Vol. VI—No. 34 | Arlington, Va. | FRIDAY, JULY 25, 1941 | East Falls Church, Va. | FIVE CENTS

Week by Week

Good gracious, we had no idea the homes of Arlington County concealed so many old aluminum utensils. And as we write this, the collection really has only begun. No telling what it may lead to by next Tuesday, when the campaign is supposed to end.

And, we bet Arlington's aluminum includes one item that isn't duplicated anywhere else in the U. S.—to wit, Mrs. Freed's venerable Isotta Fraschini, which we are informed bears some 500 pounds of white metal on his frame. An Isotta Fraschini, in case you've forgotten your boyhood automobile lore, is one of the swankiest of the swank foreign brands of 'mobiles (or at least it was before the War). What is more to the point, it is an Italian make, and as lots of people were quick to note, that really is a very lovely point under the circumstances. Figuratively speaking this product of Mr. Mus's palmier days is on its way to plague him from the skies.

Here we are down to the last issue of July and Hitler hasn't caught all the Russians yet. It must be pretty discouraging. The best he's been able to claim is capturing or killing five or six hundred thousand of them, and that isn't a drop in the bucket. The Russians are like the Chinese (bless the Chinese). As the Japs have found out, every time you catch a Chinese, three more drop off the bushes. Same with the Russians. Those poor German soldiers must feel as if they were up against Mandrake and Thurston combined—the Russians just keep on coming out of nowhere and nothing seems to do any good toward stopping them. Even when you surround them and they are supposed to surrender, they behave very badly and go on fighting to beat hades, just playing havoc with your lines of communication and your supply of gasoline. Bet Napoleon's beginning to smile for the first time since he met Josephine.

As reported from Richmond, we learn the rather astonishing fact that the amount of steel necessary to supply Virginia's annual automobile license plates is enough to make 230 light Army scout cars. Hard to believe, isn't it? As a result, the State is looking for a substitute material for the 1943 plates, because maybe it won't be able to get the steel then. We suggest that it ought to be possible to issuue a very much smaller tag, in distinctive shape and color, which would be attached to the old one. Your 1942 tags then would carry over, and the little attachment tags would use only a fraction of the amount of metal ordinarily consumed . . . And we still think it is amazing that the equipment of 230 scout cars is being toted around on Virginia automobiles in the form of license plates. Think how much gasoline it takes to haul that weight around. Maybe that's a good point for Papa Ickes to look into.

Bureau of Nursing Taken Into Chest

Plans for Fall Campaign Are Carried Forward

The Bureau of Nursing Service was accepted as a member agency of the Arlington Community Chest at the meeting of the board of trustees Wednesday evening. The bureau, which was started in 1931, and has been an official agency since 1938, seeks to provide every type of care needed for the sick on a 24-hour basis, and to co-operate with other nursing and health agencies in meeting the needs of the community. It becomes the fourth member agency.

The Arlington Chest has moved into its new quarters, 3159 Wilson Boulevard. This location, on the second floor of the Rees Building, is central, and Erle R. Kirby, president, said it offers advertising opportunities along Wilson Boulevard. The Chest phone will continue to be OXford 2971, and Mrs. Virginia Ekstrand, secretary, will mantain headquarters for the public and Chest workers.

Conrad Reid, campaign chairman, at Wednesday's meeting complimented Mrs. L. G. Baumhofer and her committee for its work on preparing campaign pamphlets and dodgers. Other members of the committee are the Rev. Peyton R. Williams, Howard B. Bloomer, Jr., and George A. Collier.

The speakers' bureau, of which Mrs. Dorothy Dunn is chairman, had its organization meeting Tuesday. The bureau has made arrangements for contacting each organization in the county and furnishing speakers on Chest activities.

Mrs. Mildred Turnburke, co-chairman with Samuel J. Elson of campaign materials, announced the adoption of the campaign button and window sticker for 1941. Sub-committee chairmen include G. D. Willey, posters; Samuel J. Elson, road signs; R. Wade Pearson, theatre trailers; Lawrence Michael, buttons and window stickers; Mrs. Turnburke, pledge cards; and H. H. Howe, sheets for captains and workers.

