

In case you don't realize it, there's a war going on in Arlington. Not quite a "shootin' war", but close to that and anything can happen before a truce is declared next Tuesday morning when the voting booths open at 7 o'clock.

So far nobody has indulged in a kidnapping, but that could happen anytime. We understand Mr. Charles Orlando Pratt has two bodyguards. One guards him and the other guards the first guard. A tipster called up to say a mysterious prowler was taking snapshots of Oscar R. LeBeau's house. We asked what the snapshots were for, but the phone connection was broken suddenly and that's that. We went up on Jackson Street and the LeBeau home still stood, so it must have been snapshots and not a bomb.

It is reliably reported around the Court House that Lawrence Douglas decided not to run for reelection because he felt he had reached the age in life when any man is entitled to speak for himself and to heck with the consequences.

Some years ago there was talk about Arlington again becoming part of the District of Columbia. We never took much stock in the rumors, but rather thought that if the thing ever came to a head we would see a political battle royal that would go down in history, and might even produce a new paragraph for the Encyclopedia as an illustration of how the American political scene can look. But this bond issue-School Board campaign isn't doing so badly when it comes to piling crisis upon crisis, alarm upon alarm, and warning upon warning.

A stranger reading the literature (and press statements) of the Greater Arlington Association would conclude there is a deep-laid plot here to steal the school system and sell the rest of Arlington down the river for a song. There's one thing we always miss at election time in Arlington, and that is the old custom of sticking up campaign posters and placards on trees and poles. It seems Arlington has a law against that sound old campaign procedure, but it robs the fight for votes of a lot of color. We must admit it also saves a lot of trash collecting.

After the voting's over we're going to take a couple of days off and catch up on our gardening. The campaign has played hob with our weed-killing activities, and with all the rain that fell this week we're going to have a busy time. By the time we get to it, there will be at least one weed in the garden for each statement issued in the campaign, and that's going to be a lot of weeds.

Sen. Cain Will Talk At G.O.P. Dinner

Arlington Republicans will hold a dinner rally at the Washington Golf and Country Club at 7 p. m., Wednesday, May 28, 1947. Principal speaker will be Senator Harry P. Cain of Washington. Other guests will be Robert Woods, State chairman, of Pearisburg; Carl Marshall, district chairman, Curtis Dozier and Earl Lutz of Richmond. Mrs. Frank Goodpastor of Bristol, and a representative of the National Committee, according to the announcement by Talmage Wilcher, chairman of the dinner rally.

It is expected that 150 party workers, precinct chairman and State and county officers will gather at the Washington Golf and Country Club to lay plans for the coming elections. It is expected the Republicans will put a complete county and State ticket in the field, Mr. Wilcher said.

Board of Trade Hears Report on Probable Bond Cost DeLashmutter Says General Bond Issue Would Be 'Sound Business'

Support of the $5,150,000 bond issue for general county improvements would be "sound business," Board Chairman Basil M. DeLashmutter told some 50 members of the Arlington Board of Trade Monday. As to the proposed school bond issue of $6,000,000, he said that as he is not a member of the School Board, and has not had an opportunity to thoroughly study it, he was not qualified to speak on it.

A life-long resident of Arlington, Mr. DeLashmutter said, "I am in reality a city and has secured all its improvements 'on borrowed money'."

The speaker explained the County Board arrived at the $5,150,000 figure, which will be voted on May 27, after many conferences and much discussion. He said the Board felt it is a "conservative" figure.

Would Sell Bonds Slowly
The Board increased the tax rate for 1947-48 by 25 cents, Mr. DeLashmutter said, having the proposed bond issues in mind. He said the Board felt the people are more able to pay the additional tax this year than perhaps five years hence, that the extra revenue would carry a $5,000,000 general county bond issue, and that in the three years before the 25-cent rate boost would be needed for amortization of bonds, it can be used for necessary capital improvements. If the bond issue does not pass, he said, the county would be in a "sorry state" had the Board not voted the increase.

Any bonds approved by the electorate May 27 will be sold only as the proceeds in specific amounts are needed. "If the citizens do not have sufficient confidence in the Board to sell these bonds at the proper time, they had better change the Board membership," he declared.

