

All-Night Blackout Wed. Will Include Air-Raid Practice

Procedure for Dark-to-Dawn Test Listed by Defense Officials

Arlington will be dark from 10 p. m. Wednesday night until dawn Thursday, along with Washington, the greater part of Maryland and the entire State of Virginia in the first dark-to-dawn practice blackout.

During this blackout there will be an air-raid warning test, announced on the warning sirens, which will last at least 30 minutes. At the sounding of the all-clear, however, the blackout will still be in effect and lights are not to be visible from the exterior for the remainder of the night.

All units of the Civilian Defense Corps will be mobilized at their stations when the test air-raid is given. Defense Director Frank C. Hanrahan said yesterday in urging the public to co-operate. Incidents will be used to test communications and other parts of the organization.

Traffic lights will burn during the blackout except during the test air-raid. They will be cut off by police when the signal is sounded, and turned on again when the all-clear is sounded. Street lights will be extinguished at 10 p. m. and will remain off for the remainder of the night.

Traffic will be permitted to travel. Defense Co-ordinator Clifford G. Stoneburner said, with masked or dimmed lights, but not at a speed in excess of 15 miles per hour, regardless of normal speed limits. This Mr. Stoneburner said, is important for the safety of those on streets and highways. Traffic, except for designated emergency vehicles and official vehicles of the U. S. Government, must stop during the air-raid. Pedestrians may travel except during the test air-raid, when all citizens are to observe the regular air-raid procedure.

All members of the protective services will carry out their required duties by observation of the utmost courtesy under all circumstances. Mr. Hanrahan said. Citizens are requested to comply promptly and cheerfully with any advice, admonition or instructions received from any member of the regular or auxiliary police, any member of the air-raid warden service, or any other member of the Citizens' Defense Corps in exercising their proper authority.

The danger of injury or death, it was pointed out, is very great during all training tests. All responsible officials are urged to exercise their best efforts to avoid accidents.

County Board Has Another Headache

With citizens only recently complaining of dogs and snakes, the County Board met another nuisance Saturday when it received a letter protesting conditions on a vacant lot on Key Boulevard at North Edinboro Street, which is said to be infested with rats.

The board instructed County Engineer C. L. Kinnier to call on the property owner, Miss Daisy West, and ask her to have the lot cleaned.

Mr. Kinnier at the same time told the board he had been informed snakes could be exterminated by the use of ten rapins, and he was "considering" collecting some for the residents on North Adams Street north of the Lee Highway who recently complained to the board of the reptiles.

Board Chairman Edmund D. Campbell told the members that he had adopted an ordinance should be adopted compelling persons to keep vacant lots in such a condition that they would not prove a health menace. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Magruder reminded him Arlington is a county and so cannot make specific laws such as a city.

Mrs. C. Franklin Beall, of 1711 North Fillmore Street, said the rats were so bold they came up on the porch and sat on the milk box while persons raised the front door. She declared she is afraid to allow her young baby to be in the yard because of them, and even the dogs are no longer able to keep the rats out of the yard.

Board Member Leo Lloyd asked Mr. Kinnier to call on the owner in an effort to correct an "insanitary and unsafe condition."

New Law Cuts Work Of Zoning Board

The Arlington County Board of Zoning Appeals will not meet Tuesday, June 16, its regular date, since under the new Zoning Ordinance, the Board no longer makes recommendations in regard to applications for changes of zoning. It merely acts on requests for variances and appeals from the stages system of electing board members first went into effect, had no Denigrate opposition when the deadline for filing at midnight June 5 passed. It is expected some further announcement will be made in the next week or 10 days from Republican sources.

G. O. P. Opposition For County Board

Though as yet no one has announced his candidacy for the seat on the County Board for which Edmund D. Campbell has been Democratic Primary, Lawrence Michael, chairman of the Arlington Republican Executive Committee, said yesterday there will be Republican opposition to Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell, who was elected to the board for three years when the staggered system of electing board members first went into effect, had no Denigrate opposition when the deadline for filing at midnight June 5 passed. It is expected some further announcement will be made in the next week or 10 days from Republican sources.

Richardson Stresses The Value Of Play-yards; Suggests Plans

"No other problem is so close to the hearts of the father and mother as is that of the play of the small child," W. A. Richardson, director of recreation in Arlington and of the county's playgrounds, said yesterday in endorsing The Sun's contest for play-yards. The contest, which is now underway, is for home playgrounds, equipped with home-made equipment and those outfitted with purchased equipment, and $10 1st prizes will be offered in each class with $5 2nd prizes for each.

Mr. Richardson declared that anyone having even a partial solution to play facilities for the small child can always get a hearing before any individual or club. Parents, he stated, are especially concerned with where such a child may play, how he can be kept off the streets, and how can accidents, involving children playing in the streets, be curtailed.