Other committee chairmen announced are J. Harold Stehman, audit; Mrs. Henry Ames, captains and workers; Mrs. F. H. Cook, department stores; and Morrell Stone, campaign meeting place.

The Cherrydale Citizens' Association will meet Monday evening, July 28, at 8 o'clock, at the Cherrydale Library in the Fire House on Lee Highway.

3 New Stations Will Speed Mail Service In Arlington

P. O. Facilities, Staff, Boosted Here

Arlington's bounding population—and corresponding tremendous increase in mail volume—has resulted in plans for establishment of three carrier postal stations to relieve congestion at the main Post Office and to facilitate delivery and handling of incoming and out-going mail, The Sun learned yesterday from Postmaster William A. Coates.

The three carrier stations will be located as follows:

1. Rosslyn, in the quarters of the present Rosslyn Post Office.
2. The North Station, to be located in the vicinity of Lee Highway and Glebe Road.
3. The South Station, in the vicinity of Columbia Pike and South Fillmore Street.

The Post Office Department is advertising for bids for the rental of quarters for the North and South stations. It is planned to work eight carriers out of the North Station and 15 out of the South Station, while two routes will be delivered from Rosslyn. Twenty-four hundred square feet of space is required for the North Station, and 3,300 for the South Station, it was said.

The new station, in addition to serving as points from which mail will be delivered, will also provide complete postal facilities to the public, including money orders and registry and parcel post service. One of the greatest conveniences to the public, it is believed, will be the fact that persons to whom parcel post matter is undelivered during the day because they are employed in Washington, will be able to call at the postal station nearest their home to get parcels, rather than going to the main Post Office. The new offices will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The establishment of the three carrier stations in Arlington is comparable to the postal facilities in all large cities, where neighborhood post offices are established at many points.

An improved schedule for the collection of mail from corner boxes was inaugurated by the Arlington Post Office last Sunday. The new schedule calls for a county-wide collection beginning at 7:45 p. m. and ending at 8:45 from every box, every day of the year. Previously, the last collection on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays has been made in mid-afternoon, but now this pick-up is made at the same hours as on work days.

The increased postal load in Arlington resulted three months ago in the creation of 19 new mail delivery routes, and the adding of 19 carriers to the Post Office staff. In addition, 14 additional clerks were added to the inside force.

Eight contract offices for the sale of stamps, and the mailing of parcel post, as well as money order service, are maintained in Arlington. They will continue in operation regardless of the establishment of the new carrier stations. These contract post offices are located in the Ballston Drug Store, in Cherrydale, in the offices of Arlington Village, at Jefferson Cleaners on South 23rd Street, Shepherd's Store in Glen Carlyn, the office of Colonial Village, the National Laundry agency at Washington Blvd., and North Abingdon St., and in the Community Drug Store, Pershing Drive and Glebe Road.

Drive to Be Made For U.S.O. in County

Arthur C. Stickley, II, was announced yesterday as chairman of the Arlington U. S. O. Drive, plans for which are now underway. The announcement came from Thomas E. Dewey, National Campaign Chairman.

Mr. Stickley, who is active in civic and political circles, said that before accepting the appointment, he consulted Gardner L. Boothe, chairman of the Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council, and other defense leaders in this area. He said it was agreed the U. S. O. Drive would not be put on until the present drives are finished. Mr. Stickley also said a goal has not been set, but it is understood Arlington will receive more than it contributes.

40 to Go to Camps During August

The Arlington Welfare Board will send 40 less fortunate Arlington boys and girls to camp during August, it was announced this week. Those to go will include 10 white boys, 10 white girls and an equal number of Negro boys and girls. Community Chest funds will be used for the two-week stays and the camps to be used are Holiday House, Camp Merrick, Camp Lichtman and Camp Clarissa Scott.

Dr. Wallace Heads State Druggist Body

Dr. J. T. Wallace, Sr., of Arlington, was elected president of the Virginia Pharmaceutical Association at its recent annual convention at Old Point Comfort.