Mr. DeLashmutter concluded by pointing out that one particular item to be built under a county bond issue, which he termed "not only essential but vital," is an incinerator which is listed at $750,000. He said he would have preferred letting the people vote on each separate item of work contemplated but was "shouted down" in Board conferences when the majority favored lumping the construction projects.

Up to People
He said he believed the School Board arrived at its $6,000,000 figure without "prejudice," and that since its bond issue will be submitted on the ballot in sections, the people can readily vote for what they want. "It is the duty of the School Board and the County Board," Mr. DeLashmutter said, "to spend the money to the best interests of the county if it is voted. The issues are before the people to decide and they should think them out thoroughly because there is no turning back once the vote is taken."

Edwin Enzor, president of the Board of Trade, asked Mr. DeLashmutter if it would be legally possible to defer action on the bond issues beyond May 27. Mr. DeLashmutter said the only way would be to vote the bond issues down, and

Hospital Campaign Moving Slowly

First Week Yields Less Than 10% of Campaign Goal

Less than 10 per cent of the $47,000 goal for the Arlington Hospital Fund Campaign was collected at the end of the first week of solicitation, John F. Phelan, drive director, said yesterday.

"I am seriously concerned at the slowness with which returns are coming in," said Mr. Phelan. "With our campaign one-third over, contributions to the hospital total less than $4,000. It is an absolute necessity that we make our goal if we are to continue to meet the standards of care and service which the residents of the county expect from their hospital. I'm sure that no thinking Arlington citizen will fail to realize the importance of his generous contribution in the achievement of our goal."

"The Arlington Hospital is the only hospital in Arlington. It is entirely dependent on contributions from the community which it serves to make up the running deficit experienced by all hospitals. There are no other funds available for this purpose—no county funds, no State funds, no government funds."

"The people of Arlington are being asked for donations to the hospital in their homes, and only at home," Mr. Phelan stressed. "No county residents will be asked to make any contributions to the hospital through their office or place of business. Local firms are being solicited as business units, but individual employees will not be included in the company's donation. I emphasize this because this method of solicitation is unique with the Arlington Hospital campaign, and may not be clearly understood as yet by county residents."

The Arlington Hospital drive, which opened May 12, will continue through June 2. Over-all chairman of the campaign is Thomas W. Phillips.

Fourth Annual Tea For Hospital

The Arlington Business and Professional Women's Club will sponsor its fourth annual silver tea for the benefit of the Arlington Hospital Sunday, May 25, from 4 until 7 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Freeland Chew, 1502 North Edison Street.

Miss Sally Loving is chairman of arrangements.

Dr. Stone, School Trustee, Urges Change in Board Selection Method

Abandonment of the School Trustee Electoral Board system of selecting School Board members is advocated by a member of the Electoral Board, Dr. Harold A. Stone, who was appointed to the post last year.

Citing his experience in school surveys and work with school officials, and the fact that "over 80 per cent of the school boards are going to press Wednesday night," Dr. Stone said "I believe the intense interest of citizens in public education goes hand in hand with their control of educational policies. I have found very little undesirable politics in the school systems I have studied."

New P.T.A. Head Avoids Ceremony

Cook Says He Will Not Attend Council Installation

A side issue in the referendum fight which boiled up this week, after school administration forces captured all offices of the Arlington Council of P.T.A.s last Thursday, developed yesterday to the point where the newly elected president, Harry C. Cook, said he would not attend a meeting May 28 called for installation of officers by Mrs. Art Brown, out-going president.

At the same time, Abner Robertson, director of the Virginia Branch of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers said he would be here to conduct the installation Wednesday night at Swanson Junior High.

Mr. Cook earlier this week called a special meeting for tonight of the Council, saying it was "to take a stand regarding political issues" to install officers and receive Council reports. Mrs. Brown declared Mr. Cook did not have the right yet to call a meeting, and on Wednesday Mr. Cook cancelled his call.

Mr. Robertson told The Sun yesterday that he had been swamped with phone calls from Arlington P.T.A. officers and others who wanted to know whether Mrs. Brown was still president, or if Mr. Cook became president when elected, and which meeting was Bus Riders File Petition With I.C.C.