"In looking over the whole situation," he said, "there are several rays of hope. Children are seldom involved in accidents when they are on guard, as when they are going to school, to the store, or on an errand. At such times, the child will approach a crossing with as much or more caution than a grown person."

"A child is hurt when his ball rolls into the street and he dashes after it, when he has a new pair of roller skates and is trying them out and when he has a new sled and loses control. All precaution is thrown aside as he concentrates on the one thing—his toy."

"We can eliminate most of the accidents involving children," Mr. Richardson declared, "if we can control these play situations in the street. This can be done immediately for nearly all of the youngsters in Arlington under eight years of age and at little expense if the parents want to do it."

"Children will not stop playing in the street if the street is the only place or the most attractive place to play. Street-playing will stop only when more interesting places for recreation are provided elsewhere. For the great part of Arlington, there are backyards, and, in many cases, large ones. Where there are backyards, a

Falls Church Ups Share of Salaries For Paid Firemen

Mayor Gibson Thinks Town's Annexation Suit Should Be Delayed

The Falls Church Town Council Monday night voted to increase its appropriation for the support of the three full-time paid firemen of the Falls Church Fire Department, to provide each man an increase from town funds of $750 per month. At present, Falls Church is contributing a total of $1,218 per year, and Fairfax County $500, the balance of the $1,500 per man being paid by Arlington County.

Treasurer J. A. C. Fought, who appeared in behalf of the fire department to make the request, announced that, beginning July 1, Arlington County will put on a fourth paid fireman. The council voted to pay its share of the cost of this man, and concurred in the recommendation of Mr. Fought that Ray Rollins be named to fill the post.

It was announced that Councilman McCarthy has been chosen co-ordinator of civilian defense for Falls Church, and will be in charge of expenditure of the funds voted by the council at its last meeting. Mr. McCarthy stated that he will endeavor to confine expenditure of town funds to equipment, for which there will be salvage value at the close of the emergency. Chairman Kellogg, of the finance committee, sponsored a resolution reaffirming the appropriation of $4,000 for such supplies. Mr. McCarthy declared he felt the town's primary need to be a more adequate air-raid siren than the present fire signal.

Vacancy Unfilled
Manley T. Rust was granted permission to cut down two trees in front of his place of business on Broad Street in West Falls Church, in order to permit construction of a driveway and parking.

Summer School Due To Open on June 18

Summer school will open in Arlington Thursday, June 18, the Arlington School Board announced this week, with registration from 8 a. m. until noon at Washington-Lee High School, Thomas Jefferson Junior High School, Patrick Henry, Matthew Fontaine Maury, Nellie Custis, James Monroe, Cherrydale, Stonewall Jackson, and Walter Reed Elementary Schools and the following colored schools: Hoffman-Boston, John Langston and Kemper.

If the number of enrollees warrant, it was announced, classes will be conducted at each of these schools, and the full list of teachers will be made public next week. The only charge connected with the schools is a $3 registration fee for high school work and a $2 enrollment fee for the elementary school. Classes will run for eight weeks and there will be no night classes during the summer.

Hardly Any Salvage Collected in Drive

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier is convinced that Arlington County homes are much cleaner this year, since the clean-up and salvage campaign, which ends tomorrow, has unearthed very little salvageable materials. In fact, collections of trash generally have been much lighter than in previous years, the engineer said.

It was decided this year to sort out all materials that could possibly be used for defense and direct it to proper channels. The amount is almost negligible to date, Mr. Kinnier stated, and the bulk of the collections have been tree trimmings, shrubs and the refuse that would come from cleaning yards.

Eighteen playgrounds—15 white and three colored—will open on Thursday, June 18, W. A. Richardson, director of recreation, said this week. The grounds will be open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. daily, and must maintain an average attendance daily of 50 children in order to be operated. They will close for the season August 28.

There will be no swimming this summer, because of the lack of bus transportation to and from the East Potomac pool. Activities now being planned will include athletics, handicrafts, games, singing and dramatics for the younger children. The hours may be changed at some of the grounds, to remain open until dark if the demand warrants.

The playgrounds are Nellie Custis, 712 South 23rd Street; Patrick

Application Made For Money to Build Health Building

Base Hospitals Largely Supplied With Their Materials

The need for increased health facilities in Arlington was reflected in the May report submitted this week by Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, health officer, in which he stated that, during May, applied for an additional grant under P. W. A. for the construction of a health department building locally. The majority of health activities are now directed from offices in the Court House, with some being carried on from the community health centers.