Seek Addresses For All Selectees

The county selectees committee of the Arlington Recreation Committee of the Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council wishes to secure the names, present addresses and birthdays of all selectees. Parents are asked to send this data immediately to Mrs. Linda Cost, 2628 North Pershing Drive.

The committee, of which Mrs. Louise Green is chairman and Albert A. Carretta is vice-chairman, is compiling a complete file of this information so the boys from Arlington may be contacted. The committee plans to send each boy a subscription to The Sun, some small remembrance on his birthday and to supply any needs he may have and that lie in its power.

Furnishings Asked For Soldier Center

Some Donated on First Appeal for Recreation

Arlington's recreational center for service men is expected to be ready for its first function in a short time, and another appeal is out for furnishings. The first solicitation brought a piano, Victrola, arm chair, davenport, magazines, records, bookcases and tables, Mrs. Pearle W. Sharpe, chairman, said yesterday.

A part of the former Clarendon Methodist Church, at 10th and North Irving Streets, is being renovated to provide the recreational center under the direction of the Arlington Recreation Committee of the Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council, of which Charles R. Fenwick is regional chairman and Mrs. Laura Boldin is local chairman. The basement and first floor, it is estimated, will accommodate 300 soldiers, and the walls are being painted and the floors refinished.

The committee is asking for card tables with chairs, games, ping-pong tables, materials for drapes, window shades or Venetian blinds, dishes and cooking utensils. Anyone having any furnishings and willing to donate them is asked to call Miss Emma Jacobs at OXford 0472. F. E. Westenberger, local builder, is in charge of renovation and will be glad to receive contributions of materials or labor.

Work on the center, which will be known as "Arlington's Recreational Center for Service Men," began today with the paint given by W. T. Weaver and Sons, the Southern Paint Company and the Winslow Paint Company. The C. and P. Telephone Company will install a public phone in the building and the Virginia Appliance is giving a refrigerator.

The committee, Mrs. Sharpe said, plans to place a slogan beneath the name of the center and suggested slogans may be sent to her office, 2939 Wilson Boulevard.

The finance committee, meeting Tuesday evening, raised $250 in pledges that evening with the following donating: Ashton C. Jones, Sr., $50; George Yeatman, J. C. Blake of Colonial Village, Sam E. Cohen, F. E. Westenberger, Thomas DeLashmutt, C. Benjamin Laycock, S. Groome Eareckson and E. L. Usilton, each $25.

Mrs. Ruth Thomas gave the piano; Mrs. Robert Livingston, a Victrola; Ashton C. Jones, Jr., bookcases, chairs and a table; Mrs. Beulah Friess, an arm chair; Mrs. S. Myers, a davenport; Mrs. Pierson, magazines; Mrs. Clara L. Nevin, Victrola records; and Murphy & Ames, Inc., a sign; and the Rucker Lumber Company, a ping pong table.

Chairmen and vice-chairmen of the sub-committees of the local recreation committee are:

Recreational Center—Mrs. Pearle W. Sharpe and Ashton C. Jones, Jr.

Entertainment—Mrs. Sarah E. Carl and F. R. Rice.

Finance—Sam E. Cohen and Mrs. Agnes J. Conradi.

County Selectees—Mrs. Louise Green and Albert A. Carretta.

Liaison—Basil M. DeLashmutt and Edward C. Crumley.

Publicity—Mrs. St. John Perrott and Miss Margaret Troxell.

Highway Transportation—Elmer F. Newell.

