

State Senate, House Races Top Local Slates For General Election Tomorrow

Democrats Kept Busy Pointing Out Misleading GOP Statements

By TOM BURKE

Arlington County voters will go to the polls tomorrow between 6:00 a. m. and 6:00 p. m. to decide one of the bitterest election campaigns in recent years, highlighted by the contests for a seat in the State Senate and two seats in the House of Delegates.

Democrat Charles R. Fenwick and Republican Talmage Wilcher, candidates for the State Senate, have been in the center of the political stage.

Mr. Wilcher charged Mr. Fenwick with being implicated in the Arnold Bus Company, the Wise County ballot case and the Small Loan legislation. Mr. Fenwick has in turn denied all of these charges made by his opponent. He freely admits his friendship in the past with Arnold but denies having anything to do with the bus company. He stated that Arnold has in no way contributed to his campaign.

The latest campaign issue employed by Mr. Wilcher was a series of pictures depicting the deplorable conditions which once existed in a State Mental Hospital, used in a recent campaign advertisement. The pictures were claimed by the advertiser to describe the before and after conditions in the institution. Mr. Fenwick claimed the pictures only represented the "before" conditions, and that these conditions were remedied far greater than the "after" pictures used in the advertisement indicated.

The race for the House of Delegates in which Democrat incumbents J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm have been pitted against Republicans Q. Ethel Clair and Frederick Dawson, and Independent Eugene M. Beard, has revolved around the issues of utility rates, sales tax, and health and welfare legislation. Magruder and Damm have cited the progressive legislation which they have sponsored and supported in the Lower House, their previous and present opposition to a sales tax and their ability as incumbents to work more effectively for needed legislation. Clair and Dawson have constantly hit the high utility rates. This constitutes one of the numerous "red herrings" for the legislature has nothing whatever to do with utilities. They oppose a sales tax and claim the existence of a "machine" which is working against the best interests of the people. Independent Beard seeks to reestablish democratic principles in the Commonwealth of Virginia, saying that neither the Republicans nor Democrats have produced real leaders.

In local offices beginning with the fight for office of Commissioner of Revenue, Democrat incumbent Harry K. Green has been accused of mismanagement of his office by Republican Clyde B. Stovall. Taxes have not been collected from numerous registered voters says Mr. Stovall, to which Mr. Green replies: "Falsehood." Mr. Stovall would overhaul the administration of the office and install more modern methods. Mr. Green claims the office is "well-conducted" and cites the praise of high government officials to prove this point.

John Lock Green, incumbent Republican of the Treasurer's office, has been attacked by Democrat George P. Grove for his "questionable" ethics in the administration of the office, claiming the incumbent spends more time in his "lucrative" sideline business enterprises.

Democrat Denman T. Rucker, and Republican Oren R. Lewis, candidates for the office of Commonwealth Attorney, have been extremely energetic in their campaigns for the office. Mr. Rucker, who is now Asst. Commonwealth's attorney, has pointed to his 7 years experience, and his willingness to forego the pleasure of running a law practice on the side. It's a full time job being the C. A. of Arlington he says. Oren Lewis has had considerable trial practice in courts and advocates a policy of combatting juvenile delinquency. There has been some laxity in the administration of this office claims Mr. Lewis.

The race for Trial Justice has been bitterly fought, with incumbent Democrat Hugh Reid squaring off with Republican Charles O. Pratt and Independent John Paul Jones. Judge Reid stands for the same program of division in the County Court which he advocated four years ago. Time has not been sufficient to see all of the reforms he has said. Pratt does not question the incumbent's honesty but says there is definitely a "machine" in the County and Reid is a part of it. He has had no experience in the court over which he seeks to preside. Independent Jones with a record of 16 months as substitute Justice (in 1942 and 43) has attacked the record of the incumbent and cited the great increase of juvenile delinquency during Judge Reid's tenure of office. He has openly attacked the incumbent's "informal court" for the adolescent offender, as an encouragement to crime. Judge Reid has stated that he does not believe in the methods of "inquisition" which the independent seems to advocate.

The race for the Sheriff's office has been characterized by the continued reference to the antiquated county jail. Democrat Clements has offered a plan for the construction of a regional farm jail where those awaiting trial or those sentenced would have the benefit of cleanliness and occupation. Independents Marcey and Quade have deplored the present jail and would replace it. Clements would have a training course for deputies in the handling of mental cases. Marcey cites his long police force record and Quade relies on his ability to meet people along with his keen business sense.

A hotly contested race for the County Board has been in progress with incumbents Chew and Cuppett and Better Government League-backed Cannon and Smith sharing the spotlight. Chew has cited his long faithful record, his willingness to comply with the will of the people and his inherent distaste for reckless, wasteful spending. Cuppett has long been a business man, has been active in civic affairs and has been appointed by Judge McCarthy to fill the vacancy on the board. Cannon and Smith are running on a joint platform. They seek to gain a majority on the board by tying in with Dan Dugan board member, and vice chairman of the BGL. They are opposed to high utility rates.

