FIVE CENTS

MEDICS WELCOME DR. WELBURN HOME — A reception committee of the Arlington Medical Society last night surprised Dr. W. C. Welburn (right center) by meeting him at the National Airport when he flew in from Rochester, Minn., where he underwent major surgery at Mayo Clinic. Dr. Welburn has been County Coroner for 20 years and is the oldest practicing physician here. He is almost 82. Dr. Welburn is shown shaking hands with Dr. Herman Diamant, society president. In the center is Dr. William D. Dolan, Arlington Hospital pathologist.

County Seeks Home Unit Aide

A special nominating committee appointed by the Arlington County Board will seek recommendations from the county's various civic groups for representatives on the Regional Juvenile Detention Home Commission.

Arlington will have two representatives on the Commission, whose main job it will be to choose a site for the detention home. The Commission is chartered by an act of the General Assembly and has the power to eminent domain.

The Board committee has asked to recommend four persons for the Commission. The committee is comprised of Mrs. Elizabeth Weihe representing the League of Women Voters; Mrs. Lucy Bussey, Organized Women Voters; Mrs. Mary Hackman, Civic Federation; Mrs. J. C. Brown, Federation of Women's Clubs; and Mrs. Dora M. Ihe. Mrs. Weihe has been elected chairman of the group.

The Arlington committee met this week with members of the committees set up in Alexandria, Fairfax and Falls Church. The members received background information from a group headed by Mrs. Leone B. Buchholz of the Arlington County Board.

The commission will replace Mrs. Buchholz's committee, which has had difficulty for the last year and a half picking a site because it lacked the power of eminent domain. The Buchholz committee will meet with the Commission once it has been named and then disband.

The four committees are expected to select their nominees by October 22, at which time they will meet again to compare nominees before forwarding them to their respective governing bodies.

Meanwhile, it was announced that a superintendent of the detention home will be announced as soon as a site is selected. The choice will be made at that time so that the superintendent can oversee the construction.

The four governing bodies have already allocated funds for the $170,000 detention home. Arlington's share being $68,000. Each jurisdiction will name two members to the commission, with the exception of Falls Church which will name one.

Mrs. Buchholz's committee made attempts to select a site on two occasions but each time portents broke out in the Annandale area.

County Board Rivals Meet Next Tuesday

Arlington's two candidates for the County Board will meet on the same speakers platform for the first time at the monthly meeting of the Organized Women Voters on Tuesday, September 25, at Hogates. The two candidates are Dr. L. H. Blevins, candidate of the Arlington Independent Movement (AIM) and Curtis E. Tutthill, nominee of Arlingtonians for a Better County (ABC).

The joint speaking engagement will be the first for the two candidates in a series which will take them to the various sections of the County up until election time, November 6.

Added interest has been given this year's Board race because the 1957 County Board will make the first appointments to the School Board. Two School Board members are now serving the final year of their respective four-year terms.

Shock 'Vaccine' Method Is Found

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. — A possible lead towards developing a method of "conditioning" people against the potentially fatal "wound shock" that accompanies severe war and accident injuries was reported today.

Two Army researchers announced to the American Chemical Society that in laboratory tests, rats were made so shock-resistant that only 25 per cent succumbed to injuries which normally would be fatal to 75 per cent of them.

The rats were "conditioned" by giving them a series of electric shocks, similar to those given patients as a treatment in psychiatric hospitals. The shocks were administered once a day for several days.

Then, as a test of resistance to violent injury, the animals were subjected to terrific tumbling in a special whirling drum that was whirled 500 times, with the rats being dropped from the top to the bottom of the drum with each turn.

The Army scientists, in their report to the ACS's 130th annual meeting, stressed that "experiments are still not at the stage where application to humans is possible. Electric shock is not a procedure to be lightly applied to a normal person."

They implied they would seek less drastic means of possibly producing the same effect.

But they declared that the experiments with the animals do indicate the possibility of combating fatal shock from injury by altering the reactivity of part of the body's nervous system.

The report was prepared for delivery by Dr. Robert L. Griswold, of the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Washington, D. C. Co-author was Lt. Walter J. Decker.

Suez 'Deal' Urged

LONDON — Britain told the opening session of the second Suez conference today the United Nations Security Council would be consulted "at some stage." Three smaller nations quickly urged further negotiations with Egypt over the canal crisis.