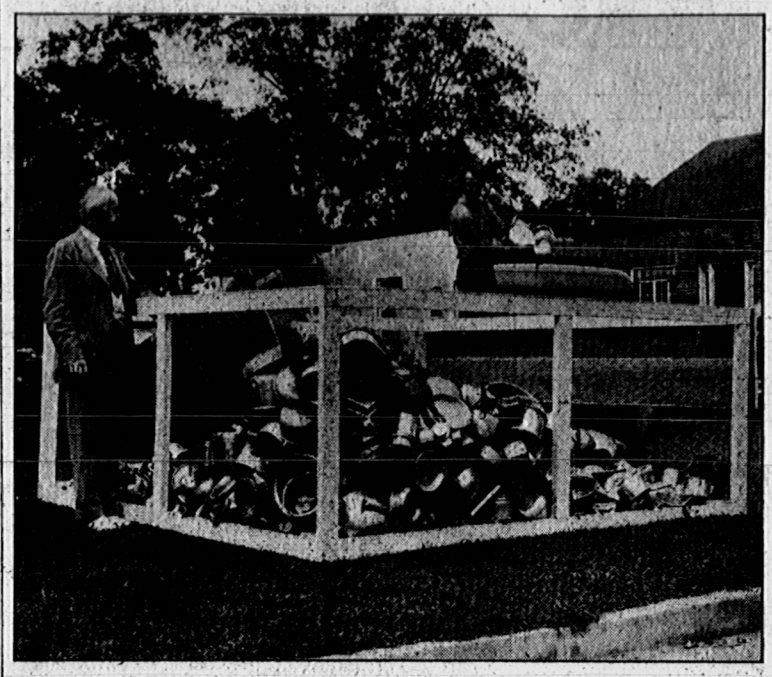

Local Transportation — W. M. Stone.

Cantonment Road Will Help Arlington

Arlington will benefit materially if a bill that has passed the House goes through for approximately a $300,000,000 appropriation to provide access roads in defense areas. The original appropriation was for $287,000,000, but was raised before its passage by the House, The Sun was told.

One of the roads included under consideration would serve the Arlington Cantonment and would also be open to civilian traffic. As proposed, it would begin at Washington Boulevard and South Lynn Street and cross the Experimental Farm to the south end of Columbia Island, thence to Memorial Bridge.

ALUMINUM DONATIONS HERE EXCEED HOPES; 500 POUNDS OF ITALIAN METAL IN AUTO

George Studio, Arlington.

F. Freeland Chew, chairman of the local aluminum drive, watches a county truck unload scrap pieces at the bin on the Court House grounds when the drive was scarcely more than 24 hours under way.

With each passing day, piles of aluminum are growing all over the county, testimony to Arlington's part in the nation-wide drive for the collection of scrap aluminum. Great rivalry exists among the 19 playgrounds for the honor of collecting the most of this valuable war-time metal, and the winning group will have a watermelon feast, or some other outing, it was announced this week.

Mrs. Allie S. Freed, president of Buckingham Communities, made the largest single contribution by giving an Isotta-Fraschini automobile to be stripped of its 500 pounds of aluminum. The Italian-made car was valued at $25,000 when new.

Pots, pans, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, toys, shakers, picture frames, book-ends, ice trays, measuring cups, soap dishes, kettles, percolators, double boilers, coffee pots, frying pans, refrigerator plates, electric appliance parts, jar caps, automobile parts and other items too numerous to mention have already taken the drive beyond expectations, F. Freeland Chew, chairman, said yesterday.

Arlington Boy Scouts are participating in a house-to-house canvass today and residents are asked once more to give every available scrap of aluminum that can be spared without requiring replacement. Anyone whose contribution is not picked up is asked to call headquarters, the county manager's office, Saturday morning, so it may be sent for.

In addition to the central bin on the Court House lawn, other collection centers are Bauserman's corner, Glebe Road and Columbia Pike; the triangle at North Hartford Street and Wilson Boulevard; the Old Dominion Bank triangle, in Cherrydale; the 19 playgrounds, the seven fire houses, Buckingham, Colonial Village and Arlington Village communities. On Tuesday, all the metal will be weighed and taken to Alexandria, the collection point for this area.

The drive has received the support of patriotic organizations, the service clubs, the women's clubs, the Arlington - Fairfax Railway Company and all public utilities.

All of the scrap aluminum will be sold through public bids to smelters with defense preference ratings before it has been sorted. The smelters will settle by check, payable to "The National Scrap Aluminum Fund," which will be used for defense purposes. Aluminum thus obtained will free new metal for airplane manufacture.

