

Arlington Votes
3 Independents
On County BoardGeorge Rowzee,
Republican, Takes
Full-Term Contest

Arlington nonpartisans, who have had considerable success in the past by running candidates for the County Board without party labels, yesterday were confronted by a group with the same idea and came out second best.

Arlington Independent Movement candidates, Dr. Robert H. Detwiler, Alvin F. Kimel and Mrs. Leone B. Buchholz won the contests to fill three unexpired terms.

A Republican, George M. Rowzee, Jr., won the four-year race for the full term on the board.

Independent Movement had the endorsement of the Democratic and Republican parties. There was no Independent Movement candidate in the race for the full term.

In Majority Since 1950.

The nonpartisans have been represented on the board since 1947 and had a majority since 1950. Their three members on the board were ousted by a court decision last September banning Federal employees from serving on the board, and the special election was called to fill the vacancies.

Four out of five registered voters in the county went to the polls yesterday for a record total vote of 36,673. Every one of the 29 precincts voted for Gen. Eisenhower.

The Non-partisan slate in the special election for the three unexpired board terms carried only the apartment areas of Arlington and Clarendon and two other precincts, East Falls Church and Arlington Forest.

In the race for the one-year term, Dr. Detwiler defeated Mrs. Ruth Cox, wife of former Board Chairman Robert W. Cox, a Non-partisan, by 19,689 to 13,356. Mrs. Cox was running for the seat vacated by her husband.

Mrs. Buchholz won the seat vacated by Non-partisan Daniel A. Dugan by a vote of 18,409 to 13,918 for Mrs. Martha Gammon, Non-partisan. Mrs. Buchholz will serve for two years.

Mr. Kimel was elected for the three-year term, succeeding Non-partisan Alan L. Dean, by a vote of 18,977 to 13,302 for William J. DeMik, Non-partisan.

To Take Office Soon.

The successful Independent Movement slate is expected to take office within the next few days.

Mr. Rowzee was elected to succeed Board Chairman Alfred E. Frisbie, Democrat, whose term expires December 31. The G. O. P. candidate defeated Non-partisan Ivan A. Booker by the narrow margin of 11,440 to 11,376. Also in the race were Wesley W. Cooper, Democrat, 6,542, and Jacob C. Bechtel, Independent Republican, 1,678.

Mr. Rowzee, who had endorsed Independent Movement candidates, said the election proved that Non-partisans constitute only a minority of the county's voting population.

Mr. Kimel said the success of Independent Movement undoubtedly means that it will be continued by Democrats, Republicans and Independents as a method of nominating County Board members.

Ex-President of Society.

Dr. Detwiler, 42, lives at 5027 North Thirtieth street. He is a pediatrician and a former president of the Arlington County Medical Society. He attended Clarendon Elementary School, Western High School and Georgetown University. He is married and has three children.

Mr. Kimel, 36, is president of a furniture chain and lives at 5105 South Tenth street. He has been active in the Chamber of Commerce. He is married and has two children.

Mrs. Buchholz, 54, is a former school principal. She lives at 2721 South Arlington Ridge road. Mrs. Buchholz has been president of the Organized Women Voters.

Mr. Rowzee, 39, is assistant cashier at the Lincoln National Bank in Washington and lives at 4803 South Twenty-ninth street. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the board last year. He is married and has a son.

To Avoid Spending Spree.

Independent Movement candidates, in their campaign, promised to avoid ill-considered spending, to encourage development of schools, oppose all forms of speculation and encourage more revenue-producing business. They said, "Confidence must be restored to our people that they will receive impartial, dignified and courteous treatment when they present their problems to the County Board."

Non-partisans charged the Independent Movement was a front for a group of developers and real estate men. The Non-partisans defended their record and said that if further tax increases are necessary, they should come from a higher business license tax, not higher real estate taxes.

Big Victory in House Contest
Left Him 'Numb,' Hyde Says

Republican DeWitt S. Hyde said today his overwhelming victory in the race for Representative from Maryland's 6th district left him "a little numb."

Mr. Hyde was dining with friends last night when the return came in.

"I felt a little numb," he smiled, "but we expected to win."

A victory celebration started at Republican headquarters in Silver Spring before his opponent, Mrs. Stella Werner, conceded defeat, at midnight.

"I wish to congratulate my opponent," Mrs. Werner said. "Although I have lost the majority vote, my life has been enriched by the experience of this campaign, particularly by the association with the people of the 6th district."

"The sustained interest and hard work of the many volunteers who shared in the campaign has been a wonderful demonstration of democracy in action. Their experience will be of personal gain to them and will benefit their own communities. I wish to thank them publicly for their generous support."

Mr. Hyde is the first resident of Montgomery County to be elected to Congress in more than 50 years. He said he would maintain an extra office in Cumberland "to make the people of Western Maryland feel as close to me as those of Montgomery County so they will not feel they have lost a Congressman."

Republican J. Glenn Beall has represented the 6th district in Congress for 10 years, but yesterday was elected Senator.

Fairfax Board
To Get Petitions
On School BondsReferendum Asked
On Building New Education Facilities

Petitions for a new school construction bond issue will be presented to the Fairfax County School Board at a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The meeting was called after the school board was advised yesterday that enough signatures have been obtained to call the referendum. The special meeting was requested by Dr. John C. Lang, head of the Citizens Commission for Fairfax County Public Schools, which was one of several groups circulating the petition.

Amount of the bond issue is to be fixed by the school board after all new school needs are calculated. The petition then will be presented to the Circuit Court and it is expected the referendum will be held in January.

The school board yesterday indicated it would stand by plans to build all the high school gymnasiums set up in the current bond issue. Last week, the school board was requested by the Floris School Parent-Teacher Association to hold up gymnasium construction and use the money for elementary classroom construction. The Floris PTA wants a new 12-classroom school to replace the present old building.

More than 50 parents from Mount Vernon district appeared at yesterday's meeting to urge construction of the gymnasium as it was set up in the current bond issue. Mount Vernon High School is among those due to get a gymnasium.

Although the school board indicated it was going ahead with the gymnasium, members agreed to assign an architect to draw plans for a new Floris elementary school. After the meeting adjourned yesterday, board members inspected a proposed new Floris school site and repairs made on the present Floris building.

Mr. Hyde, who lives at 5304 Elm street, Bethesda, said he will resign his seat as Maryland Senator from Montgomery County. The Republican State Central Committee of Montgomery County will select a successor to be appointed by Republican Gov. McKeldin.

Mr. Hyde has served half of a four-year term in the State Legislature.

Mr. Hyde is the first resident of Montgomery County to be elected to Congress in more than 50 years. He said he would maintain an extra office in Cumberland "to make the people of Western Maryland feel as close to me as those of Montgomery County so they will not feel they have lost a Congressman."
