CASTO ENTERS BOARD RACE

Board Questions Pay Hike Action

By THOMAS WRIGHT

FAIRFAX — The Fairfax Board of County Supervisors fired another shot in their running feud with the school board by questioning the legality in raising salaries for seven administrators and reducing services.

Supervisor Anne Wilkins read from a January 14, 1960 opinion by former Virginia attorney general (now governor) Albertis S. Harrison Jr. which she said binds the school board to estimates made during the county budget hearings.

The ruling was requested by Harrison Mann, Arlington County delegate to the General Assembly.

The attorney general stated the school board has the power "to incur costs and expenses, but only costs and expenses as are provided for in its estimates submitted to the tax levying body without the consent of the tax levying body."

Mrs. Wilkins said the method used in lumping together a $10,500 fund for pay raises to Supt. Earl C. Funderburk, the associate superintendent and five assistant superintendents represents a "change between categories" and should have approval from the supervisors.

THE COUNTY BOARD voted 4 to 2 for a resolution calling the attention of school officials to the legal opinion of their action. Supervisors Stuart DeBell and Adair C. Brault opposed the motion.

DeBell said he had confidence in his appointment to the school board and felt it inappropriate to continually intercede in school board matters. Brault thought it in order to pass along the legal ruling but said he didn't "want to carry this controversy any further."

The board turned aside an attempt by Mrs. Wilkins to declare a six month moratorium on all new zoning applications except those in accordance with an adopted plan. She said many now are heard and deferred, which causes constant confusion in the planning department.

Herbert Schumann, deputy planning director, said there are 60 or 70 applications waiting to be processed and scheduled for hearing. Some, he said, date back to January.

Board Chairman A. Claiborne Leigh said, "The mistake we are making is the over indulgence of our staff in certain zoning cases. This has been the cause of the slowdown."

Both the moratorium suggestion and a motion by Supervisor William H. Moss for not accepting more applications until September 4 were voted down 4 to 3. Supervisors Robert C. Cotten, Brault, DeBell and Leigh opposed the resolutions as creating a hardship and causing confusion.

THE BOARD then agreed to ask the planning staff to limit the amount of assistance given an applicant "so he is more or less on his own." The supervisors made it clear, however, they still expected a staff recommendation on each case as it is considered.

Board members were critical of a suburban cluster and urban sprawl study produced by master planner Rosser H. Payne as not going far enough. Mrs. Wilkins said more factual information of what is good and bad in the cluster concept is needed.

The supervisors referred the report to the planning commission for preparation of maps, a more concise presentation and setting up a series of public discussions.

The study includes a 250 square mile area in the western two-thirds of the county.

Considered were the Occoquan, Upper Potomac and Pohick watersheds, Reston and Sanitary District 12.

Payne said he favors suburban clusters to preserve open space and reduce sanitary sewer requirements to low density areas. Supervisor John Parrish said the report represents a "good point of departure" as far as it goes. "It seems to me you've sold yourself on the plan and then tried to justify it," Parrish told Payne.

"For 32 pages we get the rah-rah treatment about how good the cluster plan is and then a few cryptic disadvantages are listed," Cotten said. Payne conceded it was difficult to write a report which is completely impartial "because we feel this is the plan we believe should be adopted."

THE BOARD DEFERRED action on a proposed apartment development on Rt. 236 adjacent to the Fairfax City line until next week, after a two-hour public hearing. The 29.8 acre site abuts the Mathy property which was rezoned by the city council for an oil tank farm.

Attorneys Ewell Moore and Rutherford Day, representing applicant Reginald Gilhooly, Inc., said the nearly 600 unit project would be phased over a four year period. They said a lake on the property will be preserved and two swimming pools added.

Moore maintained construction of 23 homes on the site, as permitted under present zoning, would represent a net loss to the county in tax revenue if they were in the $20,000 class. He said residential development of the surrounding area stopped in 1958.

The planning staff and commission have recommended against the rezoning application because there is no multi-family developments nearby. They claim apartments would change the character of the area.

Cotten said he "can't conceive of anyone building single family homes on a site next to a tank farm." He suggested apartment units would seem to be preferable to industrial or commercial use of the land.

Action was postponed until after the Upper Accotink master plan is considered at a public hearing next Wednesday.