Two Boys Hurt While Bicycling

Perry Close, 14, of 1506 North Nicholas Street, was taken to Emergency Hospital by the Clarendon Ambulance Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock after he was said to have been struck at North McKinley Road and North Washington Boulevard by a truck. The boy suffered a broken arm.

William Slaubaugh, of Horse Shoe Run, W. Va., was said by police to be the driver of the truck, which was going west on North Washington Boulevard and turned left into McKinley Road. The boy was going east on Washington Boulevard, according to the police report.

Horace Hancock, nine, of 4008 North 20th Road fell from his bicycle Sunday after it hit a rock on North Johnson Street, just north of North Washington Boulevard. He was taken to his home by a passing motorist and later taken to Georgetown University Hospital, where he was found to have a fractured skull.

Defense Engineering Courses Will Be Given in Arlington

Anyone in Arlington interested in taking a course in defense engineering training is asked to apply in writing to the office of Superintendent of Schools Fletcher Kemp. Such courses will be available here in September if a sufficient number of persons are interested, Mr. Kemp said, and will be conducted as extension courses of the University of Virginia.

Due to shortages of technically trained workers in defense industries and agencies, Congress has again asked engineering schools to cooperate in giving short, intensive courses to train persons quickly in engineering or management. All courses are to be of college grade, and the program will be entirely separate from that offered by the high schools and known as "vocational training."

Purpose of the program is to train workers for more responsible positions, if their industries must expand due to the National Defense effort, or to prepare people for defense work if they are not employed. Although the United States Office of Education has asked that no college credit be given for this work, the University will issue a certificate to anyone successfully completing the course. Tuition is free and the student only has to buy necessary text books.

The program, starting in September and running two evenings a week for 32 weeks, will be broken up into two 16-week terms. A certificate will be issued for the successful completion of any term. Courses most probably will be offered in engineering drafting, production supervision, time and motion study, elements of chemical engineering, advanced drafting and ship drafting.

G. O. P. Convention Wednesday, July 30

Nominees for the County Board and the House of Delegates, as well as delegates to the State Convention, will be named by the Arlington Republican Convention when it assembles Wednesday evening, July 30, at 8:30 o'clock, at the Lyon Park Community House, Lawrence Michael, local chairman, said yesterday. All residents affiliated with the Republican Party or interested in its platform are invited to attend.

To date Basil M. DeLashmutt, Democratic incumbent, is unopposed for the county board. Mr. DeLashmutt is serving his second year on the board, having been elected when the staggered system first went into effect. It is understood William C. Ayres, employee of the Washington & Old Dominion Railroad, will probably be named by the Republican Party to oppose Mr. DeLashmutt. Albert A. Carretta is a possible independent candidate for the board, but he has not as yet announced his candidacy. He was heard to remark he would not run if the Republicans put up a candidate.

Charles A. Fenwick is the Democratic incumbent for re-election as the local representative to the State Legislature. Henry S. Clay's name has been mentioned as a Republican opponent, but this rumor could not be verified this week.

The convention Wednesday will also name 87 delegates to the State Republican Convention in Roanoke August 23. Arlington's, it is expected, will be the largest representation at this convention.

Fairfax Approves Town School Plan

Both the School Board and the Board of Supervisors of Fairfax County this week endorsed and ratified the agreement between Falls Church and the county whereby the merger of the town's school system with that of Fairfax County will be brought about after necessary legislation is obtained in the General Assembly.

The plan looks toward an improvement, particularly in high school facilities, for children of Falls Church and of adjacent areas of the county. Pending legislative approval of the merger, provision is to be made in the forthcoming school year for tuition-free exchange of town and county children.

Board to Weigh Tax Pre-Payment

Installation of a tax installment collection system for Arlington will be proposed to the Arlington County Board by County Manager Hanrahan at its meeting Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at the Court House, Mr. Hanrahan said yesterday.

Mr. Hanrahan installed such a system—the first in the United States—while he was city manager of Portsmouth, on March 7, 1932. The system is still in effect in that city and provides for installment deposits which accrue interest in anticipation of taxes and other dues.

