AIM to Control Board Regardless of Election

By ALEX R. PRESTON

Regardless of the outcome of Tuesday's election for two seats on the County Board, the Arlington Independent Movement—or those who think along similar lines—will retain control of the governing body.

In this respect, the race is different from the School Board contests where the opposing slate, designated the Convention candidates, now have control and stand a chance of losing it.

In other respects, the two races are closely interwoven. One reason for this is that while both agencies make their own budgets, final approval and the ability to set a tax rate to meet expenses rests with the County Board.

Going All Out

Consequently the "school crowd," personified by the Convention candidates, are going all out to elect those who hold similar views to the County Board. One of the issues of the present campaign has been the County Board's trimming of the School Board budget for the current year thus making it impossible—according to Convention candidates—to carry on a preprimary program inaugurated last year.

County Board candidates are Arthur Pomponio, a builder, and Aubrey B. Leggett, a retired Navy captain, both on the AIM slate, and Ralph Kaul, real estate developer and David L. Krupsaw, a mattress manufacturer, for the Convention slate.

Both Mr. Kaul and Mr. Krupsaw were nominated originally by a group known as the Arlingtonians for a Better County (ABC).

AIM is a coalition of Democrats, Republicans and Independents. ABC was organized along similar lines but with more of the nonpartisan element represented. It was, perhaps, the nonpartisan influence, which also was behind the School Board Nominating Convention that eventually resulted in a merger of ABC into the convention slate.

Seats at stake are being vacated by Robert Peck, elected as a Republican four years ago but now one of AIM's leaders, and Alvin Kimel, elected on an AIM ticket.

Members Named

Those remaining on the board are Mrs. Leone Buchholz, re-elected last year on an AIM ticket; George M. Rowse, Jr., like Mr. Peck, elected as a Republican but now prominent in AIM affairs; and Wesley W.

Cooper, a Democrat, not identified with AIM but who, nevertheless, characterized his election as a victory for the "conservative" element in the county.

Mr. Kaul is president of a land development, building and financing firm bearing his name. He served for three years on the Board of Zoning Appeals, was chairman of the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Housing and is a member of the Citizens' Committee for School Improvement. He is married, has two children and lives at 1201 North Nash street.

Krupsaw Background

Mr. Krupsaw is a managing partner of American Wholesalers in Washington; president of the American Bedding Co., Inc., and is a member of the citizens' Committee for School Improvement, the Mental Hygiene Society of Northern Virginia, and the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Mr. Krupsaw is married and has two children and lives at 1097 South Twenty-sixth road.

Mr. Pomponio heads a building firm bearing his name. He conducted a campaign this year to raise funds for a new Catholic high school in Northern Virginia. He is a former president of the Northern Virginia Builders' Association and has been active in the Red Cross and March of Dimes drives. He identifies himself as "a long-time Democrat," and makes his home with his family at 880 North Jacksonville street.

Capt. Leggett retired from the Navy this year. He holds a master's degree in electrical engineering from Columbia University and specialized in planning in the Navy. He has maintained a residence in Arlington since 1925 and now lives at 2406 Fort Scott drive with his family. He is now serving on the Arlington Development Committee and is past president of the Arlington Ridge Civic Association.

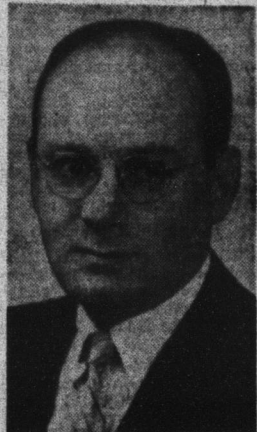

In the present campaign, charges made by aspirants for one office frequently are answered by those for another jointly with the result that office.

2,813 New Voters Registered in Montgomery

Montgomery County added 2,813 new voters to the permanent registry list at 16 special registration days during October. It was reported today by the county's election supervisors.

Of the total, 1,595 signed up as Democrats; 1,014 registered as Republicans, while 204 did not indicate party preference.

Heaviest registration came in the Bethesda area, where 416 Democrats, 391 Republicans and 55 independent voters became county voters.

Silver Spring trailed, with 513 Democrats, 239 Republicans and 63 independents. Four Corners listed 205 Democrats, 96 Republicans and 33 Democrats on the new-voter rolls.

In November, 1954, when the last complete tabulation of county voters was compiled, the county had 51,955 Democrats, 33,870 Republicans and 5,822 independent voters. These figures have been whittled down by deaths and the exodus of residents from the county.

Battle Sees Withholding Of Integration Funds

NEW YORK (AP)—Former Gov. John S. Battle of Virginia said here today he thought local governmental officials in "many sections" of his State "will decline to appropriate funds for the operation of integrated schools."

Mr. Battle said he did not think the State would assume the cost of operation and responsibility of direction of the schools "in our time under a policy of integration."

The Charlottesville lawyer spoke at the University Club before the fifth annual "Report to Top Management" meeting sponsored by the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce. About 60 Virginia officials and industrialists attended.

Mr. Battle told the businessmen the situation in Virginia created by the Supreme Court decision ruling out public school segregation was "acute" and "critical."

"Apparently the Supreme Court under its construction of the Constitution has the power to say to a State or locality that it cannot have separate but equal schools but there is no system short of a dictatorship, there is no constitutional theory short of the complete abrogation and

Action Delayed On Legality of Political Sign

The legality of an Arlington political campaign sign remains unsettled in Arlington today, but apparently the billboarded message will be on view throughout the remainder of the county campaign.

Judge Hugh Cregger, in Arlington County Court yesterday, granted a continuance until November 15 of a zoning case. The action was taken at the request of the defendant, Roy G. Allman, whose property on Arlington boulevard, between North Kent street and Court House road, bears an Arlington Independent Movement sign.

Edward B. Hincks contends the sign was erected in violation of a county zoning ordinance because a permit was not obtained. The complainant, who is advisor to the Convention's slate opposing AIM candidates in the county and school board races, declared the continuance would defeat the end of justice, since the election is Tuesday.

Judge Cregger noted that anyone may have a continuance to prepare his case.