Sweden, Iran and Spain called for more talks with Egypt after British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd had taken up the problem of what would happen next.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles laid before the 18-nation conference his plan to bypass Egyptian control of the canal with an association of canal users.

Dulles said membership in the proposed association would not involve "the assumption by any member of any obligation."

"It would, however, be hoped that members of the association would voluntarily take such action with respect to their ships and the payment of canal dues as would facilitate the work of the association and build up its prestige and authority, and consequently, its ability to serve," he said.

"Our readiness to cooperate with Egypt on a de facto, provisional basis may also suggest a provisional solution which the United Nations might find it useful to invoke while the search for a permanent solution goes on."

Then looking around the table at the other delegates, Dulles said: "It has, I know, been the thinking of many of us that if the principal parties to the Suez dispute are unable to find a solution by means of their own choosing, that the offices of the United Nations should be availed of."

The Soviet press predicted the conference was "doomed for failure" and termed the new Big Three proposal a "brazen and provocative challenge to Egypt." The Soviet Union, along with India, Ceylon and Indonesia, refused at the first Suez conference to join the other 18 nations in their demand for international control of the canal.

Of the canal's 1 major customers attending the second London Suez conference, only the United States, Britain and France so far appeared firmly behind the Dulles plan.

The proposal calls for establishment of a canal users' association to convey members' shipping through the Middle East waterway. The association would employ its own pilots for the tricky 103-mile trip through the canal, and pay a fee to Egypt.

Egypt already has rejected the idea. President Nasser said any attempt to put it into effect would be tantamount to a declaration of war. The managing director of the new Egyptian canal authority told a news conference that all ships using the waterway must use his outfit's pilots.

Dulles figures that Egyptian refusal to pass the users' association convoys through the Suez would give grounds for a resolution in the United Nations charging Egypt with violating the 1888 Constantinople Convention guaranteeing freedom of navigation through the waterway.

Informants said such action in the U. N. would be accompanied by a virtual boycott of the canal by its major users, depriving Nasser of revenue he needs badly. Dulles has denied any intention of organizing a boycott, but said the United States would lend dollars to West European Nations to buy American oil if their supplies from the Middle East were cut off.

Voter Registration Urged By Oct. 6

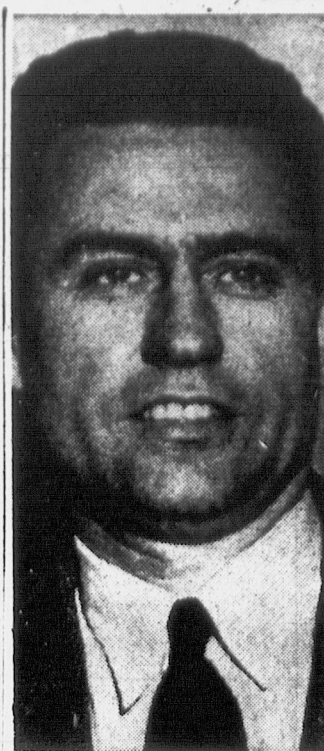

The Organized Women Voters of Arlington today urged all eligible voters to be sure to register in time for the general election on November 6. The deadline for registration is October 6.

The organization's appeal was made by Mrs. Laura T. Boldin, chairman of the civics committee.

Truant Alligator Back

OKLAHOMA CITY — Alfred the truant alligator was returned to his Lincoln Park Zoo pen last night after three days of freedom in a nearby lake.

Bob Jenni, zoo curator who has been after the eight-foot, 250-pound reptile constantly during the daytime, scored a freak shot with a spear gun.

CHAMBER SPEAKER — John P. Mills Jr., traffic and planning engineer for the Virginia Department of Highways, will be one of four speakers at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce at Evans Coffee Shop. He is a member of the Institute of Traffic Engineers, American Association of State Highway Officials, Southeastern Association of State Highway Officials, Highway Research Board and the Regional Planning Committee for metropolitan Washington. The Chamber will discuss Arlington's roads.

Fairfax County Farmers Have Higher Yield

Fairfax County farmers enjoyed their best season this year since 1945, with greatly increased yield, the County Agent's office announced today.

The county's major crop, wheat, produced a yield of between 40 and 55 bushels per acre this year, despite rain damage during early July. Larry H. Blair, assistant county agent attributed the crop to early spring rains. He said county farms produced only 20-25 bushels per acre in 1950.