A resolution asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to suspend the effective date of the rate increase of the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Company, now pending, was filed by the Arlington County Bus Riders Association before midnight Wednesday, following a meeting of some 60 members. The resolution asked for a public hearing and complete study by the commission.

F. J. Ortman was elected president Wednesday with Francis Clair, vice president; Courtney Fletcher, secretary; and C. J. Wertz, treasurer.

At the meeting a survey was made of the members, including their complaints against Arnold buses and suggestions to improve service within Arlington and between the county and the District of Columbia.

The association will hold regular monthly meetings and the next will be at 8 o'clock, the place to be announced.

Cuppett Will Run For Board; Ball, Jr., O. Lewis Announce

Newly-Appointed Board Member to Seek Election; Carretta to Try for Delegate

Harry W. Cuppett, who took his oath of office Monday as a member of the Arlington County Board after being appointed by Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy, told The Sun yesterday his present plan is to run for election to the Board in November. He will attend his first Board meeting tomorrow.

Also announcing candidacies this week are Frank L. Ball, Jr., for the State Senate, subject to the Democratic Primary, and Oren R. Lewis, Republican, for Commonwealth's attorney.

Albert A. Carretta will file in a few days for the House of Delegates subject to the Democratic Primary, The Sun learned.

Mr. Cuppett, 56, replaces Mrs. Elizabeth B. Magruder, who resigned because of her health and whose term would have expired December 31. He is a native of Washington and has lived in Arlington since 1899, operating a hardware store in Ballston for 20 years. Prior to that he was a pressman with the Government Printing Office.

A member of the Democratic Party, Mr. Cuppett said the appointment came as a "complete surprise." This week he expressed himself as a believer in "sound financial practice and a pay-as-you-go system." He is a director of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce and of the Old Dominion Bank and a member of the Ballston Fire Department, the Arlington Democratic Club and Columbia Lodge, A. F. and A. M. His daughter, Mrs. Hazel Long, is a deputy sheriff here.

Will Oppose Fenwick
Mr. Ball, an attorney, will oppose Charles R. Fenwick, who has already announced for the Primary. Mr. Ball is the son and law partner of the former State Senator Frank L. Ball. He was born and educated here and went in the Army as a private in 1941 and was released in 1943 as a major.

An original member of the Board of Management of the Arlington "Y", Mr. Ball is secretary of the official board of the Mount Olivet Methodist Church and is vice president of the Young Democratic Club. He is married to the former Miss Marie Jensen and they have a daughter, three.

"I shall never be satisfied until our schools are at the top of the list in the entire country," Mr. Ball said in making his announcement. "I think that such is the goal of everyone who has gone through our school system."

Lewis Is a Republican
Mr. Lewis, who opposes Denman T. Rucker, assistant to the Commonwealth's attorney, who has announced subject to the Democratic Primary. Active in civic and political circles here for 10 years, Mr. Lewis served as chairman of the Republican County Committee during the last presidential campaign. He is a director of the Arlington Board of Trade and a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Club, Lyon Village Citizens' Association, Board of Management of the Arlington "Y", Washington Golf and Country Club and Harmony Lodge, Washington.

Women Disown Election Pamphlet

Mrs. Ruth Marcey, president of the Organized Women Voters, yesterday said a pamphlet is being circulated urging voters to back the School Board change and proposed bond issues, over the signature of the organization. She declared the policy of the group is to study both sides of any question, but not to influence voters.

The Women Voters were asked for a $10 contribution, Mrs. Marcey said, to help defray the expense of a campaign to get out the vote. She said her organization has been "extremely embarrassed" by the misrepresentation to which it has been subjected.

Bids Submitted On School Additions

Bids for two elementary school additions were opened today and will be submitted to the School Board Tuesday for confirmation. Low bidder in both instances was Lee T. Turner of Washington for a combined bid of $232,934 on the two jobs. One is for the Stonewall Jackson addition of six classrooms, a library, room, multipurpose room, new toilet facilities and new heating plant throughout. The other is for Woodlawn School and consists of three classrooms, a multipurpose room and alterations to the heating plant.

