Cuppett Takes Oath Of Office To Board Post

Harry W. Cuppett, who was appointed Saturday to the Arlington County Board, yesterday qualified for the position by taking the oath of office and posting the required bond of $1,000. Mrs. Virginia C. Long, deputy county clerk, administered the oath.

Mr. Cuppett, 56-year-old proprietor of a hardware store, was appointed by Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Elizabeth B. Magruder, who resigned because of ill health.

Although an Arlington resident since 1899, the present post will be Mr. Cuppett's first in county government. He is a member of the board of directors of the Old Dominion Bank in Arlington, and a director of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Cuppetts, who live at 1011 North Stafford Street, have one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Cuppett Long, who, incidentally, is Arlington County deputy sheriff under Sheriff Homer Bauserman.

Mrs. Virginia Long, the deputy clerk, and Mrs. Hazel Long, the deputy sheriff, are in no way related.

Citizen Group Supports Two Vote Issues

The Stonewall Jackson Citizens Association at their monthly meeting last night endorsed unanimously two of the referendum issues to be settled at the polls May 27. They went on record as backing a change in the present method of selecting the county school board and a six million dollar bond issue for school improvements.

A third resolution, introduced by O. S. Fink, chairman of the membership committee, that the group go on record as advocating an immediate increase in tax assessment for an eventual saving of two million dollars in revenue, was deferred until it can be studied by the group's revenue and expenditures committee.

The group also voted to contribute $15 to the Arlington Civic Federation to be earmarked for use in that association's program of informing the voters of its stand in the coming referendum.

To the charge by Mr. Fink that by contributing to the Federation the group would be entering community activities as a political body, Barney Hall, Jr., group president, stated he felt that since the body had voted resolutions to back the school issues there was no change in the association's function by backing monetarily a stand they were taking publicly.

The group also voted a $5 contribution to the Arlington Hospital campaign; $15 to the Cancer Drive; and letter of protest to ICC against the proposed increase in Arnold Bus line fares.

Basil M. DeLashmuth, scheduled to speak on county affairs, was unable to attend.

Debate Continues On Board Issue

A further debate on the method of selecting the county school board will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Claude Swanson Junior High School. Speakers will be present for the Greater Arlington Association and the Citizens Committee for School Improvement.

Scheduled to speak for GAA are Major John Pearson and Will Ames against the proposed change in method of selecting the board.

Representing the Citizens Committee, which is endorsing the popular election of the body, will be Robert L. Moravetz and Mrs. John H. Woodworth.

Sponsored by PTA units at Stonewall Jackson, Walter Reed, and Robert E. Lee schools, moderator for the discussion will be Juvenile Court Judge Hugh Reid.

Dr. E. L. Kirkpatrick, a resident of Arlington for 25 years, spoke in favor of retaining the present appointive board system, while Harrison Mann, attorney and announced candidate for the Virginia General Assembly, supported direct election.

The first speaker cited the excellent management of the school system which has kept local schools well abreast of national progress despite a population increase from 20,000 in 1921 to over 130,000 today, including a more than 100 per cent increase of 70,000 during the war years.

The Arlington school board, he said, was still able to accomplish a record construction of $1,700,000 during the war years, without bonding, and had boosted construction costs from $22 to $107 per pupil.

He contended that academic instruction here is on a high plane, as reflected in qualifications of teachers and high grades made by students on national tests. He expressed the opinion that in some fields, particularly audio-visual education and distributive education, Arlington schools rank with those in any State.

Dr. Kirkpatrick was against voting $11,000,000 in bonds "at this time," preferring a pay-as-you-go basis until abnormal prices recede.

Stepped in Politics
Mann charged that the present appointive school board system is steeped in politics, an "archaic system devised to permit a permanently Democratic legislature to control through appointments some phases of all Virginia county governments, even those predominantly Republican."

The Denny Commission which studied Virginia education recommended that the schools be brought closer to the people, he said.

He concluded on an oratorical note, imploring Arlingtonians to "have faith in Democracy, have faith in your neighbors, have faith in your vote."

Mrs. Art Brown, president of the County Council of PTA's, spoke briefly, and conducted installation of Chapter officers for next year. These included Mrs. Jesse Ward, president; Robert C. Rollings, first vice-president; Miss Elizabeth Beale, second vice-president; Comdr. Richard C. Williams, Jr., secretary; Mrs. Milton Bryan, treasurer; Mrs. Edwin A. Isenhardt, parliamentarian; and Mrs. E. Michael Norton, historian.

Delay Sought On Tax Measure

House Ponders Over Navy Bill; Compromise On Labor Studied

WASHINGTON (P)—The Senate will hurry its debate today on the setting up of a national science foundation in order to clear the way for another and more controversial issue this afternoon. The Republican majority's intention is to vote on the first measure in mid-afternoon and then take up the question of tax reduction.

Democrats have decided not to oppose introduction of the tax bill at this point. Instead they now plan to delay the measure at least until June 10th, if they can do it, in order to get a better picture of federal expenditures for the next year before voting on tax cuts.

Over in the House, attention of representatives is scheduled to remain on the Navy appropriation bill for the next three days. The Navy's fiscal budget already has suffered an 11 per cent slash. And while debate goes on concerning the funds for our fleet, Republicans are talking of parallel slashes in the appropriations of other departments. These include the Army and agriculture funds.

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill, the joint House-Senate Labor Committee continues work on a compromise labor bill, with House members voicing willingness to yield to a Senate desire to eliminate the so-called "workers' bill of rights."

