanis Club at 6:30 dinner meeting in the Fairlington Methodist Church.

Mrs. Paul Reiber and Mrs. George Dalby, co-chairman of the speakers committee of the Arlington Citizens Food Conservation Committee, have arranged for the speakers at these and fifteen other meetings of county organizations for the period of the current food saving drive. They will be glad to furnish speakers on the subject to other Arlington organizations if interested parties will call either of them; Mrs. Reiber at Temple 0445, and Mrs. Dalby at Chestnut 3962.
