

Vickery Conducts Elderly Day

Delegate Raymond E. Vickery, Democrat from the 18th legislative district, recently conducted a walking tour of several sites in Fairfax County to highlight the problems of Northern Virginia's 200,000 elderly citizens. Vickery was accompanied by the Reverend John Schertzer, director of Fellowship House, a residence for the elderly in Reston.

At Groveton Elementary School, the pair observed the only Senior Nutrition Project in Fairfax County. More than 40 participants were at work on a wide variety of ceramics projects. "While much more than just a place to get a meal, the project is really a new type of extended family," commented Ms. Suzanne Lesser, a coordinator of the Nutrition Project. According to Vickery, "This project is a success in terms of what it does both physically and spiritually for the elderly. Another project is being planned for the northern part of the County, and I hope we can get it under way by the end of the year."

Vickery and Schertzer also toured the facilities of Fairfax Nursing Center. Vickery had visited the nursing home in 1973 and was pleased with the additional services and physical improvements in the facility. He noted, "While our efforts should continue to be directed toward the de-institutionalization of the elderly, well-administered nursing home facilities can and should remain a valid resource in the care of the aged."

The day's activities concluded with an informal meeting between Vickery and a group of elderly residents living at Fellowship House in Reston. Vickery discussed the efforts of the General Assembly in the field of aging, and several areas where legislation would be introduced in next year's session.

This week Vickery will testify before the Fairfax County Commission on Aging, where he will discuss the violent and non-violent victimization of the elderly. According to Vickery, "Crime against the elderly must be a target of state and local action. The aged are not only the victims of violent crime, but also are particularly subject to fraud and other abuses."

Grotos 'Friends' Operate Office

The "Friends of Dorothy Grotos" are operating a headquarters for Mrs. Grotos, an independent candidate for the Arlington County Board, at 758 South 23rd Street.

The headquarters, manned by volunteers, is open daily from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Mrs. Grotos, who resides at 207 North Irving St. with her husband, Gunnar, and four children, two of whom are in W & L High School and two others in Long Branch Elementary School, points out that she is deeply interested in Central and South Arlington problems, and that the members of the present all ABC-Democrat Board all reside in one area of North Arlington.

Mrs. Grotos is contending in her campaign appearances before various civic associations that the people of the county are not getting full value for the taxes they pay on homes and businesses because of extravagances of the present board. Apartment tenants, she declares, should be as deeply concerned as home owners because a substantial portion of their rents include taxes which are merely passed along by property owners.

Mrs. Grotos says she opposes any new taxes for Arlington residents. She said the $61 million in bond issues, which includes $21 million for re-wording the language in the bond issue for the advanced waste treatment plant, are being urged by the present board in a unanimous vote, and that they will inevitably mean higher taxes and higher rents.

She said the Board favored the bond issues against the opposition of Bert Johnson, the recently resigned County Manager, who was quoted in the press as favoring "zero bond issues" at this time because they would inescapably raise taxes.

David Clanton is chairman of the "Friends of Dorothy Grotos" and Ann B. King is treasurer. Both are residents of South Arlington.

David Perry

Free Concert

An evening of music for flute and guitar will be presented in a free concert Thursday at 8:00 p.m. at the Arlington Central Library, 1015 N. Quincy Street.

Guitarist David Perry, a graduate of the North Carolina School of the Arts and former student of Segovia, will perform with Jo Meyer Hodgin, a flutist who has appeared locally with both the Fairfax and Arlington Symphonies. A varied program is planned, with selections ranging from Elizabethan folk songs to the classic music of Bach.

For more information about this concert and other free library programs call 527-4777.

SENIOR CITIZENS

The following items are selected from among activities of the coming week for Senior Adults. The Arlington Recreation Division sponsors these activities in seven community centers and 21 clubs. Inquiries should be directed to the Senior Adult Program at 558-2672.