A fight appears shaping up in the Senate Armed Services Committee, with Republicans demanding proof that the proposed merger of the Army and Navy would save up money, and the House Expenditures Committee turns a critical eye on the proposed reorganization of several departments. These include the Departments of Labor, Agriculture, Justice and the Treasury as well as the War Assets Administration.

Also in Washington, the Western Electric negotiations with some 20,000 striking telephone installation workers remains unsettled. But a new conference is scheduled for another attempt to hammer operation of the nation's major exchanges.

A second conference in the Capital today is being held between United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis and mine owners representing 75 per cent of the nation's soft-coal production. Lewis has given no hint as to whether he will set forth his terms today for a new contract.

County School System Is Tops In Visual Aid Educational Program In Virginia And Nation

All Types Of Movies Shown From Geography To William Shakespeare

The Arlington County School system ranks first in Virginia, and possibly first in the entire United States in the visual aids educational program it has adopted.

At the 1946 meeting of the State Legislature, $1,000,000 was set aside as a nucleus for this project, to be allocated to each county on the basis of $2 per pupil registered in the school system.

Arlington received $21,000 and invested it most wisely in teaching materials, which consisted of twenty Bell & Howell 16 mm sound projects, and 60 FBE film strip and slide projects.

The School Board supplemented the original allotment by $4,000, and later in the year provided another $4,500 for sound film and film strips and slides. During 1947 there has been made available maps, globes and charts, costing another $4,000.

The films, which are loaned to teachers making application for them, tie in with all the subjects a child is studying, and include English, history, social studies, mathematics, science, arts and music.

For example, "The Wheat Farmer" is particularly good for the child studying about the Middle West. It goes into much detail about the farmer's life, during the winter, seeding, plowing, growth of crops, and harvesting. This type of film often stimulates the pupil in wanting to know about milling and allied subjects.

Another interesting series of films is "Life in These United States," put out by the American Council of Education. There are 48 in this particular series, including an over-all picture of the United States, and then taking individual sections of the country, such as "Life in Southeast United States," giving the map, industries, climatic conditions, geographic peculiarities, photography of the outstanding historical monuments and places of interest.

The Film Library, housed in Washington-Lee High School under the supervision of Miss Mildred Cross, includes a series on Children of Other Lands, including Japan, Norway, Holland, Switzerland, France, and Italy.

There are color films depicting life and industry in New England, Alaska, showing the salmon industry, mining and other allied industries. For the students in art appreciation, there are films showing masterpieces of the Dutch, Italian and French masters.

Despite the fact we are so close to Washington, where we can view the originals in the world-famous art galleries, many of the children have not been able to see the masterpieces, and these films play an important role in helping the students appreciate art.

There is also a rather complete set of Shakespearean films, including "Julius Caesar," and "Macbeth." For the smaller children, in the primary and first grades, there is a series of Nursery Rhyme Films, including "Little Red Riding Hood," and other child classics.

Projects of this kind have been carried on by the present school board, all of whom have given unstintingly of their time and energy.

Teachers Praised By Civic Leader

Action To Back Present Method For Selecting Board Is Cited

The Greater Arlington Association today applauded the county's school teachers for "their courageous action in resisting the discredited campaign to suppress the teachers' support of the method by which the county school board is now appointed."

Charles O. Pratt, association president, in commending the teachers for their action "in support of the most vital issue Arlington has ever faced," said that "the responsible majority of Arlington residents found completely revolting the efforts of the Citizens' Committee for School Improvement to gag the county's teachers."

The reference was to the decision of the Arlington Education Association to mail an appeal to parents of school children that they reject direct election of the school board. The action had been protested in some quarters on the grounds that the teachers would be using school files to obtain addresses.

"This tempest in a teapot," continued Pratt, "is just what Arlington can expect to face repeatedly if the Citizens Committee is successful in its efforts to put our schools and teachers into politics."

"The protest against the teachers using school files for mailing purposes that was entered by Mrs. Elmer J. Carson, an unsuccessful candidate for the school board, found support from only one teacher, and that has now been recalled voluntarily."

"There are still 348 teachers who haven't kicked yet!"

Mr. Pratt concluded that the Citizens Committee "cannot be permitted to continue their campaign to demoralize the entire school system at the cost of our children's education."

"The Citizens Committee must be overwhelmingly repudiated on May 27," he said.

Total Eclipse Study Goes Well In Brazil

BOCAIUVA, Brazil (A.P.)—The sun went dark, the stars shined and the sky was midnight blue in a part of Brazil today. The phenomenon was a total eclipse of the sun, which occurred in clear weather at Bocaiuva, but found cloudy skies 275 miles to the southwest.

The clear skies at Bocaiuva promised success for the preparations of a large group of American scientists who gathered on a wooded plateau to witness the eclipse. The eclipse began at 7:22 a. m. (EDT). It became total at 8:34 a. m., and remained in its total phase three minutes and 48 seconds.

A broadcast heard in Rio De Janeiro quoted Professor C. C. Kiess of the American Bureau of Standards on the eclipse. He said, "The total eclipse observations at Bocaiuva were 100 per cent successful, pending of course, development of the films."

No Fever Cases Reported Here

No cases of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever have been reported in Arlington County so far this year, Dr. Paul Bowden, head of school health services, disclosed yesterday. There was only one case reported for last year and two in 1945.

Dr. Ralph Beachley, county health officer, announced that a "limited amount" of vaccine for prevention of the disease has been received from the United States Public Health Service and has been distributed to local doctors without cost. Dr. Beachley further urged parents to check children and dogs that have been in wooded areas for the ticks that spread the disease. The ticks if found should be removed with the aid of tweezers to avoid any contact for possible infection.

Of the cases reported in the last three years, there have been no fatalities.
