

Wakefield, Madison, Oakton Win Openers

Mt. Ver. 53 | Groveton 61 | Madison 79 | Rob. 72 | Oakton 59 | Jeff. 68 | Wake. 82 | Ft. Hunt 75
Ann. 49 | Fairfax 60 | Lee 72 | Marshall 51 | Chantilly 57 | McLean 51 | York. 79 | W-L 34

Northern Virginia Sun

Daily Hometown Newspaper of Arlington, Fairfax, Falls Church, McLean and Vienna

Vol. 40 No. 284

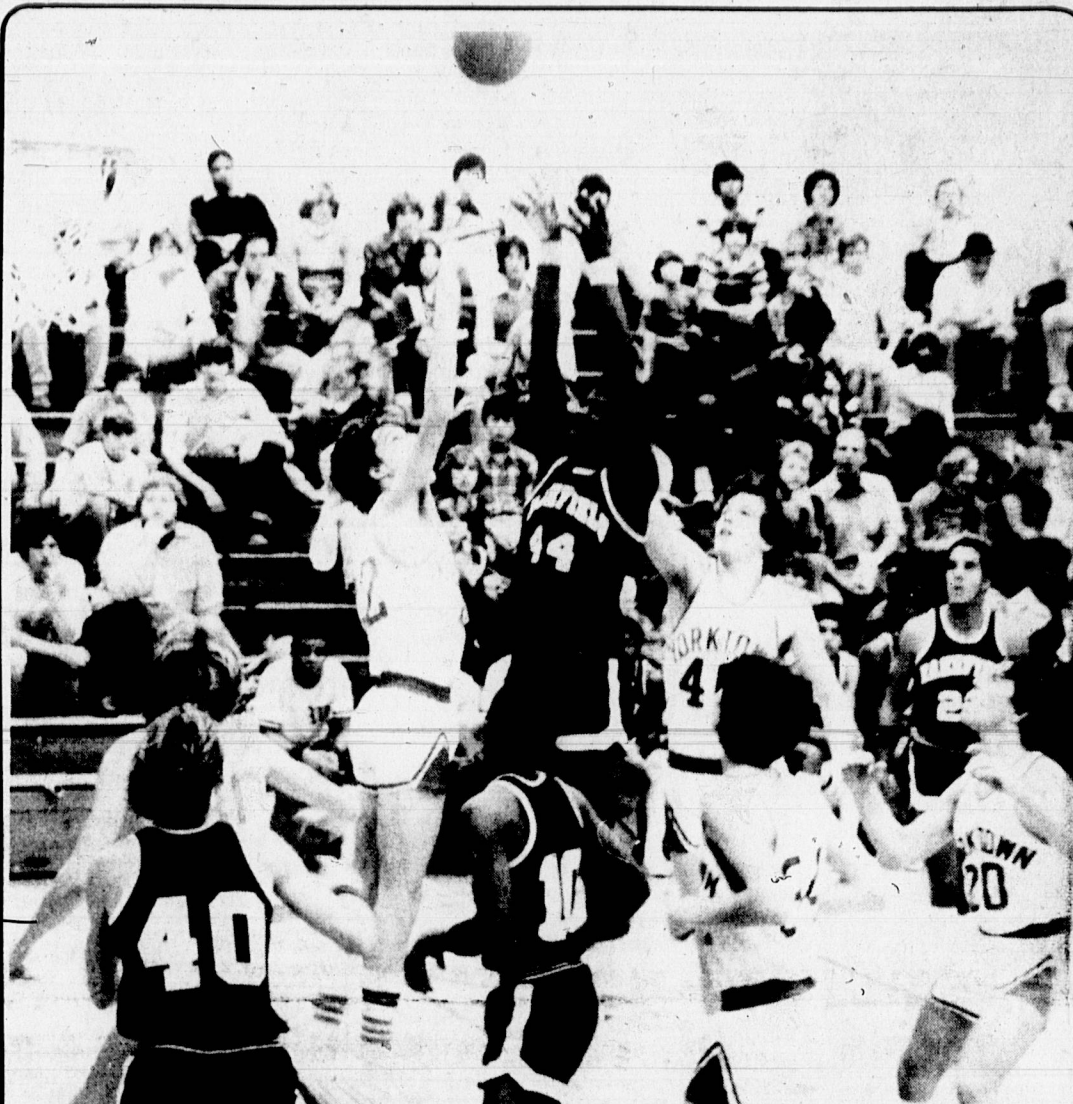

NEWSROOM, ADVERTISING

324-3000

Saturday, December 3, 1977

HOME DELIVERY BY CARRIER 60 Cents A Week
HOME DELIVERY BY MAIL 85 Cents A Week

15 Cents

The 1977-78 basketball season got underway for Yorktown and Wakefield with this tip-off between Yorktown's Jim Willoughby and Wakefield's Ezell Stewart. Watching the action are, clockwise from behind Stewart: Paul Coggins (40), Max Colvin (22), Steve

Photo by Mary Lou Mellinger

Hershner (20), Spencer Harvey (34), Tony Roberts (10), Joe Grzeskiewicz (40), and Gred Hayre (30). Stewart scored 32 points to lead Wakefield to an 82-79 overtime victory. Details on tonight's games on pages 6-7.

Bozman To Resign From County Board

Obscure State Law Will Not Prohibit 1st Term Member From Serving Next Year, However

By PAUL ERICSON
Sun Staff Writer

ARLINGTON — A little-known statute prohibiting county officials from holding more than one office at the same time prompted county board member Ellen Bozman yesterday to hand in a letter of resignation from the board for the remainder of her present term.

However, it is expected that Bozman, who resigned from her position as chairman of the county Health Center Commission (HCC) on Wednesday, will be appointed by the board to fill out the remaining four weeks of her term when it meets Tuesday morning. The resignation does not pertain to the upcoming board term to which she was elected Nov.

8. "It appears that Mrs. Bozman has taken the appropriate steps, that she has acted in good faith and that it is up to the county board now to take the proper steps," said board member Walter Frankland. "Her appointment appears to me to be the logical thing to do." The situation came to the attention of county attorney Jerry Emrich recently when, in reviewing legislative proposals facing the state assembly, he discovered that existing law prohibits individuals from holding more than one office simultaneously. Bozman was appointed to the health commission by the county board in the summer of

