announcement of the plans for the new Taylor School and the dedication of the new Claremont School. Regardless of the outcome of the Presidential Election, it is probable that the control of the Senate will be retained by the Democrats, according to an INS report of a nation-wide survey carried below. Dead men tell no tales, but the first eyewitness accounts of the horrors, the unbelievable cruelty of the Red Guards at the secret Uranium mine, is told in the exclusive story by Ivan Pluhar, carried on Page 2. * Among the features in this issue is the preparation being made by Atlanta for Hallowe'en and a dramatic account of hardbitten war veterans crying when it was reported that their company commander had been killed. ' Democratic Senate Appears Probable

Survey Indicates Landslide Needed To Shift Control By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

Chief, Washington Bureau, INS WASHINGTON—A national survey today indicates the presidential election will influence some Senate races but the Democrats can gain control of the next Senate even if they lose the White House. The main reason for this potential outcome is that the Democrats have 34 holdover Senators and need win but 15 out of 34 current contests to retain a majority in the upper branch of Congress. On the other hand, the Republicans must win 21 of the 34 contests to shift control to their party. The startling action of Sen. Wayne Morse, of Oregon, in “resigning- from the Republican Party” may further handicap his former political colleagues. If Morse should vote with the Democrats to organize the Senate, the GOP would have to win an additional seat to offset him. If Morse merely voted as an independent, there would be no change in either party's quota for winning control of the next Senate. A victory by Gov. Stevenson over Gen. Eisenhower is certain to give the Democrats greater control of the new Senate. But Gen. Eisenhower can win without pulling a Republican Senate along into office with him, though a GOP landslide could do the trick. The Democrats appear to have six sure winners and five more likely winners. The “sure” victors are: Sen. Holland in Florida, Sen. Stennis in Mississippi, Sen. Pastore in Rhode Island, Rep. Gore in Tennessee, Price Daniel in Texas and Sen. Byrd in Virginia. The “likely” winners are: Sen. McFarland in Arizona. Sen. Underwood in Kentucky, Stuart Symington in Missouri. Sen. Chavez in New Mexico and Sen. Kilgore in West Virginia. The Democrats may win two more seats from sitting Republicans with Rep. Kennedy a favorite now over Sen. Lodge in Massachusetts, and Rep. Jackson favored over Sen. Cain in Washington. If these forecasts are correct, the Democrats need win in only two of the remaining 21 contests to secure party control of the next Senate. The Republicans, meanwhile, have seven sure winners and five more likely winners. The “sure” winners are: Sen. Knowland in California, Sen. Thye in Minnesota, Sen. Butler and exGov. Dwight Griswold in Nebraska, Sen. Langer in North- Dakota. Sen. Flanders in Vermont and Sen. McCarthy in Wisconsin. The “likely” winners are: Sen. Smith in New Jersey, Sen. Martin in Pennsylvania, Sen. Ives in New York, Sen. Bricker in Ohio and Sen. Malone in Nevada. The Republicans are expected to gain one seat with Rep. Potter, war veteran, defeating incumbent Sen. Moody in Michigan. If these forecasts prove correct, the Republicans would have 13 of the 21 seats they need for Senate control. But they would have to win all eight of the remaining contests. These—all regarded as tight battles—are in: Connecticut: Sen. Benton and Rep. Rulbicoff. Democrats, against (See Democratic, Page 2, Please) |

Both Parties Plan Furious Political Week RICHMOND (U)—A final furious week of politicking is on tap in Virginia this week as Eisenhower anti Stevenson supporters intensify their efforts to snare the state's 12 valuable electoral votes. Practically every city, town and hamlet will have its political rallies and last - minute flings of speech-making. Both the Republican and Democratic camps will import national political figures to push final efforts for votes. The GOP is bringing In Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland later in the week and the Democrats are hopeful of lining up Georgia's Sen. Richard Russell. At Washington and Lee University, a youth-for-Eisenhower rally was held today with delegates in attendance from a dozen state colleges. In Richmond, the Young Democratic Clubs of Virginia will sponsor a Stevenson rally tonight at which Yelande Betbeze, Miss America of 1930, will be guest speaker. Rep. George M. Grant (D-Ala) will also address the meeting. Fulbright also called organizations Of so-called Democrats for Eisenhower a misnomer. He said there may be Republicans for Eisenhower, independents for Eisenhower and former Democrats for Eisenhower, but no Democrats.

