

1957 SEPTEMBER 1957
SUN	MON	TUE	WED	THU	FRI	SAT
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8	9	10	11	12	13	14
15	16	17	18	19	20	21
22	23	24	25	26	27	28
29	30

J. MAYNARD MAGRUDER HERBERT L. BROWN, Jr.

ARLINGTON FOES—Candidates of Arlington's two major Democratic factions in the county board race spoke at a meeting opening the campaign last night. —Star Staff Photos.

Arlington Board Race Pits 2 in Sharp Debate

By SAM EASTMAN

The Arlington County Board race got off to a brisk start last night, with one candidate crying foul and another warning of a political shell game.

The third candidate could not make the meeting, but he sent a letter suggesting it was time for a close look at the operation of the county's schools.

At stake in the November 5 election is the controlling vote on Arlington's, five-member governing body. In the race are J. Maynard Magruder, Arlington Independent Movement; Herbert L. Brown, Jr., Arlingtonians for a Better County, and Julius Brenner, an independent.

Mr. Magruder, 56, is a real-estate man. Mr. Brown, 44, is managing editor of Changing Times Magazine. Of the two coalition political groups, AIM is the more conservative. Mr. Brenner, 36, is a part owner of an Arlington bakery.

Sketches Assembly Record
Last night Mr. Magruder led off by outlining his record in the Virginia General Assembly, where he served 12 years, and the experience gained with numerous civic organizations and governmental committees.

The voters, Mr. Magruder said, have a choice of his "achievement and performance" or of Mr. Brown's "promises and inaction."

On this point, Mr. Brown countered by stating that he cannot match "Mr. Magruder's long political history" but that this carries with it the advantage of not owing political debts.

Moving into the offense, Mr. Brown expressed "regret" that his opponent should be seeking a county board seat while engaged in the real estate business.

If Mr. Magruder is elected, Mr. Brown said, he will be called upon to make decisions that "could involve serious conflicts of his (real estate) interests and the best interests of the county."

Speaking at a meeting of the Madison Manor Citizens

Association, Mr. Magruder claimed foul play.

Fair Play Challenged
"My opponents," he stated at the meeting in McKinley Elementary School, "are not playing fair" in selecting a candidate who lives "a few hundred yards" from two county board members.

Mr. Brown's home is at 2710 South Hayes street, a short distance from the homes of David L. Krupsaw and Mrs. Leone Buchholz. Mr. Krupsaw is an ABC-elected member; and Mrs. Buchholz was elected on the AIM ticket.

To this, Mr. Brown said he was "shocked" to find that Mr. Magruder considers the nearness of his home to these two board members an issue.

Mr. Brown also told the audience that Mr. Magruder has emphasized his personal record but has said nothing about AIM.

This, Mr. Brown said, is "the old political shell game" that has been used by AIM candidates in the past. Last year, Mr. Brown added, a voter had to "have a microscope to find a mention of AIM" in the literature of Dr. L. H. Blevins, the successful county board candidate.

Mr. Magruder responded that the political organization was secondary to the individual candidate, that when he voted that ballot represented his own personal convictions.

The third candidate, Mr. Brenner, sent a letter stating that the campaign's outstanding issue will be the public schools. Mr. Brenner said it is time for a second look at budgetary aspects and curricula.

North Branch High Dam Pictured as Flood Curb

By JOHN W. STEPP

Star Staff Correspondent

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 10.—A high dam on the North Branch of the Potomac in the mountains near Luke, Md., would afford "almost complete" flood protection for areas along the stream for about 50 miles farther on.

By so doing, such a dam would invite more industry, greater employment and more tax revenues into the area. The structure would serve also to insure a steady water supply at all times of the year for industry and municipalities alike.

Its effect, in combination with two other dam possibilities being studied in the Western Maryland-West Virginia vicinity, might even be felt all the way down to the metropolitan Washington area.

These were some of the points made here yesterday by officials of the Washington Engineer District which shepherds the Potomac water shed as an arm of the Army Engineer Corps.

Experts Have Their Say
The engineers were among several witnesses heard yesterday by the Potomac River Basin Committee of the Maryland Legislative Council. The committee, led by acting chairman William B. Wheeler, Democratic delegate from Montgomery, spent the entire day listening to the views of experts and the residents who must live with the Potomac's problems day in and day out.

Most of the group were on hand for the two separate sessions held in Kitzmiller, Md., and in this metropolis of Maryland's mountain country. They were joined by other legislative leaders including Representative Hyde, Republican of Maryland, and Speaker John

C. Luber of the Maryland House of Delegates.

Field tours to the North Branch in both sections gave the officials a close glimpse of the most immediate problem—in both instances, flood control.