Deferred to September 11 was action on a 140 unit apartment project on the 6.8 acre Ralph H. Stowe property on the west side of Daniels St. behind the Annandale elementary school. Attorney Thorpe Richards, representing the applicant, asked that a proposed circular road around Annandale be moved 40 feet north on the site.

THE BOARD agreed to consider the matter further after a public hearing on changes in the Annandale master plan. "Everything we do to Annandale we seem to make the situation worse," Brault said.

On other action the board: • Approved payment of $2,925 to Attorney Carter Whitehead for his representation before the circuit court in the county's unsuccessful effort to overthrow rezoning of the 114 acre oil tank farm in the city of Fairfax.

• Agreed to appoint a county housing adviser next Wednesday as the first item on the agenda. • Adopted a resolution asking Interior Department Secretary Stewart Udall to reconsider his discontinuing bus service on the George Washington Memorial Parkway to the Central Intelligence Agency.

• Authorized County Executive Carlton C. Massey to spend $5,000 for the services of a consulting firm to analyze the two sites under consideration for expansion of county office facilities.

Pickett's Charge Ends With Unity

By WILLIAM ECENBARGER

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI) —

Confederate and Union soldiers stood in a gesture of national unity Wednesday to climax the centennial observance of the Battle of Gettysburg.

Blue and Gray uniforms intermingled into the July sun as the "combatants" braced at present arms and the Stars and Stripes was hoisted up a pole on Cemetery Ridge.

The flag ceremony followed a re-enactment of Pickett's charge — the clash which began the downfall of the Confederacy.

The crowd of about 35,000 was in a festive mood, cheering as the gray-clad Confederates advanced on the Union position.

Southern troops shrieked a "rebel yell" and began the descent from Seminary Ridge at 3 p.m., dashing across an open field toward Union troops entrenched on Cemetery Ridge less than a mile away.

Churches Plan Communion Rites

Holy Communion will be held at a number of the Episcopal Churches in the area as a part of the Independence Day observance.

The Falls Church (Episcopal), S. Washington at E. Fairfax Sts., will have the unique experience of having a visiting British clergyman celebrate Holy Communion at 10 a.m. today in honor of Independence Day.

The Rev. Canon Roger Baines of St. Peter's Harrogate, England, who is exchanging pulpits with the Rev. J. Hodge Alves for three months, will conduct the service.

St. George's Episcopal Church, N. Fairfax at N. Nelson, Arlington, will have a service of Holy Communion at 10:30 a.m. today.

A century ago the assault resulted in 10,000 Confederate casualties and sent Gen. Robert E. Lee's army of North Virginia limping southward.

About 1,000 "soldiers" took part in the dramatization. They carried weapons, but the actual sound of gunfire was provided by an elaborate network of stereophonic loudspeakers. Live ammunition is prohibited on the battlefield by the National Park Service.

The state of Pennsylvania, through a specially created Gettysburg Centennial Commission, spent $128,000 on the three-day commemoration. The figure includes a $28,000 emergency appropriation passed by the Legislature last week.

Commission officials estimated that 40,000 persons came to this historic community each day for the observance.

Newark Construction Workers, Negroes Fight

NEWARK, N. J. (UPI) — About 60 Negro demonstrators were dragged away by police Wednesday after they laid down on the ground outside the entrance to a construction site, touching off a battle with workmen.

Two Negroes were arrested. A number of persons, including two policemen, were injured but not seriously enough to require hospital treatment.

Rabbi Israel Dresner of Springfield, who participated in prayer marches in the south, suffered a mouth injury and charged he had been beaten on the head by a club-wielding policeman.

About 225 Negroes participated in the demonstration, charging

Holiday Activities Are Heavy

By ANNE McLAUGHLIN

Clowns, sporting events, marching bands and special guest speakers are among the many July 4 events open to Northern Virginia residents today.

All over the area merchants are joining with individual citizens and citizens groups to make this 157th anniversary of U. S. independence a "safe and spectacular" day to remember.

For residents who wish to start their festivities early there are many activities planned.

American Legion Post 270 and the McLean Boys Club will open its third annual Community Day with an All-Star Baseball Game at 1 p.m.

Other afternoon events, also to be held at the McLean Recreation Center, Balls Hill Road are:

• 3 p.m. — McLean Volunteer Fire Department rescue demonstration.