See BOZMAN page two

Rezoning Requested

AT&T Eyes Fairfax Move

By SANDY AMANN
Sun Staff Writer

FAIRFAX — The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors will have a chance to welcome another corporate giant to the county Monday when it considers the rezoning application of American Telephone and Telegraph.

AT&T wants to build a two and three story "campus-like development" at the intersection of Chain Bridge Road and Germantown Road near I-66 in Oakton.

The 34-acre site is currently zoned for high-rise apartments, and the planning commission has recommended the supervisors rezone the land to the industrial park category.

Mobil Oil is also moving to Fairfax County to a site on Gallows Road between the Beltway and Route 50. Both corporations are moving into the Providence district.

The planning commission's recommendation on the AT&T building stipulates that six months before occupying the building, AT&T is to conduct a feasibility study of adopting a four-day work week, flextime, or a van car-pooling arrangement for its employees.

The purpose of adopting such staggered work hours would be to lessen the traffic impact of the new office building on Chain Bridge Road during rush hours.

At its Oct. 26 hearing, the planning commission also asked that landscaping of the area be "more fully addressed" before the matter is brought before the board of supervisors.

About 1,500 employees of AT&T's eastern "long lives" division are expected to work at the site, which is expected to be completed in 1980.

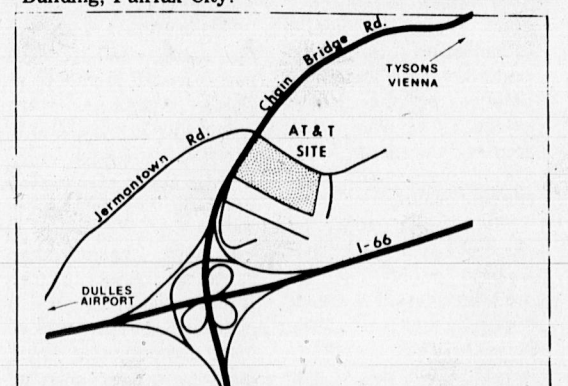

The planned "Phase I" of the building would contain a 400,000-square-foot construction, and 980 parking spaces. A future expansion plans suggest an additional 200,000 square feet could be added to the building, to house another 1,000 employees.