The proposed system would be in line with a plan now being considered by Congress in regard to installment payments on Federal income taxes, Mr. Hanrahan stated. He said Arlington has been "very fortunate" in the past in having good collections, largely due to "efficient administration, modern collections and the fact that Arlington has felt the depression in recent years less than many other urban communities."

He pointed out Arlington has been one of the few localities unable to secure any W. P. A. funds, due to the lack of unemployment. Also in recent years the Federal Government has provided lending agencies, such as the Home-Owners' Loan, Federal Housing and others, which have stimulated building and resulted in the payment of many delinquencies which otherwise would have been hard to collect.

Mr. Hanrahan said all this has made funds available for the general operation of government, and, by budgeting its operations, the county has been able to maintain a reasonable amount of service. Now, he believes, it is possible the Federal lending agencies will direct most of their loans to national defense and little will go to private housing loans. He thinks not only insurance companies but private lending agencies may slow up in their loans.

The county manager believes his suggestion is timely, in that most people will be expected to pay much higher Federal taxes in another year. The Federal costs, he declares, will have to be met by Arlingtonians as well as persons of other localities, and met promptly. In order for the county to maintain essential services, local taxes

Defense Housing Started Here Under F.H.A. Backing

War Department Will Come Here

Virginia will be the future home of the entire War Department, according to an announcement yesterday that a $35,000,000 building will be erected on the former Arlington Experimental Farm, housing all the activities of that governmental department. This is provided in the first supplemental national defense appropriation bill, reported by the House Appropriations Committee.

The property has already been turned over to the War Department. Its 67 acres is considered suitable for the building with an area for parking at least 10,000 automobiles. Construction is expected to start immediately and the building will be completed within a year.

Baker Leaves W.-L. For G.-W. Coaching

Football Mentor Has Led In Metropolitan Area

Johnny Baker, the George Washington University graduate who has become the Metropolitan area's outstanding high school coach in the past six years, is resigning his Washington-Lee High School berth in Arlington to accept a position as assistant football coach at G. W. U., it was announced yesterday.

Baker becomes Coach Bill Reinhart's chief aide at G. W., and will assume his new duties next month. He is expected to devote his coaching time primarily to the backfield, since he was an excellent quarterback in college and he unquestionably will assist Reinhart in building the Colonials' attack.

Reinhart thus elevates to an important post one of G. W.'s most successful football alumni engaged in high school coaching. Baker, a George Washington graduate of 1934, has compiled an outstanding record in both football and track at Washington-Lee since he took the reins there in the Fall of 1935.

His football teams have won 41 games, lost 11 and tied 4 over a six-year span, and have been generally recognized as among the strongest in this section. His W.-L. track teams, too, have been outstanding, consistently winning such meets as the "C" Club meet, the Southern Conference interscholastic championships and the University of Maryland Interscholastic Meet.

In compiling his enviable football record at Washington-Lee, Baker had only one losing season in six—the year of 1938, when his eleven won four games and lost five. His 1937 and 1939 clubs were undefeated. The '39 team won 10 straight games and was the undisputed champion of this area. The '37 club had an unusual record—five victories and four ties.

Last Fall the Little Generals won eight games and lost two, the two defeats coming by a total of four points.

In six years Baker's teams lost to only one D. C. high school eleven, Central, coached by Hardy Pearce, Baker's old G. W. roommate from Texas. Baker and Pearce married sisters, Julia and Marion Fick, both of them George Washington graduates also, and the coaching rivalry in this family was quite keen.

In the six meetings between Central and Washington-Lee Baker held a 3-2 edge in victories, and there was one tie. Johnny's teams held a 4-2 edge over their old Virginia rivals, George Washington, of Alexandria.

In addition to his coaching success, Baker has been a popular instructor at Washington - Lee, having taught mathematics, and is extremely well-liked throughout Arlington County as well. Fletcher Kemp, superintendent of schools in Arlington, has always been one of Johnny's stoutest supporters.

Baker gave up his Washington-Lee post reluctantly, but feels that he has a much greater future in the college field. He is a native of Anson, Texas.