Although final figures are not yet available Blair said that his office estimated hay and pasture growth is up 30 to 40 per cent. He explained that cattle now go directly from pasture to market, in the same condition that would normally require one month of grain feeding. The overall state yield of hay, however, is down about 7 per cent, he said.

"Corn production is the highest in many years," Mr. Blair said, with an average per acre yield of 50-60 bushels in the county. The state average for the year has been estimated at 47 bushels, which is nine more than last year, and one bushel higher than the state-wide record set in 1950.

Blair added that milk production, on the increase for several years, has continued on the upswing. He observed that prices for basic farm commodities, while still below a three year average from 1947 to 1949, have increased significantly over last year.

Shivers, Daniel Split On Ticket

AUSTIN, Tex. — Gov. Allan Shivers said yesterday he will support Republican President Eisenhower for re-election. Almost immediately, Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex.), gubernatorial nominee, came out for Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver.

Both Shivers and Daniel bolted the party in 1952 to support Eisenhower against Stevenson Texas went Republican.

Shivers told newsmen he would support President Eisenhower as "the best Democrat in the race." He said he did not think Stevenson had changed his ideas of a "strongly centralized government."

Shivers also said a "brainwashing campaign" is being waged against Texas voters in an effort to convince them that "the party is the most important issue — not the candidate."

Daniel made his statement after a telephone conversation with Stevenson.

"In view of Mr. Stevenson's statement that he would not reopen the tidal wars fight against Texas and that he opposes use of force in school integration cases, it is possible for me now to say definitely that I will support the Democratic nominee for president and vice president," Daniel's statement said.

Daniel's headquarters said his statement was not prompted in any way by Shivers' comments.

New Battle Shaping

Senate To Delay House-Approved School Fund Ban

RICHMOND (AP)—Virginia's Senate marked time today with administration forces apparently waiting for the House to send over two companion measures in Gov. Thomas B. Stanley's anti-integration school package.

The fund cutoff bill, the key to Stanley's program of "no state money for integrated schools anywhere," went through the House yesterday by a comfortable 61-37 margin, somewhat short of the administration-sought "mandate vote."

Supporters of the Stanley bill picked up two votes when the House gave its approval, however. Late Monday night the lower chamber stripped the measure of the local option escape clause attached before the bill was let out of the Appropriations Committee. The amendment was defeated by a 59-39 vote.

In the Senate, however, with opponents claiming 17 to 19 votes against the cutoff bill, administration strategists made no move for early action.

Sen. J. D. Hagood, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee to which the bill has been referred, indicated his committee was in no hurry to act. And he has not announced a committee meeting as yet, saying he wanted to check with his committee members.

Administration spokesmen attributed the delay to a desire to get the three major bills before the Senate together.

The two companion measures to the cutoff bill, up for debate today in the House of Delegates, would give the governor responsibility for all pupil placement and provide for state court appeal from his decisions and permit localities closing schools because of integration to have the General Assembly with the governor the administrative agent, take over the schools and operate them on a segregated basis under the state's police power.

The latter two bills, stripped of appropriations provisions to make them operative, came out of the House Education Committee yesterday. This administration maneuver would steer the bills away from the Appropriations Committee which handed the Stanley support a 10-7 setback by tagging on the escape provision the House later beat down.

It was expected an effort to get these provisions back into the bills would develop in the Senate Finance Committee or on the Senate floor.

The groundwork already has been laid by Senate opponents to

How District Delegates Voted

RICHMOND — (Special) — Here's how Tenth District Delegates to the Virginia General Assembly voted on Governor Stanley's key bill to withhold funds from integrated public schools:

For the Stanley bill: James M. Thomson, Alexandria City.

Against the Stanley bill: Omer Hirst of Fairfax and Falls Church.

John C. Webb of Fairfax and Falls Church.

Harrison Mann of Arlington.

Katherine H. Stone of Arlington.

William L. Winston of Arlington.

The cutoff bill to get their local option amendment, geared to the withholding weapon, put back on the Senate floor. Sen. Eugene Snyder Jr. of Richmond and 16 co-patrons yesterday dropped in a bill providing for localities to get out from under the fund cutoff and switching over to a local option placement plan.

Snyder's bill, however, has a variation from a similar one pending in the House, a change intended to make it acceptable to localities where the qualified Negro voters outnumber the white voters. The bill would require that the local school board state by resolution the switchover to the placement plan is necessary, before the referendum could be held. A second election could be called to switch back if the assignment operation were found to be unsatisfactory.