WV States Stand On Questions Women Voters I Withhold Decision On Incorporation (See Sample Ballot, Pair* 6) In a statement issued today, the Arlington League of Women Voters defined its position on the seven questions to be voted on in the Nov. 4 election, but took no decisive stand as to whether Arlington County should be incorporated as a city of the first class. On this issue, the League said: "Questions 3, 4 and 5 concern the incorporation of Arlington as a city under the 1946 charter. This has been a subject of League study for over a year and has recently been the topic for discussion at nine unit meetings attended by an unusually number of interested people. However, this is such a complex problem and the time for study has been so short that the League members decided to make no recommendation for or against incorporation at this time. We would like to remind people, however, that the Study Commission report on incorporation may be obtained at the Registrar's Office in the Arlington County Court House and that members of the Study Commission are giving a fifteen minute summary of the advantages and disadvantages of incorporation at the candidates' meetings to be held Wednesday in the Lyon Village Community House, and Thursday in the Jefferson Junior High School". On other questions to be voted on in the Nov. 4 election, the League voted overwhelmingly to urge public support of the two referendums to the County Manager Act and also of the referendum providing for a real estate assessment department. The League said that it began a study of county-manager I forms of government two years [ago and came to the conclusion that the first two of these measures would greatly increase the responsiveness of the county manager to the will of the people of the county. The position of the League is that the county manager is the employee of the county board and should answer directly to the board for properly carrying out its policies. Though it seems this makes the manager's tenure uncertain, it should be pointed out that the professional association of city and county managers prefers this practice. On Question No. 2. the League believes that if the county manager is to be completely responsible to the county board, he must also have the right and the duty to appoint department heads to carry out his administrative duties. On the Real estate assessment, referendum, question No. 7, the League states that the principal argument for this department are that the assessments of county real estate is Arlington's chief source of local revenue and should be locally controlled: and also, that there should be a continuing process to reflect the constantly changing values of real estate, and should be administered by an appointed technically trained as(See WV States. dir="auto">Cops Seek Gambling 'Big Shot' Not Recognized Saturday In Fairfax Raid. A "bis; shot.7' operator of a Huntington gambling house raided early Saturday by Fairfax police is expected to be arrested today or tomorrow, Police Captain James M. Mahoney said this morning. Meanwhile, Captain Mahoney said. "There's a lot more we have to learn about the operation." He said police today will question a number of the 32 persons arrested and released Saturday after being booked on charges of gambling. Captain Mahoney said the suspected head of the operation was among those hooked and released after posting $15.25 collateral. The suspect's identity as the head of the operation was furnished by a tip after he had been released. The nature of the tip was not disclosed. Three others were hooked on charges of operating a gambling house and were released on $250 bond. They are: Frank Earl Paulin, 57, of 2231 California St., N.W.-; Leon H. Wagoner, 52, of Baltimore; and Lawrence L. Glannon, 48, 5418 56th Ave., Riverdale, Md. A hearing for the three was set for Wednesday in Fairfax Trial Justice Court. Police moved in on the secluded house about 200 yards off Route 1 just south of the Alexandria line about 3 a.m. Saturday morning. Captain Mahoney said the house, located in a grove of trees off Huntington Ave., had been under surveilauce since the first part of October. The raid was carried off w ithout incidence, police said. Police broke In the front and rear doors simultaneously and patrons in the downstairs gambling room submitted to arrest without disturbance. A dice table 12 by 4 feet was confiscated along with about $5,000 worth of poker chips. M. K. Bryant, State Alcoholic Beverage Control inspector, participated in the raid but no liquor was found in the house. The house did have a sandwich and soft drink bar for use of patrons, police said. Police Lieut. Richard TJtz has been quoted as saying the raid would break up organized gambling in Northern Virginia. Captain Mahoney said, "There's a lot of thiogs about the operation we're not sure of yet. A lot more investigation has to be done." He did not elaborate on the statement. * He said the suspected head of the operation has lived both in Alexandria and the District of Columbia. Police said patrons of the establishment were picked up in Alexan dria and transported to the gambling house by private "house car." Besides Lieut. Utz, others participating in the raid were Pri vates Thomas Thompson, Elbert. Bradford, R. A. Newman, and Franklin Angelo,<p