• 3:30 p.m. — Field sports competition (open to all) directed by James Haney.

• 4:45 p.m. — Clown capers, starring Eddie Allen and J. Earl Davis of the Alexandria Kene Temple Shrine Clown Unit.

• 5 p.m. — McLean Girl Scout Troop 500, Mrs. James L. Stinson, Scout Leader.

• 5:15 p.m. — Boy Scout Troop 855, Mr. Barney Lawless, Scout Master.

• 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. — Barbecue Dinner, James Stewart, chief chef.

Vienna's 13th annual celebration begins at 2 p.m. at City Hall. City Officials will welcome families and the 110 foreign guests from Asia and Africa, who will be hosted throughout the day by 32 members of the International Center in Washington and by Visitor Chairman Mary Victor.

Vienna's Recreational dept. has also planned family and group picnics, supper parties and day-long sports events.

Fairfax City and Mt. Vernon start their program at 4 in the afternoon.

In Mt. Vernon "A Pageant for Patriots" will be staged by members of the 3rd Infantry units dressed in Revolutionary Army uniforms.

American Legion Post 177 in Fairfax will sponsor a baseball game at 4 p.m. on the Little League field, 200 Oak St. "If they can muster enough men."

Main events for Fairfax, however, begin at 7:30 p.m. with a concert by the U. S. Army Band.

At 8:15 p.m. 20 "Americanettes" will go through many of their routines that have earned them the National Baton Twirling championship. Other events will follow.

McLean's evening entertainment begins again at 5:30 p.m. with movie cartoons for the small fry. A repeat of this show will be given at 8:30 p.m.

At 5:45 p.m. the Jelleff boys' Clubs Civic Band, under the direction of Joseph D'Urso, will present a concert.

At 6:30 p.m. there will be a teen age dance contest with awards to be given in three categories: slow, fast and twist.

Following acknowledgments the dusk to dark activities begin with a band concert at 7:30 p.m. Dusk to dark festivities begin at 7:15 p.m. in the Park Amphitheater.

Unrest in Danville

'Test' Order, Negroes Urged

DANVILLE (UPI) — A lieutenant of integration leader Martin Luther King Jr. Wednesday attacked a federal judge's order banning unruly civil rights demonstrations in this racially-troubled city.

The Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) urged Danville Negroes to test the injunction issued Tuesday by U. S. District Judge Thomas Michie.

"I would advise the leaders of this movement to get together and find out the status of this injunction," Shuttlesworth said.

He spoke at an open-air rally proposed by King to bolster the drive for desegregation here. Approximately 500 attended the rally, one-tenth the number Negro leaders expected would turn out.

King had been scheduled to be the featured speaker but Shuttlesworth was substituted Tuesday night.

Shuttlesworth spoke for about 30 minutes at the rally held in a high school football stadium and then left to catch a plane to Washington.

"I DON'T HAVE the time to march this evening," Shuttlesworth said, "But I shall return and if the local leaders want to march, I'm sure to march."

Judge Michie issued the injunction at the request of city officials seeking to head off resumption of a wave of segregation protest demonstrations for more than two weeks last month. Two of the marches were broken up by fire hoses and police swinging nightsticks.

Among other things, Michie's injunction prohibited "unnecessarily loud, objectionable, offensive and insulting noises" connected with civil rights protests.

Car Strikes Man, Rides Him 76 Feet

FAIRFAX — A Virginia construction worker was hit by a car and carried 76 feet as he was attempting to cross to the west side of Route 435 Tuesday.

Police said the accident occurred when Theodore F. Markley, 47, an employee of Richmond Construction Co., parked his car on the edge of the road and started to walk to the median strip.

Markley paused when he saw a 1963 Chevrolet coming toward him. Then continued walking police said.

An area juvenile, the driver of the other car, braked to avoid hitting Markley, but was unable to swerve to the right since Markley's car was parked in the way, according to the police report.

The youth hit Markley with the left side of the car, throwing him onto the hood, where he fell against the windshield, then rolled outside against the rear view mirror, the report said.

When Markley landed against the mirror his arms were pulled inside the car, covering the youth's face and causing him to veer sharply to the left, police reported.