Dollar Stretcher Cookery with Flo. "The Washingtonian" magazine has given our Flo the Cordon Bleu Award for her ministrations at the big mod stove. Bravo! If you haven't attended one of her lively sessions, you owe it to yourself to come over and find out what it's all about. Bon appetit. Thursday, Oct. 23, 10 a.m., Gunston Community Center, 2700 S. Lang Street.

Public Service Project. A group of senior adults will be busily engaged again this morning in making tray favors and games for the children patients at the National Orthopedic Hospital. This worthwhile project to bring a bit of joy to the young patients is under the supervision of our lively Carol Roberts. Friday, Oct. 24 1 p.m., Wilson School Center, 1601 Wilson Blvd.

Saturday, October 15, 1-4 p.m. Wood-working. The fine big shop, fully equipped, is reserved once more this afternoon for senior craftpersons, including beginners. This is just the time to get started on a Christmas present for that favorite person at the top of your list. A professional craftsman is on duty at all times. Shop is also reserved for us seniors on Tuesday evenings, 7:30 - 9:30. Thomas Jefferson Community Center, 3501 S. 2nd Street.

The Sunday afternoon hours are very convenient for us senior Arlington swimmers when the big green pool is reserved just for us each week. Why don't you plan to be with us today? It's a fine swim spot.

Prices are pretty good also. For a single dip, 75 cents; a book of 25 swim tickets, $6. Sunday, Oct. 26, 1-2:30 p.m., Washington-Lee Aquatic Center, 1300 N. Quincy St.

Holiday. Monday, Oct. 27, Veteran's Day. All centers closed, all activities cancelled.

Men's Day. There will be chess, pool, cards and shuffleboard for our older gamers at the big beautiful Center today. Your genial host will be our peppy Bill Gress. Refreshments will be served. You don't have to be a resident of Culpepper to enjoy activities of the Center, so do come on over. Tuesday, Oct. 28, 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Culpepper Garden Center, 4435 N. Pershing Dr.

The Squires and Dames gather again this afternoon at ye little olde hall, where the theme song will be "Hello Dolly," as Margaret Roberts displays some of the 2,000 antique dolls from her collection. The Eickhoffs will show their beautiful color slides of a recent trip to England and Norway. Wednesday, Oct. 29, 12:30 p.m., Hannon Hall Center, 21st and N. Randolph Sts.

"The Culpepper Garden Tour of Wills, Trusts, Estates, Taxes and Other Growing Things." Mr. Paul Lanzillotta and Mr. Richard Irwin of the Trust Company of the First Virginia Bank will make the interesting presentation, so even if you have just a small planting box don't miss it. Wednesday, Oct. 29, 10 a.m., Culpepper Garden Center, 4435 N. Pershing Dr.

Well over 200 guests celebrated the 21st anniversary of Arlington's Senior Adult Recreation activities and the founding of Club No. 1, with luncheon at the Washingtonian on Oct. 8.

what's happening

McLean Birthday

The students and faculty of McLean High School invite everyone to a gala musical celebration tonight at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. This date marks the 20th anniversary of McLean High School.

The McLean choir will present a spirited musical of memories and sentimental thoughts of McLean High School for the past 20 years.

To help these memories along there will be slides of alumni and teachers from 1955 thru 1975, recalling McLean High School through the years.

Guest speakers will be Dr. Margaret Ford, Director of Area III, of Fairfax City Public Schools, and Mr. Ladson, principal of McLean High School.

Leaf Collection

Residents of Falls Church are reminded that leaf collection is now underway from now to Dec. 15. At the same time, there will be no brush collection until the December date. For collection, leaves should be raked and piled at the back of the curb, but not in the gutter, according to Richard J. Durgin, Public Works Director.

Also, public works crews will be picking up newspapers for recycling today over the entire City, not over half the City on alternate Wednesdays, as under the old program just phased out. Newspaper should be tied in bundles or folded into brown paper bags and put at curbside.

Film

Cynthia Regan, Director of "POR-CHILD," from Arlington County, will address the National Council of Jewish Women, Northern Virginia Section tonight at 8 p.m. in Fairfax at Congregation Olam Tikvah.