ROBERT SCHAKNE NEAR TRIANGLE HILL, Korea (Delayed by Censor) (INS)— When the word went down the line the Lieutenant was dead, hardbitten infantrymen broke down and wept. His name was Bill Knapp and he died after leading the assault that won Triangle Hill for the Eighth Army and he has been recommended for the Congressional Medal of Honor. I have talked to men in many battles in this war. But I never met a group of soldiers who thought so much of an officer as the men of Easy Company thought about their commander, Lieut. William C. Knapp of Lufkin, Tex. "It was strange. The last thing he said before he died was so much like him," said Lieut Donald S. Hackett of Kearney, N. J. "After he was hit I ran over to him and he, looked at me and said 'hold the position,' and that was all. I guess he died then." Another soldier, Sgt. Donald Herbert of Arkadelphia, Ark., identified the body. Herbert said: "Some officers walked by and they asked me about him. I said Lieut. Knapp was dead. They made some remarks and one of the officers said to make sure it was him. I j walked over and pulled back the blanket ancj turned the body over. It was Lieut. Knapp. "Lieut. Knapp, he's dead, one of the greatest." Sgt. Joseph E. Whepley was a veteran who had seen many officers but he said piuch about the Lieutenant of Triangle Hill. "Other oulfits tried and couldn't make it but he did the first time we tried," Whepley related. I asked the sergeant how he felt about the loss of his CO, but he didn't say anything. He turned around and wiped his eyes and then he walked away. Sgt. Herbert recalled the night I Knapp died. He said: "When the wounded were coming down, 1 told them, Lieut. Knapp was dead. Jt really hit them hard and they were crying because their company commander had died. "He did so much that night. There was a man who got into a bunker and was wounded by the Chinese inside. Lieut. Knapp and another man, they went up to the bunker, killed the Chinesfe inside and rescued the wounded man." Knapp's battalion commander, Maj. Warren B. Phillips of Eu- ; gene. Officials Union, Meeting To Talk Contract AB&W Transit Company officials and representatives of the bu8 drivers and shop workers union, which Friday night rejected the company's offer of a 10 cent an hour increase now and a boost to 23 cents within three years, continued negotiations this afternoon in an effort to avert a threatened strike at midnight this Friday, when the present contract expires. Although union and company officials had agreed on the 23 cent hourly increase over the three year period plus cost of living benefits, the union membership of approximately 285 refused to back its negotiators and voted down the offer at a referendum held last Friday. In a similar situation in 1949, Governor William Tuck took over the bus line for 10 months in accordance with the Virginia law which was interpreted at that time to mean that seizure and operation of a public utility threatened by a walkout was mandatory on the part of the governor. Recently, however, the law was changed by the Virginia legislature to leave this action to the uiscl'eCion of the governor. AB&W president and general manager, Beverly C- May, said that Edmond M. Boggs, State labor commissioner, has been notified by the company of the possibility of a strike so that he could advise Gov. John Battle of developments. The public, and this includes at least 75,000 daily AB&W bus riders, face an increase in fare, Mr. Maysaid, as a result of the proposed wage increase which he said w-ould cost the company $300,000 a year. He advised the negotiating committee that the company could not absorb this increase. The union involved is Local 1131, AFL Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric, Railway and Motor (See Bus Strike, Page 2, Please)

Political Bulletin By The Associated Press Dwight Eisenhower said today he will not be talked out of going to Korea to seek a way to end the war if he is elected president. At about the time Eisenhower was speaking in Philadelphia, his foe for the presidency, Adlai Stevenson, was telling a Quincy, Mass., crowd: "We are only a week from the election. I still don't know where the Republicans stand."

Claremont School Dedicated, Plans For New Unit Revealed

With the $567,428 Claremont elementary school dedicated yesterday, the Arlington School Board has announced plans for another new school near Military Road and North Stuart Street. The new school, to be called Taylor elementary school, will have either 14 or 20 class rooms, the board announced Saturday. If a contract is awarded for 20 class rooms, the school will be one of the largest elementary schools in the county. Bids on construction of both 14 and 20 class rooms will be opened late in November or early December, it was announced at a School Board meeting Saturday. School officials said funds for construction of the school are on hand from an $8,280,000 bond issue approved by Arlington voters in April. Of these bonds, $3,500,000 have been sold and are not affected by court litigation over the right of three School Board members to hold office. Taylor school will be built just west of Military Road, a few blocks north of Stratford junior high school. The board announced it already has awarded a $33,425 contract for grading the site for the new structure to J. O. and C. M. Stuart, Inc., of Washington. In other action Saturday the board asked its Citizens Advisory Committee on use of School Buildings and Grounds to study the feasibility of budgeting funds to pay expenses for use of school buildings for "desirable" community organizations, such as citizens associations and the county Recreation Department. At present, from $6 to $25 rent must be paid for use of a school building one night. Higher rent is charged profit making and political organizations. The board also voted to raise pay of night school teachers from $27.75 to $3.50 an hour. The raise will be retroactive to September 1 and will be provided from a contingency fund in the present school budget.

Voters Facing 200 Issues On Taxes, Labor CHICAGO (UP)—More than 200 proposals dealing with taxes, labor and other matters will be submitted to the voters of 37 states in the General Election Nov. 4. A survey made by Commerce Clearing House, a private law reporting organization, showed that the proposals include restrictions on union

Plans for new taxes include Colorado's 5 per cent severance tax on oil, Oregon's 1/10 cent tax on each 10 cigarettes sold, and a proposal in Arkansas to authorize a 1 per cent city property tax to promote new industries. Tax increases which will be put before the voters include a North Carolina proposal to raise from 15 to 20 cents the limit of total state and county taxes which may be assessed on each $100 property valuation. Other proposals would boost Oklahoma's sales tax rate from 2 to 3 per cent and raise Montana's gas tax one cent.

