estate tax rate by 17 cents," he said. "I favor a truth-in-borrowing statement," he added. Until such a statement is forthcoming, he will take no stand he said.

Lampe said he is against "absolute no growth."

"We must decide where we want growth," the Republican argued.

Lampe said he was concerned about what he termed a lack of policemen and firemen and blamed the county board for not providing enough money to hire what is needed in those departments.

On open space, the board should put down a six-month option on desired property, Lampe said, to prevent an escalated price and to let voters know exactly what land and how much the county would buy.

Pratt, a South Arlingtonian fighting for better services, better streets and better planning for his area, as well as for what he calls the neglected areas of the county, told the SUN yesterday that he is "the only candidate to have the guts to come out for I-66."

"I am for I-66 because I think most Arlingtonians are for the road and I am for a balanced transportation system. I think it will remove heavy traffic from neighborhood streets along the right of way. This has happened in my area since the completion of the I-95 mixing bowl, and I live less than 200 feet from Shirley Highway (I-95.)

Pratt also said that he is not against the bond issue per se, but that "we are trying to do too much too fast. I am most concerned about additional school bonds at a time when the school population is dropping." Pratt cited a $15 million bond issue last year for an advanced waste facility (sewers) and $6 million bond issue for the past three years for school construction.

Pratt said that both Independents and Republicans "have botched growth development in the county. We don't even have sidewalks in Rosslyn, 10 years after they started (high-rise) construction in the area. In the Jefferson Davis corridor, the development has moved faster than the development of public services, particularly mass transit."

Saying that his candidacy is "somewhat of an experiment to see if, for the first time in 20 years, we could have a board member who is just an independent citizen," Pratt admitted that his opponents might be "in some areas more qualified to serve" than he. "It's not a main issue," he added.

Pratt favors a "rape control reporting center staffed by a full-time psychologist sensitive to the medical, emotional and investigatory needs of the victim. Statistics indicate that 4 of 5 rapes go unreported because of fear by the victim of what she must go through afterwards."

The former Civic Federation president worries about the economic squeeze on senior citizens "caused by escalating costs of government" and thinks the Independents' providing tax and rent relief for the elderly "is a small step in the right direction."

"I am for more efficient management of the (county) bureaucracy," Pratt notes.

Pratt, 51, who lives at 1512 S. 20th St. and is a 23-year county resident, works on the legal staff of the Federal Communication Commission. He served several years ago as president of the Arlington Ridge Civic Association, is "neither a Republican or Democrat" but was briefly involved (10 years ago) with ABC when "I thought they were truly an independent, non-partisan activity."

Lampe, 46, who lives at 2914 N. Greencastle St., has lived in the county 21 years.

Bozman, 48, 4219 N. 39th St., is also a long-time county resident.

Skyline Unit To Be Demolished

witnesses. The Smith company had claimed it was losing $100,000 a week because of construction delays.

The supervisors have authorized some demolition work on the building which collapsed but are at least a month away from making any decision about whether to allow reconstruction of that building.

In an unrelated Skyline development, David Sutherland, a Republican candidate for re-election to the House of Delegates from Northern Fairfax, issued a strong statement yesterday charging that unlawful work was taking place on the garage which lies between the two buildings.

His statement said: "At Skyline Towers they are removing the last support columns that failed when the garage collapsed bringing death down on eight workers. The last evidence that might tell what was wrong with the design for the garage or construction methods is being taken away. This removal violates local orders to hold-up work."

A citizens group, which has been agitating for months in an attempt to open new investigations into the collapse has frequently suggested that deficiencies in the construction of the garage was in some way related to the death of the eight men.

County officials have maintained, however, that the garage fell only under the weight of millions of pounds of concrete and that nothing was wrong with it structurally.

Sutherland implied that if construction of the garage is allowed to proceed without proper tests "this time the mistakes won't be found until hundreds of cars fall through a defective garage structure."

Sutherland was unavailable for comment on whether he was actually suggesting that the Skyline garage would collapse or whether he was merely criticizing what he feels are deficient county procedures.

Smith company officials could not be reached for comment on Sutherland's statement.