The planning commission has suggested that in long-range planning for expansion, AT&T consider underground parking.

Supervisor James Scott, in whose district the building would be located, said he knows of no opposition to the building.

The public hearing before the board of supervisors on the AT&T rezoning application is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday in the board room, "A" Level of the Massey Building, Fairfax City.

Shaded area shows proposed location of AT&T building.

An Inside Look At ERA In Va.

National supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment see Virginia as a key state for ratification. In Monday's Sun, John Freese of UPI Richmond takes an inside look at the chances of Virginia approval, which he found appear slim. The Virginia General Assembly has defeated the measure the past four years partly as the result of House Majority Leader James Thomson, a staunch ERA opponent.

Watch for "The ERA, Does It Really Have A Chance?" in Monday's Sun.

Unemployment In Va. Up 0.1%

RICHMOND (UPI) — The Virginia Employment Commission said yesterday that unemployment in the state rose by one-tenth of one percent by mid-November, based on preliminary estimates.

The VEC said the November figure probably means October is likely to follow historical trends and become the month of lowest unemployment this year.

The VEC's latest figures show a mid-November unemployment rate of 4.8 percent. In October, the rate was 4.7 percent — the lowest in three years.

The new figures mean about 3,000 more workers were jobless in November than in October, or 115,400 unemployed.

Why Dalton Won

Henry Howell, Virginia Gentlemen, And Being Governor

Henry Howell

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Toward the end of the recent gubernatorial campaign in Virginia there was a rather heated exchange over the question of political ethics.

Henry Howell, the Democratic candidate, claimed he was being unfairly treated in some campaign literature distributed by supporters of Republican John Dalton. Most analysts now agree that Howell made an issue out of the wrong slur.

The really damaging disparagement — the one that probably cost him the election — was delivered by Gov. Mills Godwin.

It came when Godwin, who was backing Dalton, brutally asserted that Howell was "not a Virginia gentleman."

One cannot measure with precision the impact of any single element in a campaign. However, any reasonable observer must conclude that Godwin's bombshell was the most decisive factor.

I mention this now

Mark Twain said a gentleman was someone who "conceals how much he thinks of himself and how little he thinks of other are only two important things in life — bourbon and women. A Virginia gentleman is only concerned with the age of his bourbon."

"A gentleman will go to any lengths to maintain the family honor. A Virginia gentleman will go only to honorable lengths."

A gentleman, having only half the money needed to paint the fence, will paint the outside. A Virginia gentleman will paint the inside."

And here is Godwin's own definition: "A Virginia gentleman is one who puts other people's feelings before his own interests and other people's interest before his own feelings."

Fighting words, those. That Howell took it lying down obviously caused him to lose face with the electorate.

A Virginia gentleman would have gone after the governor with a horsewhip.

A Commentary

because of a question that began bobbing up in the wake of the election. Howell's crushing defeat caused many political pundits to start asking, "what is a Virginia gentleman?"

By an odd coincidence, there is a brand of whiskey with that name. As a public service, the distillery that makes it undertook a survey to see if Virginians had a consensus definition of gentlemanliness.

Most of us already know what a plain gentleman is. Literature is replete with enlightenment on that point.

people."

Marlene Dietrich said, "A man who buys two of the same morning paper from the doorman when he leaves his favorite night club with his girl, that's a gentleman."

H.L. Mencken wrote that "a gentleman never strikes a lady without provocation."

The concept of what constitutes a Virginia gentleman may, however, be a bit more murky. Thus it may be instructive to consider some of the delineations turned up by the distillery's survey.

"To a gentleman there

Gentlemen Virginia-Style

'To a gentleman there are only two important things in life—bourbon and women. A Virginia gentleman is only concerned with the age of his bourbon.'

'A gentleman will go to any lengths to maintain the family honor. A Virginia gentleman will go only to honorable lengths.'