Besides the mess in the bathroom, nothing else in the apartment had been touched.

Red Artillery Drives Yanks Off The Hook By STAN CARTER SEOUL, Korea (A5)—Punishing Red artillery fire tonight drove U. S. Marines off the crest of "the Hook" a few hours after they recaptured the western ridgeline in bitter close quarter fighting. A Marine officer at the front said the Leathernecks pulled back from the crest and forward slopes at 8:55 p.m. There was no indication whether the Chinese Communists moved up to occupy the high ground. The Reds earlier had attacked with 2,000 men along a three-mile front. The Marine officer said "the Communists made only a small penetration in our line. It was contained and never got out of hand." Main target was the Hook and Marine outposts along a three-mile sector to the north. The Hook is about 10-12 miles east of Panmunjom, site of the recessed armistice talks. The Marine officer said the Chinese attack was well-planned and well executed. The Leathernecks of the U. S. First Marine Division roiled with the punch, then started a series of counterattacks that carried them back to the top.

Va's VMW Gives Word To 60,000 Federal Review Of Pay Raise Expected Today WASHINGTON W — John L. Lewis today ordered striking soft coal miner* to go back to work at once. The chief of the United Min* Workers messaged all union district officers that it was his opinion work should be resumed pending government reconsideration of whether the miners may have a $1.90 a day pay increase which the Industry has agreed t.o. The Wage Stabilization Board (W'SB) trimmed the rise to $1.50, holding that a higher boost would violate the government's anti-inflation program.

NORTON, Va. UP Officials of the United Mine Workers District 29 embracing Southern West Virginia and Southwestern Virginia said its 50,000 miners are being notified to resume work "as soon as possible." President Truman had appealed directly to Lewis to get the miners back to work. Truman invited Lewis to the White House last night and the request Lewis promised operation. Immediately after the conference, the president left on final political campaign tour. The industry and the union have jointly appealed the decision of the Wage Board. Their appeal is to Roger Putnam, economic stabilization director, who has authority to overrule board decisions. Associates of Lewis have made it plain that he expects the full pay raise will be approved in a day or two. Union headquarters made public the following telegram from Lewis to district officers: "The joint industry request to the executive branch of the government. for approval of the industry agreement is pending. It will require a reasonable time for review of attendant facts and rereaching of the decision. "It is my opinion that our industry should be operating during that period and then that the best interests of the mine workers and the public will thus be served. "I am therefore requesting an immediate resumption of operation at all mines in all districts and I am urging each member of our union to return to work at once. "Please notify all local unions and all members of the message and utilize the services of all offices and field representatives in notifying the membership and requesting their fullest cooperation. Please acknowledge receipt of this telegram and state what steps are being taken in your district." Even before the Lewis telegram was made public here, its receipt had been made known by one district union leader. John Busarello, at Pittsburgh. He heads District 5. Busarello said he expected some miners to go back to work on the shift ordinarily reporting at 4 p.m. "We're trying to get word to the miners as fast as possible," he said "We'll do everything to comply with the orders of the boss."

Fire Destroys Home Set For Celebration CHICAGO (1VS) — GI Joseph Maurer, Jr. is scheduled to return to Chicago from Korea any day now, but the house he has eagerly anticipated living in again won't be awaiting his homecoming. Maurer's parents had been sprucing up the house for two months to welcome the 24-year-old combat veteran home. Yesterday, a fire which had started in a nearby vacant house spread to the refurbished home. Mr. and Mrs. Maurer and six children escaped, but the blaze destroyed the new carpets, linoleum, Venetian blinds, furniture and the house.