Others in the County Board race are Jacob C. Bechtel, Robert W. Gaines, M. P. Divine, Lawson Wimberly and Lincoln Mackey, all of whom rely for support on the fact that they are not backed by any group and as independents would not be to the wills of a minority of the people.

The wide open race for the County's first elected school board has been fought mainly on the basis of platforms. Personalities have entered very little in the race for the much cherished offices. The Greater Arlington Association has backed a slate of candidates who announced their candidacy independently of the Association. This is an important point to remember for the Citizens Nominating dates whom they desired. There has been a recent flurry of denunciation from at least 28 of the organizations who were reported to have lent their support to the Nominating Convention with a consequent loss of prestige to those who chosen. Backed by the GAA are William M. Smith, Ernest C. Bots, Jr., Ernest T. Gearhart, Jr., Ralph M. Kimble and Charles P. Calk. Backed by the BGL are Edith P. Campbell, Colin C. McPherson, Barnard Joy, O. Glenn Stahl and C. E. Tuthill. Incumbents Lucy G. Bussey and J. M. Stewart are in the race and have neither sought nor have received the backing of any group of people. They rely on their progressive records in office as proof of their capability.

Football Player's Neck Is Fractured

Robert McWhorter, 22, of 2156 Lee Highway, is suffering in the Casualty Hospital today of a neck fracture sustained in a sand-lot football game in Washington, D. C., yesterday.

McWhorter, who was playing on the Edgewood Playground located at Evans and Third Streets, Southeast, was one of eight footballers to be injured in the Metropolitan area over the week-end.

The Street and Traffic Safety Lighting Bureau says half of the night fatal traffic accidents are attributable to inadequate thoroughfare lighting.

DC Police Capture Road Camp Escapee

District of Columbia police have apprehended a Virginia road camp escapee from Dinwiddie County.

Acting on a tip, they arrested Samuel L. Fleming, who has been at large from Camp 27, since July 10. The arrest was made by second precinct officers.

McGrath Urges US To Take In DP's

Senator Also Asks Immediate Aid To France

Senator J. McGrath (D.R.I.) proposed yesterday that America fill its immigration quotas with displaced persons, and likewise give immediate aid to France to stave off Communism.

Just back from Europe, Senator McGrath suggested the naming of a United States Displaced Persons Commission to select refugees "best able to contribute to American life," who could be allocated to areas where their skills are needed, and where they would not crowd the labor market.

Urging assistance to France, Senator McGrath, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, emphasized that "one more European country plunged into Communism would be a dire threat to the world's economic stability—certainly to our American way of doing business, and living."

Senator McGrath made his proposals during a radio interview on the "Farmer from Washington," broadcast over WFAM. He appeared under the sponsorship of Mr. C. C. Carlin Jr., Editor and Publisher of the Alexandria Gazette and the Arlington Daily.

First Hand Views
Mr. Carlin suggested that Senator McGrath be chosen for this broadcast, so that the nation might have first-hand views from the Democratic leader on foremost problems facing the Congress.

When asked by Charles Parmer, "What is America's duty to the world?" Senator McGrath remarked, "Suppose we say our duty to ourselves; for what we do for others in this particular matter is done basically from enlightened self-interest."

He urged "extension of quick financial aid to France would give its people that much-needed economic and psychological encouragement to check the growth of communism."

"Our second problem is what to do with and about the displaced persons in Europe...we must remember we cannot morally end our occupation of Germany until displaced persons have been reestablished in some secure portions of the world."

Same Name Conditions
Asked if he looked "for a non-partisan approach to these questions" he replied:

"Let me put it this way: senators and representatives of both parties have been inspecting European conditions together. We have seen the same conditions, talked together with the same officials—I hope we reach the same conclusions. After all, we are Americans, regardless of party, working for what we believe will be the best for our country."

Senator McGrath said that the displaced persons problem "is very near and dear to the President's heart. I am sure this problem will be taken up early in the regular session of Congress."

He visited 15 centers for displaced persons in Germany. The outstanding fact he observed "was their craving for a democratic way of life—a love and yearning for free institutions."

Seek New Homes
Religiously, 20 per cent are Jews, nearly all wishing to go to Palestine, he said. The remaining 80 per cent he divided between Roman and Greek Catholics, and Protestants, with Lutherans predominating among the latter. Of this 80 per cent, most "seemed to wish to clear out of the Old World, to settle in Australia or in the Western Hemisphere," he said.

"I might say here we have been backward in handling this problem," he pointed out. "Even stricken France is recruiting her forces from selected D.P.'s. Canada is carrying on, and General Peron in the Argentine, some few months ago, announced a plan by which he wished to increase the Argentine's population and productive capacity by bringing in selected immigrants from Europe."

Senator McGrath said that the suggested Displaced Persons Commission might be composed of "members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the Public Health Department, and leaders of industry and labor; to set forth conditions for admittance and the types of persons to be chosen."

Leo C. Lloyd, County Board Member, Dies Suddenly Today

Stomach Ailment Is Fatal To Former Chairman Of Board, Resident Of County For 30 Years

Leo C. Lloyd, a member and former chairman of the Arlington County Board, died suddenly at 7:15 a. m. today at his home, 4764 N. 24th Road. Cause of death was listed as a stomach ailment.

