tried in eastern Europe's Russian satellite countries. 'It was not' until January 8, 1949—more than two years later—that Josef Cardinal Mindszenty was sentenced to imprisonment in Communist Hungary. Specifically, Archbishop Stepinac was convicted on charges that he collaborated with the Axis and its wartime puppets and that he condoned the forceful conversions to Catholicism of hundreds of thousands of Serbian Orthodox followers in Croatia. Another charge against Stepinac was that he helped to organize a post-war, independent Croatia movement and worked for the downfall of the Communist regime of Marshal Tito. Stepinac was tried by a three-man Yugoslavia court, along with 12 other Roman Catholic priests and six other defendants in war crimes cases. Two of Stepinac's co-defendants were sentenced to death—one was shot and one was hanged. Marshal Tito is said to have notified the Vatican before Stepinac's arrest in September of 1946 that the Archbishop would not be jailed, if he were removed immediately from Yugoslavia. The Vatican refused that offer. It also rejected other Yugoslav offers for Stepinac's release if he would accept exile from his homeland.

The 30-inch diameter pipeline was completed last week at a total cost of $180,000. Fairfax Ready To Proceed With Redistricting Program
 John W. Rust, chairman of the Fairfax County redistricting committee, said yesterday that the committee will get its project under way right away now that the annexation cases have been settled. He said he would call a meeting of the seven-member committee next week. After the committee has reached some conclusions, he said, public hearings will be held to get the feeling of the people on the matter.

The committee was appointed by Circuit Judge Paul E. Brown last March when several petitions had been filed with the court asking the county be redistricted. The petitioners claimed that the representation on the county board of supervisors is not equitable. At the present time the board is composed of three members who are from rural districts which have less than 35 per cent of the county's population and three from urban districts.

 State Legislators To Seek Law Permitting Counties To Institute Annexation Moves
 Action Would Broaden Present Legislation Granting Privilege To Cities. And Towns
 Arlington's representatives in the Legislature announced today that they are planning to introduce legislation which would enable a county having sufficient density of population to institute annexation proceedings. This would be a revolutionary move, since heretofore only cities and incorporated towns have enjoyed this privilege. The Legislators point out that, fundamentally, there is no reason why a county that can provide improved facilities to people in an adjacent county should not have the privilege of going before an annexation court and making this showing to the same extent that a city or town can do so. The Commission recently reporting on annexation recommended that the governing bodies of

School Projects

Enter 2nd Phase In Fairfax

The Fairfax County School Board yesterday asked the county Commonwealth Attorney, Hugh B. Marsh, to proceed with the sale of the second $3.5 million block of the $10.5 million school construction bonds voted in 1950. ~

School officials said contracts that already have been let in the construction program have nearly used up the funds from the first $3.5 million sold last spring.

The first block was sold last May after the bond issue had been tied up in court litigation for a year. School authorities pushed plans for the program and contracts have been let for 10 schools. These include Bailey's, Centreville, Graham Road, Orton, Hollin Hall, Mount Eagle, Oakton, Westlawn and Mount Vernon. Yesterday a contract for the Chesterbrook addition was let to Eugene Simpson and Brother, Alexandria contractor.

The contract for the seven-room Chesterbrook addition is for $148,260. The School Board announced that bids will be opened December 20 on two more schools, Belle View and Freedom Hill. When the construction program started the funds available amounted to $4,487,130 including the $3.5 block of bonds and the remainder from the State Battle Fund for school construction. When the two December 20 contracts are let, nearly 84 million will be used covering the contracts, architects fees and land purchases. In another action the School Board asked the Commonwealth Attorney to expedite settlement of the dispute between the city of Falls Church and Fairfax County over the county's bonded indebtedness for schools.

When Falls Church became a city of the second class in 1948 two county schools were turned over to the city. No agreement has yet been reached on the amount the city would assume of the old school bond issue, part of which was used in construction of the two schools. School board members said that now that the Fairfax-Falls Church annexation case has been decided, the old dispute should be settled.

Other members from the suburbanized districts. The move for redistricting followed the November, 1960 elections when the county executive form of government was adopted over the county manager form. Under the executive form which goes into effect January 1, the supervisors will continue to be elected by districts. Under the manager form they would have been elected at large. In addition to Mr. Rust, a Fairfax attorney and former state senator and member of the county planning commission, the other members of the committee are: Mrs. Elizabeth Vernon, of near Falls Church; Lewis S. Travis, Chantilly farmer; Carl attorney; Keith Price, chairman of the planning commission; George C. Lendrith, real estate man and member of the planning commission; and Malcolm Matheson, Jr., a builder and member of the planning commission.

counties be given the authority to institute annexation proceedings requiring a city or a town to take a portion of the county which would be annexed to the city or town. His proposal of the Arlington legislators goes one step further. It would not only give the county the right to initiate the proceedings but, for the purpose of acquiring additional territory for the county. The legislators point out that there are several areas such as Arlington, Warwick and Elizabeth City County which are in position to provide the same services as cities and are confronted with the problem of widening their tax base. They say that fundamentally there is no reason why such an area should not have the same privileges as the city or town.