"With the exception of a few items," Dr. Beachley said, "each of the five base hospitals has its quota of supplies for the present. These are being distributed to the first-aid posts as fast as their organization permits."

The public health nurses, the report showed, are assuming the major portion of responsibility for the organization of the base hospitals, and, though a physician is in charge of each area hospital, the assigning of nursing personnel and the arrangement and demonstration of the use of equipment is the responsibility of the health department nurses. The staff is well organized, Dr. Beachley stated, to care for whatever emergency may arise.

Corps Members Examined
At the request of the Arlington Red Cross, 30 members of the canteen corps were given a physical and chest X-rays in accordance with regulations for food handlers locally. The corps is directing the serving of breakfasts each Sunday morning at the Arlington Rest Camp.

The demand for home-nursing classes has reached a high point, Dr. Beachley said, "that a nurse has been appointed by the Red Cross to supervise the teaching of these classes in all parts of the county. The three health centers are ideally located for this work, and it is possible for women of all ages to enroll in classes near their homes." The home-nursing committee is active in organizing classes and assembling equipment, and more than 60 women completed classes during May and two new classes began.

Communicable diseases during May, with tuberculosis leading with 21 cases, There were 17 cases of measles, 16 of syphilis, 13 chickenpox, 15 mumps, one meningitis, three scarlet fever and six whooping cough.

Gibson Re-Election Indorses Policies

Public Approval of School Merger Indicated

Burns N. Gibson was re-elected mayor of Falls Church Tuesday by a wide margin, polling 235 votes compared with 107 for his opponent, former Mayor L. P. Daniel. Also re-elected, in the only other contested vote, was Mrs. Ada Fowler, councilman from the second ward, who defeated Major Alexander Galt. J. H. McCarthy, councilman from the first ward, and Walter B. Pollin, in the third ward, were elected without opposition.

Mr. Pollin, an employee of the C. & P. Telephone Company, will be appointed by the present council to take office immediately to fill the unexpired term of Brig.-Gen. Ralph H. Keyser, who was forced to resign due to pressure of his duties as assistant to the Commandant of the Marine Corps. The new terms of the others, all incumbents, will start September 1.

Mr. Gibson's heavy vote was seen as a personal tribute and evidence of the high esteem in which he is held, as well as a vote of confidence in his policies and in his management of the town during the past two years. He announced several months ago that pressure of his own business would make it impossible for him to serve the town longer. He was persuaded to change his mind, and filed in time to have his name printed on the ballots. The vote is also regarded by many as an endorsement of the action of the present council in merging the town and county school systems. Major Daniel, the defeated candidate, was one of the leaders of the group opposing such a merger.

Councilman Charles E. Kellogg, of the first ward, and Charles Pennington, of the second ward, served as judges of election, with John H. McCauley as clerk. The third councilman whose term holds over until a year from September is Lawrence Laing, of the third ward.

Lack of Inspection Stickers Traps 300

Approximately 300 persons were arrested by the Arlington police through Wednesday for driving without new inspection stickers. Chief of Police Harry L. Woodyard said yesterday.

Even though the deadline for securing the semi-annual inspection was extended until midnight of June 7, Chief Woodyard said a large percentage of drivers still failed to get them. Mr. Woodyard said police will continue to bring in those not complying with the regulations.

Two Resign Posts On Arlington P. U. C.

Edward Montague, who is already in military service, and Allen C. Adams, who is awaiting a call to active duty, have submitted their resignations as members of the Arlington Public Utilities Commission. It was announced at a meeting of the group Monday evening. As yet the vacancies have not been filled by Edmund D. Campbell, chairman of the Arlington County Board.

Mrs. Alma Ramsay, chairman of the commission, said the body is studying the question of local tax rates, and will investigate how this problem is handled in other Virginia communities. The commission began a series of conferences Monday evening with local tax operators.

Honors and Awards Made At Final School Exercises

Medals and Scholarships were Awarded at the Closing Exercises

Honor students at the high school were Margaret Lynn, Joseph Jordan, John Tillema, Betty Thompson, Claude Garfield, Wendell Bloomington, J. K. Shelton, Ann Gaumnitz, Donald Reid, Ella Villa Fox, Norma Haynes, Orville Judd, Connie Hotell, John Gammon, Nina Borton, Suzanne Robinson, Wayne Bloomingburg, John Lohr, Frances Isaacs, William Jordan, Robert Brewer, Alice Pere, Eleanor Krieger, Jean Heffner, Norma Joy, Mary Luey Parrish, John Hughes, Patricia Humphrey, Lee McDonald and Jimmy Walker.

Closing exercises for the W.-L. Junior High School were held on Tuesday morning when Frederic West and Katherine Waller received good citizenship medals and James Myatt, the history medal, all three the gifts of Thomas Nelson Chapter, D. A. R.