That Was All!• Official United Marions Investigators liave reported that more than 10 million men, women and children are imprisoned in slave labor camps in Russia, Communist Cnina. and Red satellite nations. The most secret, most forbidding of all are the Uranium mines of Eastern Europe, where prisoners work around the clock digging the ore for Stalin's atom bombs. Here, for the first time, is an eyewitness account of life in the Red prison mines, told by Ivan Pluhar, a 25 year old law student from Czechoslovakia, who arrived in the United States recently following a dramatic escape from the notorious Joachmystal Uranium mines. This is the first of three articles.)By IVAN PLUHAR (Copyright, 1952, by INS') NEW YORK — Two menacing rows of barbed wire circled the area It was called the Joaehmystal Uranium Mine and was said to hold some of the richest Uranium deposits in the world. The first thing we saw, lying by the road, was a prisoner who had just been shot ahd killed by a guard. That was my introduction to two years of "heavy prison" duty as a "criminal against the state" in Communist-h e 1 d Czechoslovakia. My sentence in the top-secret Uranium mine, working the crude ore that forms the basic material for the atom bomb, was supposed to run for 15 years. I shortened my sentence the only possible way—escape. Before my trial, I spent two months in a police station at Brno, where I was interrogated four or five times a week, eight, hours at a stretch. The first night 1 was arrested 1 was questioned by relays of Secret Security Police from 10:30 at night until 8 a.m. the next day. They beat the soles of my . feet with a rubber hose in hopes that 1 would implicate others. After a while, they stopped beating my feel and began to bang my head against the wall by hitting me on the forehead with an open palm. I heard that some of the prisoners who had been "interrogated" were beaten on the feet, until they fainted: and then a pail of cold water was thrown over them to bring them to. Another trick the police used to l]g confessions from suspects, ^ito put a pair of special boots „s. Jke prisoner. The boots were »fcvcJrically wired and would shock him until he became so weak he was unable to resist the questioning. In their efforts to extort confessions. the police sometimes tied a prisoner's leg back at the knee, hung him swinging upside down by that leg from the ceiling and then struck him so that he twisted alternately in opposite directions. My trial lasted two days. I came rip before the president of the court, another judge, two representatives of the "people" (who were considered judges also), a military expert, a member of the OBZ t Security News Service) and three lawyers. One of the lawyers was "mine" —but, of course, he also was for the "State." The only thing he did for me was to ask for clemency in my ease because of my youth— 1 was 22 then. After the trial was over and I had been convicted and sentenced to 15 years of heavy prison (not the same as hard labor1, all I felt was a great relief: at least I was not to be executed. Six other prisoners and myself were placed in fine new cars — they are called Skoda-Diesels — and taken half-way across Czechoslovakia to the distribution prison camp of Ostrov (.Vikmanov). The Communists thought they could fool the people by transporting us in cars instead of trucks, for we had to go through many cities and they didn't want the people to know we were being sent, to the mines. There was a Czech law that prohibited political prisoners from being sent to work camps, but the Reds just winked at that, 1 arrived at the central distribution camp on Sept. 3, 1949, and stayed there for two days before being sent to the Joachimstal Uranium mine. While at the distribution camp, I was issued my prisoner garb. The pants were dark brown and made of a material like burlap. They had a wide red stripe running down the outside so that we could be identified as prisoners. The shirt was of coarse cotton, and the coat was made of the same material as the pants and came barely to the waist. Some of the coats had a large red cross on the back. Others had a bullseye in the center of the back. The shoes were coarse armytype boots. We were not given any socks. They gave us white underwear and puttees, and a small hat that resembled an army overseas cap. I wore these same clothes from the time I was imprisoned, in 1949, until I escaped in September, 1951. When we arrived at the central distribution camp, I knew then that I was going to a Uranium mine, but I was not too discouraged. I kept thinking that it would not last long and that we would be liberated by free elections in the country, under the auspices of the United Nations. I did not think this was so fantastic in 1949, as at least 90 per cent of the Czech people thought the Communist Putsch of Feb. 28, 1949, when the Reds got control, was a crime. Anti-Communists were strong in Czechoslovakia, until the Communist Action Committees were established. It was their task to expel or arrest anti-communists, and they were very successful. After that, people were afraid to speak out against the new government. I will always remember the day I arrived at the Joachimstal camp. About 60 of us had been herded like cattle into trucks for the two-hour ride to the mine from the distribution camp, and the first thing I saw on arrival was the prisoner who had just been shot and killed by a guard. Two other prisoners carried him past, and the civilian SNB guards (State Police!) treated the dead man with complete contempt. They ordered that the body be put in a correctional cell until a car came and took it away. Prisoners who had seen the brutal shooting said that the man had been pouring concrete and that he went over to test a slab to see if it was dry. A guard told him to "halt" — and the prisoner didn't hear him. That was all. I found myself in a place where men walked by with scarred hands and pallid, almost greenish complexion; men who saw relatives and friends only at lengthy intervals, and then not within the mining stockade, but under supervision at a nearby village. I was in a country of heavy rolling forests, where the Iron Curtain is a series of watchtowers and low wooden huts with slits for the machineguns. And where, Uranium mines, work never stops. WV States (Continued from Page 1) session, The League, therefore, urges everyone to vote "Yes" on Questions 1, 2 and 7 on the ballot. On Question 6, which is the constitutional amendment permitting the assembly to appropriate funds to an agency or to a school or institution of learning in another state, the Virginia State League of Women Voters takes no official stand for or against, but makes the following explanation: "The proposed change in the State Constitution would permit Virginia to participate fully in the Southern Regional Education Council. The State already belongs to the organization, designed to coordinate the graduate and professional school training of the Southern States, but the Constitution prohibits the appropriation of funds for educational institutions not directly controlled by a State agency. "The regional education plan would allow a Virginia student, for example, to enroll in a South Carolina institution of higher learning if he could get training there not available at any of the Virginia schools. The educational conference would handle the financial details. At this time, a limited number of students from West Virginia, where there are no state medical schools, are accepted by the University of Virginia for medical training. "The proposal is aimed especially at providing more educational opportunities for Negroes without breaking down segregation barriers and without the individual states having to construct separate educational facilities of their own in every field."