Ms. Regan will speak on the topic of Child Abuse and Neglect. She will also show a film "Children in Peril."

NCJW encourages all interested persons to attend. Please call Sylvia 323-8692 or Michelle 533-3460 for further information.

Quilting

In time for Christmas, you can learn to make quilted gift items and tree ornaments. Quilters Unltd., Arlington Chapter, will hold a class tonight at Glencarlyn Recreation Center, 5711 S. 4th St., Arlington, from 7 to 10 p.m., to learn to make Christmas tree ornaments and decorations. Each person in the class will receive patterns and instructions for braided wreaths, yo-yo wreaths, and star, heart, flower and toy ornaments. Cost is $6.

Classes are limited. Use registration forms in the Fall issue of "The Citizen" or pick up a copy at any recreation center. For more info call 558-2567.

Spiritual Retreat

Men in the area are offered an opportunity for a retreat over the weekend of October 24-26, at the Dominican Retreat House in McLean. The retreat starts Friday at 7:30 p.m. and ends Sunday about 4:00 p.m., giving the men time to spend the remainder of the day with their families.

The format of the retreat combines time for quiet, meditation, rest and personal prayer, with time for the exchange of ideas and group sharing, conferences, dialogue and scripture study. All help the participants to build a community spirit.

Men of all faiths are welcome. Phone. 356-3182.

Keynote Address

Jo Mielziner, one of the world's most celebrated scenic designers will present the keynote address at the annual meeting of the Virginia Theatre Conference Friday and Saturday, Oct. 24 and 25, at the J.W. Robinson High School.

To augment Mielziner's address on careers in theater, a discussion panel composed of experienced and noted individuals will discuss related jobs and opportunities available to people with theater background and training.

The panel will include Richard Coe, drama critic for the Washington Post; Fred Barber, station manager of WMAL-TV in Washington, D.C.; Ken Dresser, designer for Disney World, the Smithsonian Institute, and Worlds Fairs.

Also, Robert Alexander, director of the Living Stage in Washington, D.C.; Molly Logan of the American Theatre Association's placement service; Rex Parkinson, artistic director and manager of the Barber Theater in Abingdon; and Sara Buxton, an actress who recently completed a summer season at the Totem Pole Playhouse in Pennsylvania with Jean Stapleton (Edith on "All in the Family").

Pumpkins

Pumpkins, Pumpkins, everywhere! That's the way it looks at the Fairfax County YMCA this week as the 5th Annual Pumpkin Sale opens.

The "pumpkin patch" located at the Y on Little River Turnpike between Annandale and Fairfax City has a huge selection; more than 5 tons of pumpkins, big ones, little ones, round ones, fat ones, long ones, short ones, skinny ones, to choose from and will be open every day from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. through Halloween.

Bazaar

Booth

Alpha Lambda Chapter 3592, ESA, will be participating in the sixth Annual Charity Fair at Tyson's Corner on October 23rd and 24th, 1975 from 9:30 a.m. until 10:00 p.m.

Alpha Lambda's Christmas Bazaar Booth, under the direction of Marguerite Adams from Arlington, will be in front of Phillipsborn's in the Mall. All items are handmade and proceeds go towards one of the Chapter's main philanthropies - the Lincoln School for the Multiply Handicapped, amongst others.

Horse Program

Although there are many exciting and enjoyable experiences associated with owning a horse in Fairfax County, the owner is also exposed to many additional responsibilities. To assist in meeting these additional responsibilities, the Department of Extension and Continuing Education, with the cooperation of volunteer leaders, plans to conduct a series of classes related to the horse industry.

The following topics will be discussed:

Tonight - Horse Health; Thursday, October 23 - First Aid; Tuesday, October 28 - Distance Riding; Wednesday, October 29 - Buying, Care, and Conformation of Horses.

The Horse Program will be held in the auditorium of Fairfax High School, Fairfax. All classes are from 7 to 9 p.m. No fee or pre-registration is required. For further information concerning the program, please visit, write, or call the Extension office at 691-3456.