Referendum Returns At The Sun Office

The offices of The Sun will be open Tuesday night until returns are complete on the bond issue and School Board referenda elections. Returns will be available by phone to all who call OWens 0125, Owens 0124 or Chestnut 3563. It is improbable that any figures will be available until 10 p. m.

EDITORIAL

BALLOTING next Tuesday will end a bitter election campaign in Arlington, perhaps the bitterest in decades. Much heat has been generated and personalities have been indulged in freely, though no one is running for office. The only true issues are whether Arlington is to sell improvement bonds, and whether it is to change the method of selecting School Board members.

The decision of the voters will exert a decisive influence on the community's development and policy for years to come. We believe sincerely the choice lies between affirmation or denial of progress.

It became apparent to this newspaper before the war that capital improvements of the scope necessary to conform to Arlington's population growth could be acquired only by borrowing the money. Three years ago this paper began advocating preparations for a post-war bond issue, or bond issues, with which to provide in Arlington the public facilities its position as an ideally located suburb of Washington, with a rising population, demands.

Will the bond issues require more taxes? Of course they will. But does anyone ever get anything worth having for nothing?

Will the bond issues make Arlington a somewhat better place in which to live? We sincerely believe they will.

One of the staunchest opponents of the bond issues, a man who has held high public office nearly 16 years, is telling his listeners Arlington will be at the crossroads of her destiny next Tuesday. He urges a "No" vote to keep on the right course.

We agree Arlington is approaching a crossroads Tuesday. One path before the voters goes forward and upward. It is the path of progress, of the pursuit of betterment. It is the path the voters who will say "Yes" choose to take. The other path veers around and dodges the hill of community growth. It is the path of negation, the course of least effort, the road which denies Arlington a chance to become the best place to make your home in the area of the Nation's Capital.

County Votes Tuesday On School Board, Bonds

Polls Open 7 to 7 Daylight Time to Climax Hotly Disputed Campaign on Three Issues

The polls in Arlington's 11 precincts will open their doors at 7 a. m. daylight saving time Tuesday, May 27, when registered voters may cast their secret ballots on three of the most controversial questions that have ever faced the electorate. It will probably be long after midnight when the count is finished and it is decided whether Arlington will change its method of selecting School Board members, and whether the community will launch a $5,150,000 general improvement program, plus one for schools which may total $6,000,000.

How many votes will be cast is anybody's guess, since the pros and cons have been busy getting the some 30,000, who met the poll tax deadline of December 19, 1945, to register as a prerequisite to voting. With the polls closing at 7 p. m., daylight saving time, there will be plenty of opportunity after the closing hours of business and Government offices for residents to vote.

Both the Citizens' Committee for School Improvement and the Greater Arlington Association will provide transportation to and from the polls for registered voters May 27. Those wishing transportation from the Citizens' Committee may call any of the following numbers: GLebe 3233, CHestnut 0699, CHestnut 4415, GLebe 32, GLebe 5761, CHestnut 9244, CHestnut 3687, TEmple 7090, TEmple 5511 or JACkson 1414. The Greater Arlington Association number is OWens 2940.

THE PROS—

Leading the fight for the three referenda has been the Citizens' Committee for School Improvement, augmented by the Civic Federation and the Better Government League.

The Citizens' Committee closed its public campaign with a pre-referendum rally last evening at Claude Swanson Junior High School when it presented speakers favoring direct election of School Board members and supporting the two bond issues.

Speakers at the rally last night were Ivan A. Booker, assistant director of the research division of the National Education Association and former president of the Arlington County Council of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Florence Cannon, chairman of the revenues and expenditures committee of the Arlington Civic Federation and former president of the Federation; Mrs. Ruby Simpson, president of the Civic Federation and the first woman to serve on the Arlington School Board; Mrs. Chester Jones, voters' service chairman of the Arlington League of Women Voters; and Irvin Schmitt, former superintendent of schools in Davenport, Iowa, and now chief of the farm volunteers' division in the agricultural department's extension service.

Oscar R. LeBeau, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, described the proposal of the Greater Arlington Association this week for a "survey" of the Arlington school system in advance of the May 27 referendum as "an absurd suggestion, totally lacking in either sincerity or good sense."