County School Nurse Honored Mrs. Mayche Saunders, of the nursing staff of the Arlington schools, was honored this week by being the first public health nurse ever invited to address the Virginia Teachers' Association. The organization held its annual convention in Richmond. Mrs. Saunders, who is in charge of nursing services for Arlington's Negro schools, spoke at Friday's session. Her subject was "Better Health For the School Child." She stressed the need for correction of physical defects in childhood in order to insure better health in adult life. Before coming to the Arlington schools Mrs. Saunders was with the United States Public Health Service. She is a graduate nurse from the Medical College of Virginia, and has had additional training in public health nursing. She has been with the Arlington public school health services for three and a half years. When she first came to Arlington she divided her time between the schools and the Arlington Tuberculosis Association, but is now employed full time with the schools.

Knapp (Continued from Page 1) the nation's highest decoration. He said: "Knapp was one of those quiet types you don't usually associate with heroes. "Here was a man who had every reason to be afraid. Not regular army, he was a reserve, a veterinarian in civilian life with a wife and two small children. And he was due to go home early next month. "He led his men through mortar and artillery fire and kept them moving. When he got to the top, it wasn't as planned. There were no trenches to take over and the Chinese in the bunkers had to be flushed out. "He kept moving among his men, directing them, keeping them moving. And when the objective was secured, he had the men dig in to get set for the counterattack. "About 1830 they hit. Easy Company. Knapp was up and around, going from foxhole to foxhole, moving through the artillery fire and he was killed." Lieut Miles C. Adkins of Coulee City, Wash., took over Easy Company after Knapp was killed. "I never saw a man," he said, "with such personal concern for the people under him. The way he could talk to you could make a fighting soldier out of anyone." Sgt. Harold St. Onge of Glencoe, Mo., couldn't forget his company commander. He said: "Knapp was the best man I've ever known. You could not find a better man anywhere. He was it. "He wouldn't let a man do anything he wouldn't do himself. He used to tell me to stay out of trouble and then he would do what I had been doing. "You had to stop him all the time for otherwise he would be the point, the lead man." Lieut. Samuel W. Moseley of Englewood, N. J. was wounded before the battle ended and learned Knapp was dead at a hospital. He said: "The first time I heard he was dead it was a rumor and I refused to believe it. Then I found out It was true. "He was not very old but he was just like an old father to everybody. "There were so many things we would have talked about if he had lived, things he could have told me. • "But now I never will talk to him again."

Democratic (Continued from Page 1) Sen. Purtell and Prescott Bush, Republicans. Curiously, Purtell and Ribicoff are slight favorites. Delaware: Tight race between Republican Sen. Williams and Democrat Alexis DuPont Bayard. Indiana: Neck-and-neck, battle between Republican Sen. Jenner and Democrat Gov. Schricker. Maryland: Close contest between Rep. Beall (R) and Mahoney (D). Montana: Rep. Mansfield (D) and Sen. Ecton (R). Utah: Sen. Watkins (R) and Rep. Granger (D). Wyoming: Sen. O'Mahoney (D) battling Gov. Barrett (R). A presidential landslide either way could wash out today's favorites and give one party or the other a big Senate victory.

Halloween In Atlanta Is Like Mardi Gras In New Orleans

By MARGARET BREWER ATLANTA (INS)—They are going to make a real production number out of Halloween this year in Atlanta, where the observance always touches off the biggest celebration of the year anyway. No one seems to know how the tradition began, but Halloween in Atlanta is something like Mardi Gras in New Orleans, on a smaller, though not less exultant, scale. Everything will stop on the Eve of All Saints in Atlanta this Friday. Police will block all traffic from the downtown area and the streets will swarm with maskers and masqueraders. As a gala touch, the day also launches the city's debutante season. This year a professional-like touch will be added to all these usual events, to make the pharisees parading down Peachtree Street even more terrifying than the amateur haunts that marched heretofore on Oct. 31. Art students of the University of Georgia's Atlanta division have been turning all their talents for weeks toward making this the most original, yet constructive, Halloween in local history. Lloyd P. Miller, head of the Art Department, explained. "The students wanted to do something different in costuming this year, create costumes that also could decorate the gym for their Halloween ball." The result is weirdly illuminated fish and fire-breathing dragons. Students, carving flashlights, will walk inside these giant paper lanterns in the shape of monsters. It will be the first time that a real honest-to-gosh parade of such super-monsters has been staged during Atlanta's noisy celebration, and some hope it may be a sign of even greater things to come. In addition to adding a more professional touch to the city's catch-as-catch-can Halloween celebration, Miller thinks the college students will, give additional zest to the occasion. He pointed out that sobersides veterans studying under the GI Bill are mostly gone and that student bodies now consist of much younger boys and girls, to whom Halloween is a real frolic.

