

Text of <https://www.washingtonpost.com/archive/national/1980/01/25/john-purdy-to-leave-arlington-board/3ea746aa-5019-4c30-a15b-e1b84ab37a42/> as displayed in Chrome on 25 September 2026. The Post's archive shows the first two paragraphs of an article without a subscription, and refuses a direct fetch; these are the two paragraphs it showed, copied from the rendered page; nothing was edited. No byline was shown. The Post's search lists the piece under 24 January 1980; the page's own address dates it 25 January 1980.

John Purdy to Leave Arlington Board

The Washington Post, January 25, 1980

John W. Purdy, a member of the Arlington County Board for eight years, said yesterday he does not intend to seek reelection this year.

Purdy, 49, is one of the two-member board minority backed by the nonpartisan Arlingtonians for a Better County organization and county Democrats. The board is currently dominated by its three Republican members.