"It is obvious," Mr. LeBeau said, "that the Greater Arlington Association made its proposal for a survey of the school system, to be completed in the short time left before the approaching referendum, as another of its desperate measures to obscure the issue, to stake and to oppose and obstruct educational progress in Arlington. That the proposal was not made in good faith is clearly demonstrated by the fact that no comprehensive, sound or intelligent survey of any school system could possibly be completed in the few days remaining before the referendum. The Civic Federation has been surveying the school system for nearly 25 years and the Citizens' Committee has been at work on school studies for more than a year."

The two opposing groups met in a panel discussion on the question of changing the present method of selecting School Board members Tuesday evening before three P.T.A. groups in a joint session at Claude Swanson Junior High School. Mrs. John H. Woodworth and Robert L. Moravetz represented the Citizens' Committee and William P. Ames and John Pearson the Greater Arlington group.

Speaking on behalf of the Civic Federation's special committee for direct election, before the Cherry St. P.T.A. Monday, Harrison Mann attacked the pamphlet recently mailed out by the Greater Arlington group. "It is an appeal for the unwary and to catch the

THE CONS—

The Greater Arlington Association, bitterly fighting a change in the School Board selection method and both bond issues, has on its side several of Arlington's officials, including Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas and Sheriff Homer G. Bauserman, and most of the outstanding realtors. Calvin Hales, secretary to Congressman Howard W. Smith has also taken a leading role in the opposition movement.

The Sun was told repeatedly this week that persons calling at Representative Smith's office on other matters were questioned as to how they felt about the referenda. They were urged, according to reports, to defeat all three measures.

Charles O. Pratt, president of the Great Arlington Association, yesterday cited "cooperation" of the School Board in assuring a vote on the proposed school bond issue, in reply to what he termed "increasingly bitter charges of Citizens' Committee speakers that our 'undemocratic' School Board must be replaced in a direct political election."

"Although both supporters and opponents of the existing method of selecting the School Board agree that board members are opposed to the extraordinary bond issues advocated, we find the School Board has proceeded in a most democratic manner in certifying the bond issues for an early public decision. In this manner, the board unquestionably demonstrated that it is democratic and that it respects and desires to be advised of the school views of Arlington residents."

Mr. Pratt admitted his group is using facilities of the Democratic County Committee in distributing literature in support of the present method of appointing the School Board. "Our Association," he said, "has been permitted to use the mailing stencils of the Democratic Committee and we only wish we had the Republican lists at our disposal. The names are readily available in telephone directories and other sources but in the brief period we have to counteract the concerted propaganda drive of the Citizens' Committee for School Improvement, we have welcomed any short-cuts. We cannot understand why the propaganda-wise Citizens' Committee did not think of this first. We would have no objection if they secured similar cooperation."

J. Maynard Magruder, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, said yesterday.

"Neither I nor the Democratic Committee has given authorization to this or any group to use the committee's mailing list. Since the Greater Arlington Association claims to have access to this mailing list, I personally believe and shall recommend to the Democratic Executive Committee this evening (May 22) that the mailing list be made available to any group that requests its use."

Mr. Pratt said any backing the referenda are aspirants to public office, and cited as examples Mrs. Florence Cannon and Mrs. Charles E. Planck, who have announced for the

Who Can Vote Tuesday

Because of confusion as to who is qualified to vote in the referenda election Tuesday, May 27, The Sun is publishing the regulations issued by John W. Jackson, secretary of the Arlington Electoral Board.

All who were qualified to vote in the November, 1946, election may vote Tuesday.

Citizens otherwise qualified and who personally paid by December 10, 1946, all assessable poll taxes for the years 1944, 1945 and 1946 may vote Tuesday. These persons, which groups includes those who paid assessable poll taxes on or before December 10, but were not qualified to vote in the November, 1946, election must present their poll tax receipts for the three years to the judges of election. The law, Mr. Jackson said, does not provide for current poll tax lists, and the only list available to the judges at the polls will be the lists for the 1946 Fall elections; Persons who served in the armed forces and who have been discharged are required to bring their discharge papers;

Persons becoming 21 years of age between January 1, 1947,