Woodward-Lothrop Opens Major Unit Here Thursday

When Robert E. L. Johnson rings the alarm during official opening ceremonies at 11 a.m. tomorrow, the largest single unit in the Seven Corners Shopping Center will be open for business.

Largest of the five area branches belonging to Woodward & Lothrop, the store will be one of three stores opening tomorrow, with grand opening of the whole Center scheduled for Oct. 4. Other stores opening tomorrow are Joseph R. Harris Co., and Franklin Simon.

Col. John Tyssowski, chairman of Woodward & Lothrop's board of directors, will preside for the program climaxed by presentation of the alarm box by Mr. Johnson, executive vice president.

Dr. John R. Hutcheson, president of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Educational Foundation, Inc., will give the main address during opening ceremonies.

Platform guests representing civic leaders and officials of Northern Virginia communities, as well as store officers, will be introduced by Andrew Parker, president of Woodward & Lothrop.

Robert A. Peck, president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, will give one of three responses. Others speaking will be William H. Hunt and James Anderson, presidents respectively of the Fairfax County and Falls Church Chambers of Commerce.

Following organ music by Ed. Ed. McIntyre and the invocation by the Rev. Harold E. Skelton, AMVET Chaplain, Gene Archer will sing the "Star Spangled Banner."

Marking the 34th anniversary of the opening in New England of the first branch store in the United States, Woodward & Lothrop officials Tuesday entertained representatives of the metropolitan and local press at a luncheon and preview of the new store.

today will be the tuition grant bill, providing public money for a child's private schooling — the Gray Commission recommendation embodied in Stanley's program.

The House Courts of Justice Committee yesterday reported out the seven bills aimed at the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People and other organizations seeking to influence legislation or public opinion, or stirring up litigation between the races.

Armory Here In 5 Years

The Military District of Washington revealed yesterday that it has its eyes on Arlington as a site for a 1,000 capacity armory under the U. S. Army Reserve training program.

Col. Robert G. Lowe, District commander, said that plans are being made for the construction of five armories and nine smaller training centers in this area by 1960.

The proposed armory in Arlington is second on the list, preceded by Riverdale, Md., and followed by Rockville, Md., Alexandria and Silver Spring, Md.

Col. Lowe said that the armories and training centers are part of a vast expansion and building program for the Army Reserve. No specific sites were announced but previous reports indicate that an armory might be located at Arlington Hall.

Early last year it appeared that an armory, which also can be used as a civic center, might cost considerable money despite federal and state aid for construction. If federal land is used a major problem would be overcome.

Rep. Joel T. Broyhill said recently that the county did not have to worry about getting the land, but that getting volunteers either for the National Guard or Reserve program would be the main headache. He urged veterans groups to get behind the campaign.

In addition to Arlington, the Military District will construct 1,000 capacity armories in Alexandria and Silver Spring. The armory at Riverdale would accommodate 600 persons while the one at Rockville would hold a capacity of 400.

Of the nine training centers two would be constructed in the District, four in Silver Spring, two in Alexandria and one east of Seven Corners.

Hannowell Gets Real Estate Post

Charles L. Hannowell of East Falls Church, yesterday was appointed by Judge Walter T. McCarthy as a member of the county reassessment board, of which J. Maynard Magruder is chairman. Mr. Hannowell succeeds Edward B. Wright on the board. Mr. Wright has moved from Arlington and is no longer eligible to serve.

Mr. Magruder said the appointment was made on the recommendation of the board.

Mr. Hannowell served six years ago on an Arlington reassessment board and consequently is familiar with the work. He is engaged in the real estate business.

Kentucky Ousts Negro Students

STURGIS, Ky. (AP) — An order barring eight Negro students from Sturgis High School and telling them to enroll at Dunbar Negro High School has been issued.

Dunbar is at Morganfield, 11 miles from here.

The order was prepared by the Union County Board of Education last night. It bars any Negro from attending any white school in the county.

The Negro students have attended classes at the Sturgis school under the watchful eye of armed National Guardsmen. The troops were ordered into this western Kentucky mining farming community by Gov. A. B. Chandler Sept. 6 after a fist-swinging mob turned back the Negro students.

The Union board's action quickly followed a ruling from Kentucky Atty. Gen. Jo M. Ferguson, who held the Negro students couldn't attend the Sturgis school since "action towards integration must be taken by the board itself, either voluntarily or upon orders by a court, before integration begins."