A member of the County Board since 1940, he was an agent of the New York Life Insurance Company.

A native of the District of Columbia, Mr. Lloyd has lived in the county for 30 years. He was almost 58 at the time of death.

He leaves as survivors his wife, Amelia, a daughter, Mrs. Edith L.

Scott, and two granddaughters, Donna and Marcia Scott, all of Arlington.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. in the Ives Funeral Home. Interment will take place immediately following in the Columbia Pike Cemetery.

County Manager A. T. Lundberg said the unexpired term of Mr. Lloyd, who had one more year to fill during his present tenure, will be fulfilled by an appointee to be named in the near future by Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy, Jr.

Would Enforce Traffic Laws, Jones States

"I believe in strict enforcement of the County and State traffic laws and regulations, with particular attention being given to cases involving driving while drunk, reckless driving and excessive speed," said John Paul Jones, Independent candidate for the office of Trial Justice, speaking before the Jefferson District Civic League early this week.

"A check of the official records of our Police Department show that during the sixteen months that I sat on the County Court Bench we had less than 400 accidents, 5 deaths, and 176 injuries."

"Since the present incumbent assumed office on January 2, 1944, here is the record: 1944 - 419 accidents, 7 deaths and 167 injuries; 1945 - 503 accidents, 5 deaths and 175 injuries; 1946 - 587 accidents, 11 deaths and 173 injuries; and this year to September 1, we have had 420 accidents, 6 deaths and 51 injuries."

"Incompetent drivers and excessive speed in the operation of automobiles over our highways must be controlled for the protection of the residents of our County, particularly our children. I shall do everything that I can to bring this about."

"In his 'Report' issued about a month ago and widely circulated among the voters of Arlington County, Judge Reid asserts: 'The County ordinances should be modified.'"

"Four years ago I urged immediate codification of all county ordinances then in force and effect and the elimination of those that had been repealed. I have urged it again during this campaign, and now after three and one-half years in office, the incumbent has come to agree with me."

"If elected, I will take immediate steps to make such codification a reality."

Mrs. Simpson Denies Report

Mrs. Rudy G. Simpson, president of the Arlington County Civic Federation, today denied that her organization "publicly repudiated" the endorsement claimed of it by the five candidates of the School Board Nominating Convention held last August.

The denial followed charges of "political fraud" leveled by the Greater Arlington Association at the five nominees who claimed the endorsement of fifty-one civic groups throughout the County. In cooperation with a metropolitan daily, the G.A.A. had checked, by phone, some 43 of those organizations "claimed" and reports showed that none of these had selected delegates, other than by appointive means, nor had they held public meetings of the full membership to back M. S. Elizabeth Campbell, O. Glenn Stahl, Colin C. MacPherson, Curtis E. Tuthill, or Barnard Joy.

In her statement, Mrs. Simpson asserted that "it is the G.A.A. that is engaging in 'political fraud' not the Citizens Convention Nominees for the School Board."

Oren R. Lewis Pledges Service To Taxpayers

Oren R. Lewis, Republican candidate for the Commonwealth Attorney post, today said in his final statement of the campaign that he will assure the citizens in the performance of his duties that his office will be open from 8 to 24 hours daily to handle the business of the county, and to accomplish the purpose he has pledged himself to in the campaign.

Virginia District Cab Laws Defined

Local Cabs May Pick Up Return Fares

Virginia cabs will no longer be able to pick up fares in the District and deliver them to District addresses, nor will District cabs be able to pick up and deliver passengers in Virginia. It was announced Saturday by Virginia Motor Vehicle Commissioner Joy and District Traffic Director K. Eipp.

The new arrangement, which said to be the first clarification of the Virginia-District cab situation since the war, will go into effect immediately.

Up to this time Washington has been picking up passengers at the National Airport and Pentagon and have been driving them to Virginia addresses, contrary to State laws.

Other provisions also adopted the joint board were:

1. District taxis entering Virginia to discharge passengers on the return trip, pick up passengers destined for the District, and vice versa.

2. District taxis may pick up Virginia passengers on telephone calls or by pre-arrangement, and vice versa.

Virginia cabs may still deliver passengers picked up in Virginia to Washington, and vice versa.

The new plan also permits cabs owned by Virginia to be garaged indefinitely in the District, and vice versa, without registry.

Reciprocity stickers will be given to such cars, unless they are for private purposes.

Delivery vehicles in either jurisdiction may operate in opposite jurisdictions as long as such vehicles are garaged as many four nights a week in their own jurisdiction. This was enacted a convenience to merchants.

Also granted reciprocity privileges, provided they are properly licensed and registered in their own jurisdiction, are special chartered and sightseeing buses carrying students and members education or religious organizations, operating occasionally in Virginia and the District.

WARL To Carry Election Returns

Radio Station WARL has received special permission from the C. C. to remain on the air election night, Tuesday, November 4 from 9:00 p. m. until such a time as final results are known. Plans for broadcasts direct from Democratic and Republican headquarters, featuring interviews of a Candidates. Returns for both Arlington and Fairfax Counties will be given.