It was this concern over floods that prompted Donald Birrell, civilian engineering expert of the Washington district, to bring out the importance of more dams in the headwaters. The Potomac's lone water storage dam is located above Luke on the Savage River.

Study Almost Completed
Mr. Birrell reminded his listeners that the District office is almost finished with its study of three additional dam sites. One is upstream from the present Savage River Dam, the other on Stony River in West Virginia and the third—and most significant—on the North Branch above Luke.

If any of the three are to be built, the latter should be built first, he said. "This dam, right off," he said, "would give almost complete flood protection from Luke down to the confluence with the South Branch (near Paw Paw, W.Va.)."

By freeing the so-called "flood plain" from the danger, about 4,000 acres of land would become desirable sites for industrial or other development. Railway connections already are available, and the water is there if its flow can be regulated to provide adequate supply even in dry seasons and to dilute the pollution at all times to make the water more usable.

These beneficial effects far upstream quite likely could be reflected down stream as far as Washington, Mr. Birrell indicated. These aspects will be included in the engineers' current comprehensive survey of the watershed. In any case the benefits, whatever they might be, would not remove the need for major water impoundment closer to the Washington area and its huge, thirsty population.

DESPITE PET BAN, GREENBELT LOOKS FOR DOG CATCHER

The city of Greenbelt, Md., is looking for a dog catcher even though most homeowners are barred from having pets.

City Manager Charles T. McDonald said the no-pet ban of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., includes about 85 per cent of the homes in Greenbelt. The city itself has no such regulation.

It does have a city ordinance, however, against dogs running around at large without muzzles or being on a leash. Violators are subject to fines of from $2 to $25.

Lansburgh's

WASHINGTON D. C. - LANGLEY PARK, MARYLAND

on sale Wednesday only one-day specials

29.95 modern metal desk and chair

Wednesday only 18⁸⁸

Black metal desk measures 30" high, is designed in sleek, modern lines. Grey marlite top, metal shelves. With comfortable metal chair upholstered in charcoal plastic. Legs have gleaming brass ferrules. Handsome, distinctive styling.

Lansburgh's—HOUSEWARES—Washington, Sixth Floor; Langley Park, Md., Lower Level

19.95 "Meadow Mist" pattern 45-pc. dinner set

Wednesday only 12⁹⁹

Set includes 8 each dinner plates, bread and butters, cups, saucers, soups; 1 each vegetable dish, creamer, covered sugar and platter. Smart floral spray in black, turquoise and grey on yellow background—a smart, modern design.

Lansburgh's—CHINA—Washington, Sixth Floor; Langley Park, Md., First Floor

direct your light with this 19.98 wall pulley lamp

Wednesday only 9⁹⁸

Up, down, where you want it... your light can be directed as you please. Brass wall pulley lamp with polyplastex shade decorated with fall leaves, metal diffuser. Smart, modern, attractive lighting to give a new look to your home.

Lansburgh's—LAMPS—Washington, Sixth Floor; Langley Park, Md., Lower Level

twin-size Englander headboard bed

box springs on legs, mattress and plastic headboard

Complete sleep set at savings! Famous Englander mattress with no-sag crush-proof border, multicoil tempered steel innersprings insulated with sisal pads, upholstered with layers of cotton felt. Box spring on legs and Florentine pattern plastic headboard that's easy to clean.

Wednesday only

59⁹⁵

Lansburgh's—BEDDING—Washington, Fifth Floor; Langley Park, Md., Lower Level

four-drawer bachelor chest

mahogany veneers on cabinet hardwoods

39.95 value Wednesday only 22⁹⁵

Versatile piece of furniture for hall-way, living room, bedroom or den. 30"x30"x16" with four generous drawers, gleaming brass pulls. Use singly or as a pair for a double dresser to make a handsome addition to your room.

Lansburgh's—FURNITURE—Washington, Fifth Floor; Langley Park, Md., Lower Level

75.90 9x12-ft. rug and pad

Firth or Magee's broadloom

Wednesday only 54⁹⁵

This is a rug you can count on for long wear and beauty! Woven by two of our country's outstanding mills, loomed to give you durability and good looks at savings. Choose tone on tone or floral patterns in a blend of wool, for long wear, and rayon for added lustre and strength. Complete with mothproof pad.

Lansburgh's—RUGS—Washington, Fourth Floor; Langley Park, Md., Lower Level

orig. 3.59 and 3.79 Dacron* marquisette

tailored curtains

Wednesday only 1⁹⁹ pr.

Dacron marquisette, your most practical curtain fabric. Won't sag, won't pucker, weave stays uniform always. Drip dry, just press. With cord edge that keeps them hanging straight, 5" bottom hem. 96" wide to pair, 72" or 81" long.

*DuPont's Polyester Fiber

Lansburgh's—CURTAINS—Washington, Fourth Floor; Langley Park, Md., Lower Level