KEKSTKI.V A tentative list of 19 proposals to be introduced at the coming session of the General Assembly on January 9, including a bill to provide for a referendum requiring County Board elections to be held every two years for staggered four-year terms for members, was outlined yesterday by Arlington's State legislative team.

Among the list also was a proposed bill calling for a referendum on either an indefinite term for the county manager, subject to removal by the County Board, or on a limited yearly basis with a notice of reappointment to be made at the end of each fiscal year in June or at the beginning of each calendar year in January. State Senator Charles R. Fenwick and Delegates George Damm and J. Maynard Magruder presented the list at a conference at the Washington Golf and Country Club. The legislators pointed out that the list was tentative and subject to revisions and additions upon recommendations from civic groups and citizens. The three legislators were to have presented their proposals at a legislative meeting of the Arlington County Board at 8 p.m. tomorrow. In a letter to the board, however, they stated that it would not be convenient for them to attend the meeting, which is to be held in the Arlington Circuit Court room.

Other proposed measures aimed primarily at Arlington interests include:

- A bill to change the name of Lee Boulevard in order to avoid confusion with Lee Highway;
- Provisions setting up referenda to establish a County Attorney's office, and to delegate to the County Manager the right to appoint department heads;
- An optional (local) bill allowing the School Board to set up tenure for certificated teachers and a commission to administer it. The bill would be similar to the one introduced and killed in committee at the last legislative session. The Virginia Education Association opposed the measure on the grounds that 89 per cent certificated, and, if Arlington got off the State teachers were unapproval, other areas would ask for approval also. The new bill, however, is expected to have the approval of the Arlington and State Education Associations;
- Provision for a new district consisting of Arlington, Alexandria, Falls Church and Fairfax, with two additional representatives in the House of Delegates and an extension of its State To Ballot Anonymous Election Literature

The Arlington Civic Federation last night asked Arlington's delegation to the Virginia General Assembly to sponsor legislation making anonymous election campaign literature illegal. "During the past few years anonymous publications have been distributed in Arlington campaigns in an attempt to smear candidates for local office and to deceive the voters," the resolution adopted unanimously by the federation

A bill to give Arlington the same powers now given to cities in regard to franchises for use of public ways, and A bill to ban thru trucks from using Shirley Highway between Woodbridge and Route 7 at Shirlington. The ban would not apply to local trucks.

Proposed legislation pertaining to State-wide interests include: an amendment to the inheritance tax law which would eliminate the inequity in the present law that requires a survivor to prove actual contribution of half of the purchase price of the inherited property, or be forced to pay taxes on the entire property; amendments to the Milk and Cream Act, which would eliminate retail milk pricing and would increase the number of members on the State Milk Commission so that two members would be included to represent consumer interests; and, anti-bribery bill for sports, making it a felony to offer or receive money or articles of value for influencing the outcome of an athletic contest; a proposal to establish a State Division of Recreation in the Department of Conservation to provide guidance and standard recommendations for recreational facilities; a provision for a 30-day session of the legislature in between regular sessions; a bill making it mandatory for cities of first and second class with a water supply to fluoridate the water within a reasonable time; a provision that fees received for care of mental patients in state hospitals be retained there Instead of going into a general fund.

Christmas Bureau Will Give Santa Lift In County

December 10 has been set as the "deadline date" for collecting food, clothing, and toys to be distributed through the Arlington Christmas Bureau to needy families. Mrs. Charles S. Goode, chairman of the Bureau which is sponsored annually by the Family and Child Welfare Division of the Community Chest and Council, explained that this deadline date is necessary in order to allow time for packing and distributing the baskets before Christmas day. The Christmas Bureau functions as clearance headquarters for groups and persons who want to remember their less fortunate fellow-citizens at Christmas time, and the agencies which officially handle details of distribution. The Important human values of channeling the Christmas gifts through the parents of the receiving families are thus safeguarded. The YMCA building at North 15th Street and Kirkwood Road will serve as storage headquarters for non-perishable gifts which donors cannot take directly to one of the distributing agencies. The agencies are the Arlington Ministerial Association, Catholic Charities, Department of Public Welfare, Family Service, and Red Cross.

Names of needy families may be submitted to any of these agencies or directly to the Christmas Bureau, at telephone OXford 2971 or CHestnut 5116- All names are screened to establish need, and cross-checked to make certain that no duplications occur.