POLITICAL FRONT

Adlai, Ike Start Final Week Still Seeking Vote Of East

By The Associated Press Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and i Gov. Adlai Stevenson swung today j into the final and decisive week of j their battle for the presidency, ! each concentrating on the votej rich east. Stevenson opens the day's effort with a whistlestop talk in Quincy, Mass., followed ten speeches later with a night address in New York City's Harlem. The Democratic nominee's whirlwind drive is aimed at capturing the 73 electoral votes of Massachusetts < 16 votes', Connecticut (8) Rhode Island (4) and New York [(45) states. Eisenhower, the Republican ean- ! didate, plans a full day in Pennsylvania. which has 32 electoral votes. Tomorrow and the next two days he has on tap an intensive tour of New York City and its suburbs. Eisenhower's schedule for the closing week is still largely unfilled, but. it includes another appearance in Chicago, from where he may go to California, and a trip to Boston next Monday, the day before election. Stevenson was in Boston yesterday, malting what he called "nonpolitical" speeches there and in nearby cities. He drew' big, cheering crowds wherever he went. At Boston, Stevenson told a group of veterans he hoped they would help find ways of cutting federal spending. He said veterans themselves could do much about "restraining" public officials who want their vote. Eisenhower, when he gets to Pittsburgh late today, is expected to reply to the Democrats' accu- j sations that his pledge to go to Korea, if elected, was a "grandstand play.' The general sprung the surprise statement Friday night in a speech at Detroit. He accused President Truman's administration of ignoring expert advice on withdrawing American troops from Korea. If elected, he said, his primary goal would be an honorable peace in Korea and he w'ould visit there in a personal effort to achieve it. President Truman took off at 4:30 a m. on his final whistle-stop tour in behalf of the StevensonSparkman ticket. He has a light day on tap—no talks scheduled until 3:25 p.m. at Willard, Ohio, and only one more, at Deshler. Ohio, before his train pulls into Gary, Ind., tonight for the first of! six speeches. j The tour will take Truman through seven midwestern states— Indiana Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois. Iowa, Oltio and Missouri—to his Independence, Mo., home, where he will vote Nov. 4 and await election results. The vice-presidential nominees, Democratic Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama and Republican Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, were also stumping. Nixon flew out of Chicago for Texas to address seven audiences 1 in ten hours. A spokesman said he[will reply to the Democrats' claim, "you never had it so good," with a development of the theme, ; "there are 110,000 boys in Korea ! who have never had it so bad." I Sparkman, recovered from laryn- | gititis which had temporarily side- | lined him, returned to the political i stump at Bakersfield, Calif. In an | interview- yesterday,, he criticized ! Eisenhower's promise to go to j Korea. "What could Eisenhower do?" he ; asked. "All the chiefs of staff have been there and they haven't been able to do anything about ending it." John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Union, made his second political speech of the campaign Saturday night at. Morgantown, W. Va. Lewis, who is supporting Stevenson, said the Republican party "has dedicated itself to the reflection of the viewpoint of the men of substance and wealth." * Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, New \ork Democrat, delivered a blast Sunday at "the forces gathered under the banner of the McCarthy brand of anti-communism." In a speech, he said,they "most closely resemble the Communists in tactics, strategy, aim and purpose." Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, is scheduled to make a nationwide radio and television speech tonight. He has said it will be a "carefully documented history" of Stevenson's activities during the past 17 years. The nation's newsmen believe that, if the election had been held in mid-October, 1952 would go down as a Republican year, with Eisenhower the likely winner over Stevenson. Newspaper editors and political correspondents made two political surveys for the Associated Press. Around Labor Day they clocked Eisenhower as leading, and estimate he has picked up strength since then in 30 of the 48 states. But when they made their mid-October estimates they said forces still at work required rating the Nov. 4 election outcome as close and uncertain. Yet it is the combined judgment of more than 300 participating newsmen that the October survey showed a general trend toward Eisenhower. As they see it, there is little indication Eisenhower now might capture many more states than expected originally. Rather, they believe the trend lies mostly in a stronger hold on states already seemingly committed to the GOP and in a shift of some states from the wavering to the more certain. The only state believed to have switched allegiance from the Democrats is Stevenson's own Illinois, which has 27 electoral votes. Newsmen thought Eisenhower might take it by a hairline margin. Editors believe Stevenson has improved his chances in 11 states in recent weeks. Two, Washington and Utah, were estimated six weeks ago to be leaning slightly Ex-Chaplain Gives ChristScience Talk "Player is the most vital force in the world today, because it is the very presence and power of God expressing itself," said Arthur C. Whitney, C.S., of Chicago, before a large audience in the Claude A. Swanson School, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Whitney, a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., spoke here under auspices of the Second Church of Christ Scientist in the course of a nationwide tour. His subject was "Christian Science: A Foundation for World Brotherhood and Peace." "Never underestimate the power of the prayer of spiritual understanding to meet any human need. I have seen and experienced wonderful instances of guidance and protection on the battlefields of Belgium and France," said the lecturer, who is a former United States Army Chaplain who saw service with an infantry company. "I know that more general application of the universal prayer of spiritual understanding can meet the world's needs today. While our country is mobilizing and using its material resources and men, and we thoroughly support this activity, we recognize that there is a great need to mobilize our spiritual forces and assets. We should earnestly seek God's help in this troubled situation. We need to put these spiritual forces into active service through daily prayer and living. "Until the minds of men are changed, no victory can bring permanent peace and brotherhood. Let me tell you of a simple spiritual basis of practical universal prayer that can change the minds of men so as to do away with organized national and international aggression, domination, deceit, greed and dishonesty. The whole world is crying out for a real basis for brotherhood among men. The universal prayer of spiritual understanding in Christian Science offers a practical way for accomplishing this." Former congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce, in a New York telecast sponsored by the Republican Party, said Stevenson is. protecting President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson »ho, she said, have kept espionage information from the public. Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, campaigning for the Republican ticket in Montana, said in an interview at Billings: "I think the, trip to Korea (Eisenhower's) Is necessary. You can always learn . more on the ground than you can from reports."

Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, on an NBC television show from Washington, repeated his charge that Eisenhower's proposed visit to Korea is "a grandstand play for votes." Me added: "This involves the lives and hopes .of all of us, arid X deplore that kind of matter getting into the campaign." Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York said on a Dumont television show in New York that Eisenhower, if he went to Korea, would come back witM* an "accurate, clear" program. Dewey accused President Truman of "a piece of cheap demagoguery" for saying that Elsenhower should make public now any plan he has for peace in Korea.

In addition, 34 groups of students are on double shifts in seven schools. A total of 617 instructional spaces are being used, the release states. Of these, 353 are considered standard classrooms and 264 temporary. 1 A detailed analysis of the temporary classroom spaces shows the following in use: Quonset huts, 25; *36 standard rooms partitioned into 71 temporary spaces; old schools or frame buildings to be abandoned, when new construction available, 61 I rooms; apartments, 13; libraries, j 18; auditoriums, 11; cafeterias, 7; basements, 8; industrial art and shop rooms, 6; dressing rooms, 4; Offices, 6; bookroom, 1; multipurpose room, 1; clinic, 1; old music room, 1; stage, 3; storage room, 2; playrooms, 2; home ec, 4; conference room, 1; Grange Hall, 2;- firehouse, 8; church, 1; town hall, 2; agricultural building, 1; government club house, 4; an annex, 4; other rented spaces, 4; and lastly, an upstairs room (No explanation of what an upstairs room is). The present enrollment is more, than 20,000, but by 1055 this figure jg expected to jump to 28 000. School officials, Parent-Teacher and oivie groups are cooperating in an effort to place

Bus Strike (Continued from Pa 1) , * ' Coaches Operators of America. Members of the union's negotiating committee meeting today with the , management are Joseph C. Maiden, John J. Dulin, Kemp S. Cockrell, Martin J. Bond, William Jackson, and S. E. Kerns. Jt Mr. May and R. T. Mitche* , *den president, and assistant general ; manager, represent the company. The agreement, signed by both company and union negotiators and then rejected by union members, provided specifically for a 10 cents per hour wage increase, retroactive to September 29, 1952; an additional three cents per hour increase to b« effective May 4, 1953; an additional five cents per hour increase on November 2, 1953; arid five cents per hour more on November 1, 1954, bringing the total wage increase to 23 cents per hour over a period of three years. An escalator clause was added to the proposal providing for increases or decreases in the wage rates in accordance with the U.S. ^ .abor Department Cost of Living Price Index. The company offered to make an adjustment of one cent per hour for each 1.2 points change in the index. The company believes that it has njade' the best offer possible, Mr. Witchell said late this morning. He said they made the offer thinking they had a contract since the union negotiators had actually signed the agreement which was later rejected by the union members. The refusal to accept the proposed contract was based on the fact that even with the 10 cents an hour increase; AB&W wages would be 13 cents an hour behind those paid by Capital Transit and 10 cents an hour behind those paid by the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Company, a union official said, and added that the drivers want an hourly salary which is at least five cents within the top rate paid in the area. There was no official statement from the union represmatives, though one would probably be prepared for release later today, said Martin J. Bond. "We all hope for a happy solution to the problem," he added.