Perfect attendance certificates were presented to Joan Russen, Barbara Wheeler, James Cooper, W.-L. Junior High.

C. of C. Urges Display of Flags

Business men and citizens are urged by the board of directors of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce to display the American Flag and the flags of the United Nations Flag Day—Sunday, June 14

In recognition of President Roosevelt's proclamation. The board meeting Monday evening, endorsed the patriotic gesture and suggested the display of allied flags, together with that of the United States, with a view to showing "unity of purpose in fighting the present war."

The directors adopted a resolution favoring a United War Chest Campaign for the county, which was recently decided upon by the board of trustees of the Arlington Community Chest. Such a drive, the directors felt, would be preferable to separate campaigns in the county.

The payroll allotment plan for the sale of war stamps and bonds won approval of the directors, commended W. M. Stone and J. Foster Hagan, chairman of the work here.

A committee will be appointed by the president, E. L. Usilton, to arrange for a Chamber of Commerce Smoker this year, instead of the annual outing. Because of war conditions, it was deemed advisable to cancel the outing.

Raymond L. Miller, manager of the J. C. Penney Co., was elected to the board to fill the unexpired term of James E. Doyle. Mr. Doyle, who has been on the board since 1940, resigned and has entered military service.

County May Handle Refuse Collection

Arlington County may undertake the collection and disposal of trash and refuse as one of its services instead of contracting for this work, it was revealed at the meeting of the board Saturday, when action on awarding the contract for the fiscal year 1942-43 was held up for further investigation.

In submitting the one bid from Thomas J. Crank at a figure of $99,000, County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan told the board this was an increase of more than $36,000 over the present contract with Mr. Crank of $62,800, and requested action be deferred. Board Member F. Freeland Chew said the bid was "entirely out of line."

The sum of $74,770 is set aside in the 1942-43 budget for this work. Mr. Hanrahan said Arlington has had an application in with the Federal Government for some time for funds for an incinerator, and expressed the hope the board would refer the matter back to him for further investigation. Mr. Chew asked that the matter be referred to the county manager, Commonwealth's attorney and county engineer to study the feasibility of either acquiring the existing equipment or purchasing new equipment for the county to take over the work. This motion was seconded by Mrs. Elizabeth B. Magruder. Board Member Leo Lloyd also urged that the county take over the collections. Board Chairman Edmund D. Campbell described present conditions as "intolerable" and Mr. Chew asked that the committee be referred, consider the possibility of passing an ordinance governing extra collections for merchants so the county will not be overburdened.

War stamps and bonds sold in Arlington during May reached a total of $137,956.25, J. Foster Hagan, chairman, said yesterday. This was more than $12,000 in excess of the quota of $125,000. The quota for Hagan locally is $225,300, Mr. Hagan said.

Board Eases Rules On Construction To Meet Shortages

Building Inspector Authorized to Accept Substitute Materials

Substitute materials will be permitted for building projects in Arlington when critical materials are unavailable under priorities, the County Board voted at its meeting Saturday morning. A resolution easing building restrictions was presented to the board by Building Inspector Andrew Jensen and recommended adopted by County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan.

Mr. Hanrahan stated he believed it would be better to grant Mr. Jensen temporary authority to regulate such materials for "the duration" rather than to weaken the county's building code by an amendment.

The resolution provides that when the building code requires a critical material for construction purposes, and such material is not available under a War Production Board priority, or cannot be obtained within a reasonable time, the building inspector, where he deems it advisable, may permit the use of substitute materials or methods of construction, which, in his opinion, will not create a nuisance or safety hazard. At the same time, Mr. Jensen will take into consideration the particular use and location of the proposed structure. He was given the authority to deviate from a strict interpretation of the building code "for the duration of the present emergency in respect to critical materials or until further order of the board."

The Arlington Public Utilities Commission has continued its investigation of taxi rates locally in co-operation with Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas and to make some recommendation to the board as soon as possible. The motion for this action was made on a report by Basili M. DeLashmunt and was seconded by Edmund D. Campbell.

This followed a request of Mrs. Alma Ramsay, chairman, Public Utilities Commission, that the board ask the Attorney-General of the State for an opinion on the county's power to regulate cabs. County Manager Hanrahan told the board he believed this "unnecessary," since the county already has a taxi-cab ordinance, but that it needs to be strengthened.

The commission, Mrs. Ramsay said, is interested only in establishing equitable rates in the county, and is of the opinion this may be secured by establishing zones. Board Member F. Freeland Chew expressed the view that the commission is not interested in establishing equitable rates in the county, and is of the opinion this may be secured by establishing zones. Board Member F.