The car, with brakes squealing, traveled across the median strip and into the westbound traffic, carrying the man approximately 76 feet, before it came to a stop 21 inches off the hard surface of the road, police said.

The Hume, Va. man was admitted to Fairfax County Hospital with a fractured knee and internal injuries at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday. His condition Wednesday morning was reported as "good."

The youth was also taken to the hospital "nervous and upset." He was treated and released.

Police reported approximately $125 worth of damages to the youth's car.

There were no charges brought against the youth, since he was traveling the legally posted speed, police said. Furthermore, the construction worker walked in front of the car.

Business Activity Is Reason

ARLINGTON—Harold J. Casto, county Republican Chairman, was nominated Wednesday to run for the Arlington County Board after Emerson G. Reinsch announced his withdrawal from the race.

Casto was nominated by acclamation at a special meeting of the county committee which heard Reinsch, a developer, "regretfully submit" his resignation because of two new construction projects and a September trip to the Far East on behalf of the National Apartment Owners Association.

REINSCH, nominated last month at a mass meeting, said he thought then he would be free to campaign. "For the principles in which I so sincerely believe."

"Within the last ten days, however, it has become increasingly clear that such will not be the case," he added.

In accepting the nomination Casto said he intended to support the Arlington Chamber of Commerce in its opposition to the closing of Hoffman-Boston High School for Negroes.

HAROLD J. CASTO
... New GOP Candidate

Casto said he was "amazed at the School Board's decision" to close Hoffman-Boston. Dispersal of the school's students among the three other high schools would increase overcrowding, he said.

Closing of Hoffman-Boston, the candidate said, "does not represent the feelings of the majority of Arlington citizens."

Casto, 39, is president of Arlington Securities, a Washington stock brokerage. He was born in West Virginia, later graduated from Virginia Polytechnic Institute (VPI).

During World War II he served as a sergeant with the U. S. Army paratroopers.

HE IS A DIRECTOR of the Arlington Optimist Club and belongs to the Robert E. Lee Parent-Teachers Association and the Lexington Civic Association.

A long-time GOP worker, Casto was county committee finance chairman and treasurer prior to becoming county chairman in May, 1962.

He and his wife, Vera, have three children. They live at 5400 N. 22nd Road.

Statement Is Praised

RICHMOND (UPI) — A Negro student who recently integrated the University of Alabama won the praise Wednesday of Gov. Albertis S. Harrison for taking a stand against civil rights demonstrations.

Harrison cited a statement by James Hood, admitted last month to the formerly all-white university, as an example of good will. Hood was quoted as telling newsmen he felt civil rights would be gained through education, rather than demonstrations, and Negroes should spend "more time in the classroom and less time on the picket lines."

"That well-considered statement inspired more good will for the members of his race ... than all the sit-ins and protests possibly could achieve," Harrison told his weekly news conference.

2 Accused of Selling Obscene Records Here

ARLINGTON — The owner of a gift shop and the manager of a record store Tuesday and Wednesday were charged with selling obscene records, police reported.

The men — Stanley Mayer, 51, of 1931 N. Harvard St., and Frank N. Manthos, 37, of 851 S. Ivy St. — are scheduled to stand trial on the misdemeanor charge July 25, officers said.

Mayer is owner of Mayer's Gifts, 3173 Wilson Blvd., and Manthos manages Record Sales Inc., 2611 Columbia Pike, police said.

den said he purchased two records at each store Tuesday. Following the purchase, warrants were issued, he added.

Mayer was not charged until Wednesday because he was out of town the previous day, the officer said.

The titles of the two records bought by the detective were "A Trip Around the World" and "My Next Story May Be a Little Riskier," a detective said.

The records were among 119 discs later confiscated at the two stores. They ranged in price from $3.95 to $4.98, officers said.

Sunshine Could Darken Holiday With Tragedy

By United Press International

The long Fourth of July holiday began Wednesday night and safety experts predicted a record number of persons could die in traffic accidents over the long weekend.

Sunny skies and warm temperatures were forecast for the Fourth as Americans prepared to celebrate the 187th anniversary their independence with speeches, bell ringing, parades and picnics. The National Safety Council feared ideal driving conditions could lead to a record number of traffic fatalities. The council estimated 550 to 650 persons could die in traffic for the 102-hour holiday period from 6 p.m. local time Wednesday to Sunday midnight.