360 Forget Worries At Chamber Outing

Approximately 360 people attended the third annual outing of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce at Fort Hunt Wednesday afternoon. Members of the Chamber and their friends forgot the worries and cares of the business world for a few hours and had a pleasant and enjoyable time playing ball, running races, pitching horseshoes and playing other games. A bag of souvenirs was given to each person present, and E. L. Usilton, president of the organization, drew the lucky numbers for the fifty grand prizes.

Among those present at the outing were Congressman Victor Wickersham of Oklahoma, County Manager Hanrahan, Freeland F. Chew, chairman of the County Board, Delegate Charles R. Fenwick, Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, C. Benjamin Laycock, Herbert Williams, president of the Fairfax Chamber of Commerce, and Martin E. Greene, manager of the Alexandria Chamber.

Building Firm to Give School Site

Construction started in Arlington this week on the first defense housing project to be erected in the Metropolitan area under the new Title 6 (insurance mortgage plan) of the Federal Housing Administration, it will cost $1,900,000.

At the same time, The Sun learned application has been made for building permits for the first four units of Windsor Gardens, a $295,000 apartment project in the vicinity of Buckingham.

The defense apartment housing project is located on a 27-acre tract in the vicinity of South 26th Street and South Glebe Road and is being built by the Stone Development Company. This land, with the exception of approximately three acres, is now zoned residential "B", and a request for the remainder will come before the County Board at its meeting Wednesday. The Board of Zoning Appeals has recommended it be granted.

Will Give School Site

The Stone Development Company, Paul T. Stone, president said yesterday, is ready to give Arlington a one-acre parcel adjacent to this property, as a site for a future elementary school, The Zoning Board, in recommending the rezoning from residential "A" to residential "B" in the 2200 block of South 26th Street, excepted the portion set aside for the school

The apartments will provide for about 616 families and will be of two-story brick construction. It is expected rentals will be $40 monthly for a living room, bedroom, dinette alcove, kitchenette and bath.

The Windsor Gardens development, The Sun was told, will be located on a three and one-quarter acre tract, owned by Mrs. Margaret G. Crewe, between Henderson Road and North 4th Street.

10 Buildings In Group

A Washington architect has completed plans for the development, which will occupy both sides of a one-block street to be opened through the center of the tract. It is estimated the development, including 10 buildings, land and landscaping, will cost in the neighborhood of $295,000.

Plans call for large buildings of Colonial architecture to give the appearance of individual homes. The eight apartments in each building will open from a center hall and an innovation in local apartment building will be the presence of a fireplace in each of the living rooms.

The buildings will cover about one-third of the land. Banks & Lee will be the builders, it was learned. It is expected the first buildings will be ready for occupancy about November 1.

Democrats' Annual Cruise August 1

Democrats from Fairfax and Prince William counties, Alexandria City, and all of Northern Virginia have been invited to participate in the annual moonlight boat ride of the Arlington Democrats Friday evening, August 1, aboard the S. S. Potomac, J. Byron Brooks, general chairman, said yesterday. The boat will not stop in Alexandria for passengers.

The committee in charge is staging a ticket selling contest, and the person selling the highest number of tickets will receive a $10 award, and the second highest a $5 prize. Anyone desiring to enter the contest, should call Mrs. Maude N. Dove, at Chestnut 7801, or write her at 4713 South 8th Road.

There will be no speeches on the cruise as is usually the custom. Music for dancing will be by two well known orchestras and there will be other forms of entertainment.

Medley Made Member Of Va. Budget Board

State Senator William D. Medley, of Arlington, this week received an appointment from Governor Price as a member of the budget advisory board. He fills the vacancy caused recently by the death of Senator Robert W. Daniel, of Brandon, and, with the appointment of Mr. Medley, the board now numbers seven.

MISS BROWNING WINS

Miss Mary Eleanor Browning won the first prize for the print competition for June and tied with Lieut. Com. John R. Redman for first place in the yearly contest, it was announced at the meeting of the Arlington Camera Club last Thursday.
